Brosius Nominated Pennsylvania Agricultural Secretary

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

WEST GROVE (Chester Co.) — Pennsylvania's Gov. Tom Ridge and his nominee for the cabinet position of Agriculture Secretary, Charles Brosius, agree. The major mission of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) must be to increase the net family income of Pennsylvania farmers. All other things, such as getting government off your back, making DER farmer friendly, preserving good farmland and making strong farm communities, work up to this over-all goal. We need to make farming profitable so that these people can contribute to the economy of their surrounding communities.

In a lengthy interview Wednesday morning on the farm that dates back in the family to 1823, Brosius said that when he was interviewed for the position, Gov. Ridge expressed the goal to increase farm income. The goal was exactly what Brosius had listed as his mission statement for PDA.

"The only way I know to measure success in the state ag department is in the farmer's pocketbook," Brosius said. "When you put it all together, Gov. Ridge promised farmers that he would raise their standard of living and increase their family income. I think farmers sincerely believe that Gov. Ridge will make a difference, and I'm delighted to have the opportunity to represent farmers on the governor's team to help make that difference.

"Over the years, one of the principles we used here on our farm is that you cannot keep the farm in the family if you can't keep the family on the farm," Brosius said. "Farm boys and girls must be able to come home and have the standard of living that uses their skill and education as in any other occupation. Farmers are not second class citizens. I look at the farm as a place to capture all this ambition and energy of young farmers. We have to be able to pay them, afford them a standard of living everyone else has. There is nothing worse than to have your buddies or college classmates have it better.

"Four years from now farmers will vote with their pocketbook, and the measurement of our success will be that if after counting the votes Ridge is still governor. This will be a measurement of success and that he was serious about what he said to farmers.

"You don't say, 'I'm a successful loser.' I think the governor is sincere, and I'm excited to be part of that winning team."

DID NOT SEEK THE JOB

While Brosius believes he has the education, the ability, and the experience to help him be secretary of agriculture, he did not seek the job. He said his Quaker background discourages him from blowing his own horn or telling

National Holstein Director Hoff: A Farm Profile

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

NEW WINDSOR, Md. — At the upcoming 1995 Maryland Holstein Convention, to be held in Westminster, Maryland, March 3 and 4, Carroll countian, Marlin Hoff, will certainly be in attendance. Hoff has been a national director of the National Holstein Association since 1989, but his farming career stretches back . . . long before 1989.

Hoff was born into farming. His family dairy farm, Cold Spring Farms has been in the family for 125 years. He says that his interest in breeding, and in (raising) registered cows developed while he was a boy in 4-H.

"I grew up in 4-H," Hoff recalls. His wife, Kathy was also a former 4-H'er. The pair had seen each other around for years, but it wasn't until one day when Mr. Hoff stopped at her family farm while hauling cattle, that the two got to know each other. "She was milking cows," he says. "and I got kind of interested!" They had their first date on milk check day!

As a high school lad, Marlin Hoff made the Maryland State 4-H Cattle Judging team. In the fall of 1959 he won the State, and the National 4-H Cattle Judging contest!

After high school, he was uncertain what his future should hold. He had been taking voice lessons in New York City and "played with the idea of singing as a career." But, by 1960 Hoff had decided that the farm was a part of him, and that singing could be a shaky career! He headed off to college at the University of Maryland. With a 4-H background and a lifetime of farming experience under his belt he quickly began to excel, becoming part of the national (college) cattle judging contest. He took fifth out of 150 contestants that year. Shortly thereafter, Marlin and Kathy were married. He spent his last year of college, before receiving his bachelor's degree in Dairy Science, rising in the morning to HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Farmers in the Susquehanna River Basin who use an average of 10,000 gallons of water per day (over a 30-day period), or have ever used that much water or more at any time, will find it in their best interest to register that use with the Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC).

That message is the core of what Keith Masser, chairman of the SRBC Agricultural Advisory Committee, told a group of interested farmers during a Penn State Extension Service sponsored water rights and irrigation management meeting held Wednesday at the Sheraton Inn Harrisburg, in Harrisburg.

The agenda of the meeting included presentations on drought patterns in Pennsylvania by Leon Ressler, Lancaster County extension agent, and designing and managing efficient and unwasteful overhead irrigation systems by Herb Brodie, an University of Maryland Extension agricultural engineer.

Brodie also discussed Mary-

"This machine will pay for itself in a year"
—Tom Krall

Tom Krall, a dairy farmer in Lebanon County, PA, installed a hammer mill from Automatic Farm Systems last spring. He feels it's been a very wise move financially.

"I had all my feed delivered, other than silage. Now I'll buy corn and barley cheaper, at harvest, and save on hauling and grinding. My initial cost, operating cost, and maintenance cost are all low. I expect this machine will pay for itself in a year."

"It's a pretty handy machine. It's all automatic, so it doesn't create any extra work. And it's not dusty like a roller mill because it's all enclosed."

Delmarva Broiler

EDISON, NJ
FEBRUARY 22, 1995

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was fair to moderate. Offerings were irregular and in fairly good balance. Light weights and some reduction in production was affecting overall availability. Live supplies were generally moderate; weights were mostly desirable to light. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 47 to 58 cents. Trade sentiment was about steady. Bone-in breasts were short of full interest. Boneless skinless breasts were available at some plants and were slow to clear. Leg quarters slowed in some instances but were well balanced in others.

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS - PART I FEDERAL-STATE

Trucklot buying interest was mixed. Offerings were in close balance with breast items in the tightest position. Dealers were cautious as they attempted to assess the current situation. Retail features coupled with the reduced schedules had product in a close relationship with needs. Trade sentiment remained cautious.

National Egg Market

ATLANTA, GA

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE:

Prices paid to producers in New England for extra-large and large and prices in Virginia were higher, prices to retailers in the Philadelphia area were unchanged to higher, and the remainder of prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady to firm. Mid- week demand ranged light to good, mostly moderate to fairly good. Floorstocks were adequate to instances fully adequate with limited supplies noted in certain areas. Breaking stock supplies were adequate, and most breakers were content with regular commitments. Spent hen offerings were ample for the nonexistant to moderate demand, and the market tone continued generally steady.

WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 22, 1995

WHEAT PRICES CONTINUED TO DECLINE DUE TO OVERNIGHT EXPORT DISAPPOINTMENTS AND FAVORABLE WINTER WHEAT GROWING WEATHER. CORN AND SOYBEAN PRICES RECEIVED SUPPORT FROM LAST WEEK'S INCREASED EXPORT INSPECTION FIGURES. WHEAT 1 TO 8 CENTS LOWER. CORN 1 TO 2 CENTS HIGHER. SORGHUM MIXED. SOYBEANS 1 TO 5 CENTS HIGHER. USDA REJECTED EEP WHEAT TENDERS BY PAKISTAN AND JORDAN, PUSHING WHEAT PRICES MODERATELY LOWER. THE BEAUTIFUL SPRING LIKE WEATHER IN WINTER WHEAT GROWING AREAS HAS CROP LOOKING GOOD. CORN PRICES MOVED SLIGHTLY HIGHER, SUPPORTED BY A STRONG WEEKLY EXPORT INSPECTION REPORT AND TODAY'S EXPORT PURCHASE FROM TAIWAN. EXPORT INSPECTIONS WERE ALSO GOOD FOR SOYBEANS, HOWEVER, CONCERNS OVER THE POSSIBILITY OF REDUCED BEAN PLANTINGS THIS YEAR WAS THE MAJOR INFLUENCE FOR HIGHER BEAN PRICES.

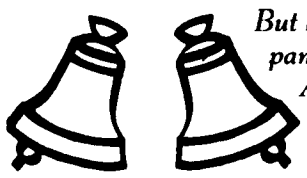
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

FEB. 27-MARCH 5, 1995

NATIONAL PANCAKE WEEK.

SHROVE TUESDAY

Shrove Tuesday, the day before Ash Wednesday, got its name from the practice of shriving — undergoing purification through confession — prior to Lent. Other names for this day are tied to the special foods eaten before the fasting of Lent Mardi Gras (Fat Tuesday) concludes several weeks of feasting and revelry. At Fasnacht, the Pennsylvania Dutch eat fasnacht kuchen, a rectangular doughnut with a slit in the middle, traditionally raised without yeast On Pancake Day, the English use up the cooking fats that are forbidden during Lent. In fact, the connection between pancakes and Shrove Tuesday was so strong that the bell calling the penitent to church became known as the pancake bell in many parts of England.



But hark, I hear the pancake bell
And fritters make a gallant smell.
– Poor Robin's Almanac, 1684

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Add a tablespoon of bottled lemon juice to the water in home humidifiers to eliminate musty odors.

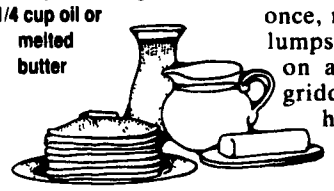
CINNAMON PANCAKES

2 cups flour (white, whole wheat, or combination)
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 eggs
2 cups milk
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup oil or melted butter

Mix together the dry ingredients. In a separate bowl, lightly beat eggs, then mix in milk, brown sugar, and oil. Make a well in the dry ingredients and add the wet ingredients all at once, mixing until large lumps disappear. Cook on a lightly greased griddle over medium-high heat.

Makes about 20 4" pancakes.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Thunder on Shrove Tuesday foretelleth wind, store of fruit, and plenty.

When the sun is shining on Shrovetide Day, it is meant well for rye and peas.

Wherever the wind lies on Ash Wednesday, it continues during all Lent.

In beginning or in end, March its gifts will send.

OPINION

Editorial Reply

This letter is in response to your editorial "Take Away the Incentive" printed in the Opinion column on February 11 in the Lancaster Farming. I would like to express some comments and make some recommendations.

First of all, we all know and commend the many positive aspects of 4-H and FFA and what they stand for. It would be naive not to realize that problems do arise. The question is, what can make it fair to all the kids who participate in these programs and shows.

It would not be fair to require that all show animals be totally shaved for competition. Fitting and grooming are part of 4-H training and can carry over to one's future lifestyle. We should teach our youth to present themselves and their projects in the most complimenting style. Can you imagine the Miss America Pageant with all the young ladies sporting GI crewcuts? Grooming and fitting can be a part of a very rewarding family experience as part of the 4-H program.

Requiring each exhibitor to compete in showmanship and a "skill-a-thon" contest would be fair. However, the placings from these events should not be used in any way to judge the market/breeding classes. Younger children and new, inexperienced 4-H'ers would never be able to score as well as older, more experienced youth. Also, many 4-H'ers work together in family units in fitting and training cattle, as children from even the same family often have very different abilities.

Professional fitters are exactly that - professionals - and I don't think their activities can be regulated locally. However, professioinal fitters should be required to register with a show's Livestock Office, listing which animal they are working on and the animal's owner. Then if something questionable arises, there is a record of which professional worked on which animal.

Positive forms of identification such as nose printing are a definite must. Rules of ownership for a specified length of time (3 to 9 months depending on the show) must be required. No animal should be eligible for a show that has been sold during the required ownership period.

A suggestion has been made that no money should be passed to an exhibitor until the animal has been slaughtered and the carcass properly inspected. This is fair if the carcass is inspected purely for illegal substances (drugs, injections, etc.). However, carcass grade should not be a consideration in changing an animal's placing after the day of the show. If a professional judge placed the animals in the show ring according to his observations, then his placings should remain the same unless drugs or other illegal activity is discovered in the carcass inspection. If the professional judge didn't do a thorough, credible job in the show ring, then he should not be bailed out by carcass grade.

Regarding drugs and illegal alteration of the animal, I would suggest checking all champions and division winners and also to "spot check" others at random. If drugs or any illegal activity is found, then the participant should be banned from any future

To Care for New Lambs

Ewes showing signs of approaching lambing (neverousness, anxiety, bleating, pawing) should be moved to lambing pens, according to Chester Hughes, extension livestock agent.

If fluid is discharged and labor is unproductive, give assistance. Use a mild detergent solution to clean your hands.

Be sure the new lamb is breathing properly. Clear its nostrils of mucous by holding it by the hind legs and rubbing the nostrils.

Some shepherds insert a straw stem in the nostril gently to force the lamb to sneeze. Dry lambs off as soon as possible after birth. Rubbing them dry is preferable. Heat lamps should be used with weak lambs.

Baby lambs should nurse as soon as possible. The first milk (colostrum) supplies antibodies against many diseases. After the lamb is 15-minutes old, his ability to absorb antibodies rapidly decreases. By the time the lamb is 8-hours old, he can only absorb about half the amount of antibodies and none by 36 hours of age.

To Implement WPS

In 1992, the United States Environmental Protection Agency adopted new regulations to protect farm workers. The regulations known as the Worker Protection Standards (WPS) will impact most Pennsylvania farmers.

If a farm, forest, nursery or greenhouse operation uses any pesticide including non-restricted pesticides, and has employees who will be within .25 mile of where a pesticide was used in the previous 30 days, that operation is required by law to follow the new WPS.

All pesticide users will find changes on all pesticide labels which refer to the WPS.

Information about protective equipment to be worn during mixing, loading or application of pesticides will be more specific than in the past.

In addition, every pesticide will have on the label a designated time after a spray has been applied which no one is allowed in the treated area known as Restricted Entry Interval (REI). All operations even if they have no employees must follow these directions.

Remember the label is the law when it comes to pesticide usage. These and other requirements of WPS including public notification, posting, education, facilities, etc. are available from your local cooperative extension office.

To Make Adjustments During Pregnancy

For farm women used to an active role in the farm operation, pregnancy presents some challenges.

Remember, adjustments will need to be made to take into account loss agility, especially when working around animals.

Constant reaching and turning can pull muscles, especially those supporting the uterus, causing a lot of pain.

Toxic exposure is another risk increased by pregnancy. Wear gloves if you are administrating drugs or pesticides or ask someone else to take over that chore during your pregnancy.

Do not push yourself too hard.

Even if you have a demanding work schedule, sit down at least once every hour. Farm women, who have an active lifestyle, seem to tolerate labor better than inactive women.

Even so, be cautious during pregnancy. Partners should help mothers-to-be avoid risky chores and situations and make adjustments in their work schedule. This is important to protect both the mother and baby's health.

PROVING THE RESURRECTION
February 26, 1995

PROVING THE RESURRECTION

February 26, 1995

Background Scripture:
Matthew 27:62 to 28:20
Devotional Reading:
Acts 10:34-48

When I was much younger, I used to think that if something was historical, it was real. Correspondingly, if it wasn't historical, then it wasn't real. Today I am much less sure of what either of those words mean. What is "historical"? What is "real"?

So it was no great threat to me recently when I read of some biblical scholars who believe that the resurrection of Jesus was not a "historical" event. Understand, I don't necessarily buy that opinion, but it doesn't disturb me. When we speak of "historical events" we generally mean an event that can be recorded in some tangible way. Is the resurrection of Jesus a historical event? Could the presence of the resurrected Christ be photographed, his words recorded, his energies reflected by sensitive scientific instruments?

The gospel accounts of the resurrection are not much help here because they're a jumble of different impressions and experiences. Is it a physical body like ours with which Jesus was resurrected or is it just the appearance of a physical body? Paul doesn't help much either because he speaks of a "spiritual body," putting together two different concepts that seem mutually exclusive.

The reason that the early witnesses are so confusing in their accounts, I believe, is because experiencing the resurrected Lord is of an order that goes beyond normal worldly experience. The resurrection was "real" on a much higher level of reality than anything that happens in our daily lives. My experience of the risen Lord, like those of the gospel writers, is ineffable, impossible to adequately express or convey through mere words. I know I have experienced Christ in my life, but I can't give you scientific or historical proof of what happened.

When Mary Magdalene "and the other Mary" went to Jesus' tomb on the first Easter morning, they found it empty and an angel informing them that "He is not here; for he has risen, as he said . . . Then go quickly and tell his disciples that he has risen from the dead, and behold, he is going before you to Galilee; there you will see him." But, on their way to tell the disciples, they encountered the risen Lord, who told them: "Do not be afraid; go and tell my brethren to go to Galilee, and there they will see me."

VALIDATION OF FAITH

So the eleven disciples went to Galilee. "And when they saw him they worshipped him; but some doubted." That passage confirms to me that the experience of the risen Christ is in some way dependent upon receptivity. They all were in the same place at the same time, but, although some saw him and worshipped him, others doubted. (Do you remember in John 12:29, God speaks with a heavenly voice and "The crowd standing by heard it and said it had thundered." Others said, "An angel has spoken to him"?)

That is still true today. The presence and power of the resurrected Christ is dependent, not upon historical or scientific validation but upon something that takes place within the heart and mind of the receptive person. I have experienced the presence and power of love in my life, but I cannot historically validate or prove that love — only what that experience produces in me.

So those who experienced the resurrected Christ on that mountain in Galilee couldn't prove they had done so, but with their lives they could and did demonstrate that it was so: "go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. . ." (28:19).

POND OWNERS
Eliminate algae organically!

Algae-eating Grass Carp are finally available to pond owners in Pennsylvania.
Grass Carp provide a low cost, highly effective, long-term organic alternative to the use of poisonous and polluting chemicals in the control of undesirable aquatic plants.

Each Grass Carp:
- Consumes up to 5 lbs. of algae per day.
- Is government certified for algae control.
- Has a lifespan of up to 17 years.

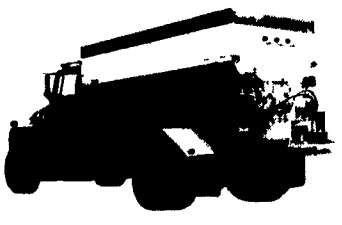
CUSTOM APPLICATORS

If You Can Dream It, We Can Build It.

Tell us what you spread. We'll design and build your ideal truck spreader.

There's nothing like a truck spreader for efficient spreading. But your needs are unique. So with off-the-floor spreaders you generally end up with a compromise.

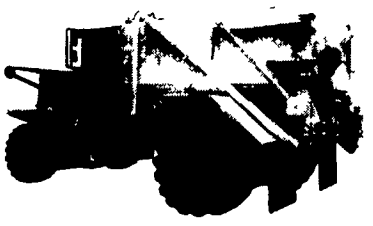
Now, with a custom-built Stoltzfus truck spreader you can have a unit that gives you every feature you want to make your business as profitable as it can be. Best of all, when time comes, re-selling is easier. Stoltzfus Spreaders are known to last 20, even 30 years.



Spread Dry or Wet

For wet lime, poultry litter, compost and industrial lime by-products, nothing beats our versatile "V-Body" design. This rugged hydraulic spinner spreader handles wet or dry materials equally well. Spread a 40' pattern – as little as 125 lbs. or up to 8,000 lbs. per acre. Our largest basic unit has 20 ton capacity.

For Dry Materials



For reliable accuracy in spreading mixed-density, dry flowable materials start with our basic "W-Chain" design. Apply custom blends of impregnated fertilizer in one pass. Spread dry lime, marl or land plaster, cement dust, and crushed stone with ease. Designed to operate on hillsides and in light winds, a Stoltzfus "W-Chain" Truck Spreader covers 40 acres at 10 mph with an average load; or from 100 to 4,000 lbs. per acre.

Make Your Move: Design Your Own

Call today. Put the Stoltzfus design team to work for you, without obligation. We'll work with you to build in every detail needed to create your ideal Truck Spreader. With 50 years experience building top-of-the-line ag spreaders, we know you'll be delighted with your custom Stoltzfus Truck Spreader. It's an investment that will pay you back over and over for years to come.

FEBRUARY 17, 1995

EASTERN REGION FROZEN EGGS, FEBRUARY 17, 1995. FEDERAL-STATE

Asking prices were generally higher, and current negotiated sales for immediate delivery were unchanged to higher for all products. Most trades were for less-than-truckiot volumes. Many buyers have made large volume commitments well into 1995, and those needing to buy were hesitant to pay the higher asking prices. Sellers incurred increased costs as shell egg prices increased, and most hesitated to accept commitments at previous price levels. Floor stocks of all products were adequate. Liquid and frozen eggs processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending February 11, 1995 were 2% less than last week, and 12% greater than the same week last year.

Buckhout Earns CFA

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Craig A. Buckhout, president of Agri-Financial Services Corp., has successfully completed the exam requirements to earn the Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) designation. The CFA charter has become internationally recognized as the standard of professional and academic excellence among investment practitioners.

Nearly 16,000 candidates, a record number for 1994, were tested at one of 139 exam centers around the world. Buckhout was one of only 1,891 investment professionals from the United States, Canada, and 25 countries outside North America to have successfully completed the exam.

The CFA program is comprised of three examinations and candidates may take only one exam each year. The exam tests candidates' understanding of topics such as ethics, financial accounting, quantitative analysis, economics, fixed-income securities analysis, equity securities analysis, and portfolio management.

In addition to passing all three CFA exams, individuals who earn the CFA designation must have a minimum of three years professional investment experience, agree to abide by the Association for Investment Management and Research's (AIMR) Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct, and satisfy the Association's membership requirements.

Buckhout received a bachelor's degree in agricultural economics from Cornell University and an MBA from the Johnson School of Management at Cornell University.

Cumberland County Extension Meeting Held

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

HUNTSDALE (Cumberland Co.) — A former Cumberland County commissioner, five people who have proven they are talented with the soil and a county extension agent received awards during the 78th annual meeting of the Cumberland County Cooperative Extension Association.

Former county Commissioner Rosemarie C. Peiffer, who has been a long-time supporter of the extension and of local agricultural programs in general, received the prestigious AA Raudabaugh Memorial Award during the meeting at the Penn Township Fire Hall.

Peiffer, who has served for quite a while on the extension's board of directors, received the Raudabaugh award from county Extension Director Duane G. Duncan. The honor came as Peiffer ended a one-year term as the 1994 president of the extension board.

Five other people were recognized as Master Gardeners. Those with the green thumbs are Michelle Poe, Sara Shoemaker, Vicki Lykke, Carol Fry and Bill Shearer.

The new Master Gardeners join 36 other people in the county who have earned that title by demonstrating their skill with plants.

A Service Award was presented

Waiting To Control Quackgrass Can Cost You Plenty.

Waiting to use a rescue treatment like Accent* can cost you up to twice as much as using Roundup® herbicide to stop quackgrass before your corn is up. But that's not all you'll pay...

WAITING CAN COST YOU 14 BU/A IN YIELD

Quackgrass is an aggressive competitor for soil moisture and plant nutrients. And if you wait until your corn is up to control quackgrass, you've already lost yield. University tests have shown that waiting to control quackgrass can cost you up to 14 bushels per acre. And then there's the matter of reinfestation...

QUACK CAN COME BACK WITH A VENGEANCE

You know how tough quackgrass can be. Unfortunately, post treatments like Accent don't. They often just knock quack back instead of controlling the entire plant, rhizomes and all, like Roundup. The result? Quackgrass comes back and you're back to square one.

DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE

Using Accent after the damage is done can be costly. So don't hesitate. Use Roundup to stop quackgrass before it robs you of yield and profit. See your dealer for the early, economical quackgrass control of Roundup.

Juniata County Holstein Club Holds Annual Meeting

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

POST ROYAL (Juniata Co.) — Juniata County's proud Holstein heritage came shining when the Juniata County Holstein Club met for their annual dinner meeting at the Walker Grange near Port Royal. Awards to the Club's junior members for their accomplishments highlighted the evening and the Club's future commitment to the breed.

Junior Activities Chairman Nancy Toms announced production winners, detailing each cows record for the award.

Ronda Mummah received a plaque for first place in production for her two- year-old with 20,976 pounds of milk. Danielle Mummah came in second with a two-year-old that produced 20,822 pounds of milk.

In the three-year-old cows, Tara Kocher placed first for her cow that produced 23,263 pounds of milk while Ronda Mummah took second place with a three-year-old that produced 22,160 pounds.

For butterfat production, Danielle Mummah's three-year-old took first place honors by producing 4.1% 839 pounds of butterfat. Dan Geissinger placed second with a three-year-old that produced 3.8% 802 pounds of butterfat Protein awards went to Ronda Mummah for placing first for her three-year- old at 3 2% 714 pounds of protein. Danielle Mummah placed second with a three-year-old that produced 3 3% 690 P.

In the four-year-old division, Dianne Glock took top honors fox milk, fat, and protein with a cow that produced 23,219 M,4.3% 1,003 F,3.2% 752 P

Dan Geissinger received a plaque for his first place in the five-year-old division with a cow that produced 21,395 M,4 0% 849 F 3 0% 652 P

In the aged cow division, Jennifer Toms placed first for her cow that produced 23,904 M,3.9% 934 F,3.1 % 746 P.

Danielle Mummah was recognized for reaching finalist status in the Distinguished Junior Member Contest. Mummah continues this honor for Juniata County from last year Last year Juniata County had two finalists in the competition.

Dianne Glock was honored for her five-year-old cow Walnut Hills Astro Bridget. This cow received Reserve Junior All Pennsylvania, was Supreme Best Bred and Owned at the 4-H District Show and at the State Junior Show in Harrisburg.

Tara Kocher was recognized for her Summer Yearling that received Junior All Pennsylvania and All Pennsylvania last year. Her heifer was nominated All Pennsylvania and received high honorable mention.

In other business, Donald Adarns, Nancy Toms, and Steve Wilson were elected to serve on the Juniata County Holstein Club's board of directors.

Earlier in the evening, Dairy Extension Director Dave Swartz took to the podium to update dairy activity in the area. Swartz reported a good turnout at the Dairy MAP meeting in Juniata County. Swartz announced a 4-H Animal Science Day to be held at the Port Royal Fairgrounds on April 8. This meeting is for dairy, beef, swine, rabbit, dairy goat, and sheep projects in Perry, Juniata, and Mifflin Counties. Youth will attend seminars on judging, ethics in the showring, equipment, feeds and forages.

Swartz announced that the local show will no longer serve as a qualifying show for the District Show. The District Show will be combined with FFA. Swartz said any questions concerning this should be directed to the county extension office or to him personally.

Steve Wilson presented the State Directors Report. At the last board meeting, Wilson said approval was given to present a $50 award to dairy promotion scrapbooks entered at the State Convention. He said PA Profiles Magazine will experience it's first increase in advertising rates since 1986. The rate hike is due to the recent increases in postage and the cost of paper

Wilson said the Holstein Association will be testing a purchase discount at the Showcase Sale to be held April 1 at the Pennsylvania Holstein Association farm in Middletown. The Pennsylvania Holstein Association will be offering 4-H and FFA members a 5% discount towards the purchase of an animal.

Wilson reported a shift in the Holstein Association's $3,000 Scholarship program. Previously the money was divided in different ways. The Board voted to offer three $1,000 scholarships effective in 1995.

In other State news, Wilson reported that John Cope will be chairman of the National Convention to be held in Pennsylvania in June of 1996. The Central District will be the site of the Pennsylvania State Holstein Convention in 1996.

An open forum will be held February 16 at the Sheraton Inn in Harrisburg starting at 9:00 a.m. Wilson said State Directors will be on hand. Members are encouraged to voice their ideas at this open forum.

Former Juniata County Extension Director George Settlemyer stood to announce the computerization of information for this year's Juniata County Livestock fair. He reminded participants that entries needed to be in a week before the fair to tally the necessary information.

Juniata County Holstein Club President Ronald Mummah emcee'd the evening. Featured speaker Bob King from Sausman Insurance spoke on the ways to and advantages of saving for retirement.

Brown Swiss Hires Young

BELOIT, Wis. — The Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association of the U.S. A. has named Michael W. Young of Holladay, Utah, as the breed's new executive secretary.

The Association's 10-member Board of Directors selected Mr. Young from among several candidates at its January board meeting.

As executive secretary, Young will also be fulfilling the duties of director of marketing for Brown Swiss Enterprises, the marketing subsidiary of the Association.

Born and raised on a Guernsey farm, Young received his bachelor of science degree from Pennsylvania State University. In the 20 years since then, he has gained significant experience in agricultural marketing and sales. For eight years, he served as national advertising manager for the Holstein World magazine.

He was director of sales and marketing for Genmark, Salt Lake City, Utah, being instrumental in establishing the genetic Weaver testing program with the Brown Swiss Association.

Most recently, Young was senior vice president of international sales for Global Ag Enterprises Inc., an agricultural product trading company in Washington, where he was again based out of the Salt Lake City, Utah area.

Young continues to reside in Salt Lake City, but may be reached at the breed's National Office, located in Beloit, Wisconsin.

Keystone Beef Classic Resumes In May

MEADVILLE (Crawford Co.) — After being canceled in 1994 because of the spring B.V.D. outbreak in Northwestern Pennsylvania, the Northwest Keystone Junior Beef Classic will once again be held over Memorial Day Weekend here in the Crawford County Fairgrounds.

Nineteen ninety-five is the tenth year for the all-breed heifer and steer show, which in 1993 saw young cattlemen and women from four states exhibit nearly 300 head of cattle.

The show is designed as a kick-off for the summer show season and gives youth, under 21 years of age, an opportunity to enter competition drawn from a larger area than usually seen at the county fairs in which they compete during the summer.

The resumption of this year's show is being anxiously awaited by many. Entrants must only be younger than 21 years of age and need not be a member of either 4-H or FFA. However, it is becoming a tradition for groups to come to the Classic as a club.

Since the three-day Memorial Day Weekend allows Monday for rest and recuperation, and since the main show schedule takes place on Sunday, young cattle enthusiasts find the event a favorite preview to the summer show season.

Once again, in 1995, the Keystone Beef Classic is being held in the extensive facilities of the Crawford County Fairgrounds, just north of Meadville. The popular showmanship contest will kick-off the classic show starting on Saturday, May 27, at 5 p.m. The showmanship contest will again be divided into three age divisions.

But the real excitement occurs Sunday, May 28, when the steers and breeding classes are judged. As in the past, the 1995 Classic will offer registered steer classes. Cash prizes and trophies will be awarded as a grand and reserve champion steer will be chosen from breeds represented. Crossbred steers will also compete for premiums to be paid in all steer classes, as well as for grand and reserve trophies. A supreme champion steer will then be named — the overall show champion and a cash jackpot will be paid to this winner.

In the breeding show, premiums will be paid for all classes and trophies will be awarded for grand champion, reserve champion, and bred and owned for each of the breeds as well as for an unrestricted "commercial" class.

Additional information about the 1995 Classic is being prepared for mailing to past participants and breed associations. For other answers to questions about the show, county extension agents will have brochures and entry forms, or you may write to the Keystone Junior Beef Classic Committee, c/o Bob Calvert, Mercer County Extension Office, P.O. Box 530, Mercer, PA 16137.

Lancaster Announces Holstein Tour Program

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Holstein Club has announced the itinerary for its 1995 farm tour, set for March 9.

Reservations are being taken on a first-come, first-served basis, until the bus is full. The price per person for the day-long bus tour, which includes a full meal at the West Fallowfield Christian School, is $25.

The deadline for mailing reservations is March 1, in order to take advantage of a $5-per-person early reservation discount.

Call-in reservations will be taken until March 4. Call Larry Kennel at (717) 653-4825.

This year's farm tour program is to visit five Holstein operations in Berks and Chester counties, and the New Bolton Center in Kennet Square.

The bus is scheduled to leave from the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, in Lancaster, promptly at 8:15 a.m. Participants should arrive no later than 8 a.m.

The bus is expected to return to the Farm and Home Center about 8:15 p.m.

Checks should be made payable to: Lancaster County Holstein Club. The envelope should be addressed to: Larry Kennel, 1489 Grandview Road, Mt. Joy, PA. 17552.

Of special note, participants should bring a packed lunch for the noon meal. Drinks are to be provided by Dunwood Farms.

Caernarvon Farm

The farms to be visited include Caernarvon Farm, located in Morgantown, Berks County.

Owned by Andy Stoltzfus, Caernarvon Farm has an 84-cow, tie-stall barn, and keeps a herd of about 120 cows, 49 of which are on the Holstein locator list. A large portion of the herd is used as recipients for the farm embryo transfer program.

With a herd BAA of 105.5, the farm has two, well-known cow families — Spirit Stacey, and Jodee.

At Caernarvon, the tour group will get to see a calf nursery which houses 50 calves in individual and small group pens; a new heifer facility with sloped floors and slats; and the tour will also be shown the farm house, which was rebuilt this past year following a fire on Feb. 10, 1994.

The farmhouse, originally built in 1845, has been rebuilt to reflect the same-era style. The Stoltzfus family will be on hand to share their experience with the rebuilding process.

Glen-Valley Farm

Also on the list of farms is Glen-Valley Farm, in Atglen, Chester County.

Owned and operated by the family of Ken and Marilyn, Brandon, Jordon and Scott Umble, Glen-Valley Farm was started by Ken's parents, Harold and Lena Umble in 1952.

Currently, the 175-acre farm operation including additional rented land, produces alfalfa, corn, soybeans, and barley to feed its 90-cow Hosltein herd and about 35 replacement animals.

In 1993, the barn was expanded and upgraded with 30 additional tie-stalls, a manure pit, and a tunnel ventilation system. The herd BAA is 106.2, and the rolling herd average (RHA) is about 21,000 pounds of milk, 792 pounds of fat and 680 pounds of protein.

More than half of this herd's lineage traces back to an Excellent cow that Harold had purchased in Canada. She produced many Very Good and Excellent offspring.

Sires currently being used by the Umbles include Mascot, Mandel, and Emory.

Some of the cows expected to be seen at Glen-Valley include:

- 10th generation Very Good, GV Blackstar Posh, a VG 87 with 31,000 pounds milk as a 3-year-old and a Leadman son at Atlantic Breeders Cooperative; GV Enhancer Pixie, VG 89 with 31,000 pounds milk for three generations;
- and 86-point Aerostar daughter on the elite list with a son going to AI, embryos to France, and other AI contracts;
- and an 88-point Blackstar daughter that is a third generation Very Good with more than 31,000 pounds milk, and a son going to AI.

Dunwood Farms

Most people are aware of Dunwood Farms, owned by Alvin Stoltzfus, of Oxford, in Chester County, because of the 1979 herd dispersal that featured Dunwood Chief Carmel.

This dispersal also contained 60 animals in the Golden family. This family was started with a cow purchased in 1953 by Alvin's father.

An invitational sale at the farm in 1988 also featured 60 members of the Golden family. Presently, there are about 40 members in the herd, representing the 13th generation at the farm. Of those 40, one is a 3-year-old Southwind daughter that freshened February and is milking about 100 pounds of milk per day. As a 2-year-old, this cow made 27,000 pounds of milk and scored 88 with an Excellent mammary during classification.

The Umbles farm about 150 acres. The 58-head herd has a BAA of 107.6 and an RHA of 25,743 pounds milk, 1,008 pounds fat, and 853 pounds protein. There are nine Leadman daughter and nine Blackstar daughters in the milking string.

Melwood Holsteins

Another well-known dairy in Chester County is the Melwood Holsteins operation owned by Melvin Stoltzfus.

This dairy farm also has its roots in the Dunwood herd. The herd was dispersed in the 1988 Dunwood invitational sale. Then the herd was started again in 1991, in the present 40 tie-stall barn.

The 45-cow herd averages 26,278 pounds of milk, 1,038 pounds of fat, and 861 pounds of protein, with a BAA of 106. In the milking string are five Blackstar daugthers, and five Leadman daughters, including a Leadman to county extension agent Anthony Betonte, who joined the extension office five years ago.

During the business portion of the extension meeting, new officers for the board were elected for 1995.

Roy Snoke replaced Peiffer as the board's president. Gayle Fry was elected vice president to succeed Eugene Hoefert. The job of secretary went to Kathy Walton, who replaced Stephanie Chertok in that position.

All of the new officers served on the board of directors last year.

New directors also were elected during the annual meeting. They are Cheryl Barrick, Sharon Carey, Alan Roper, Richard Ocker, Paul Hornbaker, John McGill, Glenn Kimmel, and Kris Speers.

Extension leaders had several achievements to highlight during the meeting.

One of the most notable things that happened last year involved the extension building itself. The building underwent an expansion that doubled its size.

It also was noted that one of the extension's agents, Laura Watts, was elected vice president of the Pennsylvania Association of County Agricultural Agents. She is the first woman to win election to that position, which eventually will lead to the presidency of the statewide association.

Last year was a busy year, too.

According to the extension's annual report, its agents handled 3,485 calls, made 3,926 visits and held 679 meetings that were attended by 24,818 people.

The county Dairy Herd Improvement Association had 114 members who enrolled 8,194 cows.

Cumberland County's 4-H program made a strong showing in 1994 with 168 adult leaders, 32 teen leaders and 1,612 club members who did 2,408 projects. The program touched 3,905 other youths in some way as well.

Peiffer summed up the situation pretty well in her message in the extension's official report for the 1993-94 service year.

"We feel that the board and staff have worked productively to identify the needs of our local communities and encouraged program priorities in relation to available time and staff," she said. "Our goal is always to improve the quality of life through a form of non-formal education programs based on tested scientific knowledge."

Grower Wins State Honors In Yield Competition

DEKALB, Ill. — A Pennsylvania Dekalb grain sorghum grower has won state honors in the 1994 National Grain Sorghum Producers (NGSP) yield and management contest.

Richard D. Schmalz of Doylestown earned first place in the state in the conventional tillage/non-irrigated category with DK28 producing 74.22 bushels/acre.

In all, Dekalb grain sorghum hybrids earned four national awards and 38 state awards. "Dekalb growers earned the most first, second and third place national and state awards in this tough competition," said Paul Holliday, Dekalb Genetics Corporation sorghum business unit manager. "Not only does this demonstrate the strength of our product line, but the fact that all these awards were won with not one or two, but 11 different hybrids, indicates the depth of the line as well."

The recently announced results show four national NGSP awards for Dekalb growers. National first place, conventional tillage/non-irrigated, was won by Kevin Tubbs, Long Island, Kans., with DK54 producing 186.73 bushels/acre. National second place, conventional tillage/irrigated, was won by Hershell Hill, Levelland, Texas, with DK66 producing 170.15 bushels/acre. National third place, conventional tillage/irrigated, was won by Mark Witt, Hooker, Okla., with DK66 producing 188.23 bushels/acre. National third place, no-till/non-irrigated, was won by Edward Nossick, Secretary, Md., with DK48 producing 155.62 bushels/acre.

In addition, the 38 state awards include 21 first place winners, up from 14 in 1993. Dekalb also won 63 county awards, up from 24 the previous year.

Lancaster Holstein Association

from the Cola/Carmel family fresh at 3 years, and milking 143 pounds milk.

In addition, the farm has a "New York" style heifer raising facility.

Even more unique is that this 240-acre operation (some rented) farm is working on becoming a "certified organic" operation through a national association (OCIA). There will be an opportunity during the tour to ask Mevling about raising crops and feeding cows "organically."

Walmoore Farms

Walmoore Farms is a corporate patnership consisting of Bill and Sally Moore, along with their son and daughter-in-law, Walt and Greta Moore.

The operation currently milks 540 cows on two separate farms, located about a mile apart. A new free stall complex, recently completed, will house 200 cows and concentrate more of the cows at one location.

The Moores operate with a futuristic and progressive approach to dairy farms and employee management. The herd is 100 percent artificially inseminated, and 90 percent registered.

There are from 15 to 20 people involved in the operation, with six to eight working fulltime. Altogether, they farm 1,000 acres.

New Bolton

While not a farm, a visit to the rural campus of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine is a very related and worthwhile stop for the tour.

The center is devoted to the care and treatment of large animals, and is a world-renowned treatment center for horses, as well as a facility specializing in the diagnosis and treatment of diseases that affect the health, production and profitability of food and fiber-producing animals.

The center, with close ties to the University's medical complex at the Philadelphia campus, is a major resource for Pennsylvania's agricultural industry.

The 600-acre campus has more than 70 buildings, including a hospital for large animals, clinical and research laboratories, classrooms, dormitories, and farm buildings.

One of the oldest structures is the historic 18th century Allam House, that serves as a hub of guest and conference activities.

Along with a tour of the center, Dr. Bill Chalupa, involved with nutrition research at the center, is to talk about "The Transitional Cow."

Dinner

Those with previous experience dining at the West Fallowfield Christian Day School in Atglen already know what good food they can expect to be served by the school auxiliary.

Following dinner, the bus is to return to the Farm and Home Center.

milk, commuting to college, coming home to milk again and then attending to studies in the evening.

When Marlin Hoff and his family bought the farm, machinery and equipment from his dad, he had 80 cows and 80 heifers. Today, the couple farms about 2,000 acres, with about 1,500 acres of that tillable. They have a total of 350 cows, (310 milking), and 600 heifers. They milk in the double 20 parrell milking parlor which they added to the farm in 1990. Their sons, Ian and Matthew help farm at Cold Springs Farm. Last year, with 365 cows milking they had a rolling herd average of 21,376 pounds of milk with 3.6 percent fat and 33 percent protein. The Hoffs grow and feed their own grain, hay and silage most of the time, sometimes selling their overage.

In 1990, Marlin Hoff and his family decided to scale back their operation. At the time they were working two farms, including a rented addition, and milking as many as 400 cows at a time. They held a large sale called The Heart of Cold Spring Sale. They sold 250 head of cattle, some of their best, at the sale.

"Since the sale, we've just been trying to get the herd back to as good as it was," Hoff says. "We've flushed a lot and got down in numbers a lot, but we are almost back to where we were again."

Before becoming a member on the board of the National Holstein Association, Marlin was an active State member and served as the Maryland State Holstein Association president in 1977 and 1978. When Maryland hosted the National Convention in 1989, Mr. Hoff was chairman of the convention.

"I think we have made the National Holstein Association more consumer friendly, or people friendly over the years," he says. "Instead of dictating strict programs, we've tried to involve a larger segment of our members. We've diversified a lot of our programs to fit into more situations on larger farms. We've tried to simplify the process of registration and make it easier for large and small farmers to register and still have it very correct as far as information is concerned." Hoff says that the National Holstein Association has worked hard to change classification to meet the needs of more dairy farmers.

Pa.DHIA To Hold 7th Corporate Meeting

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association has made changes throughout the past year, and this year is no different.

Instead of the typical two-day annual meeting of the Pa.DHIA, this year's program is to consist of a one-day corporate meeting, from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., Friday, March 10, at the Penn State Days Inn, in State College.

If overnight accommodations are requested in the registration, meeting delegates and attendees can arrive the evening of Thursday, March 9, and attend a 7 p.m. session designed to orient county committee members on local committee responsibilities, and state and national obligations.

The day starts with the annual association awards breakfast, and continues through with the corporate meeting.

While the annual meeting is designed to serve as a forum between the association board of directors and county delegates, all members are invited to attend the meeting, and overnight accommodations can be made available if registrations are received by Pa.DHIA by March 1.

A number of issues affecting Pa.DHIA specifically, and the industry more broadly are to be addressed and discussed during the day.

A featured speaker is to be Bob Turner, representative from Westfalia Corp., to discuss where Westfalia is going in the future with software. The Pa.DHIA currently promotes the use of Dairy Plan, a software program for dairy producers that can help them become more aware of the health of their farm operation and manage it appropriately.

There is no charge to county delegates to attend the meeting, to stay overnight, or for the associated meals.

However, other costs, such as transportation and telephone charges are to be borne by the delegates. For accompanying spouses, the delegate are responsible to pay for the spouse's meals and the price difference for overnight accommodations.

To register, fill out a registration form and send a check payable to "PA DHIA" to Pa.DHIA, Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16801. Make the letter to the attention of Dixie Burris.

For more information, call 1-800-344-8378.

DAVID BIGELOW
Pa.DHIA Training Coordinator

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pa. DHIA is glad to have Sue Baird as their DHIA technician serving the New Jersey dairymen.

Sue was born in Morristown on June 13, 1970, and raised in Parsippany, N.J., where she attended the Littleton Elementary School and went on to junior high school at Brooklawn, N.J., and proceeded to Parsippany Hills High School, from ninth through her 12th grade year.

In 1988, Sue enrolled at the State University of New York (SUNY), located in Cobleskill, N.Y., majoring in agricultural business.

It was at this point in Sue's life that she said she "... dived head first into agriculture."

In 1990, she graduated from SUNY and attended Penn State University majoring in agricultural economics, graduating from PSU in 1992.

Sue also has experience in the beef business. After graduation from Penn State University, she volunteered her time in assisting in the everyday care of show animals on a beef farm in New Jersey.

Over the past several years, Sue has been involved in a number of organizations, such as the Cobleskill Dairy Club, National Agri-Marketing Association, Penn State Dairy Science Club, and the Block and Bridle Club. She is also a member of the Parsippany Presbyterian Church.

Prior to working for Pa. DHIA, she was employed at the International Trade Zone, in Mt. Olive, N.J.

She currently resides in Great Meadows, N.J., with her father and sister.

Sue started working for Pa.DHIA on June 10, 1994, on a part-time basis. The Sussex County area was her main responsibility, which consisted of 12 herds. With the resignation of another

Eastern Milk Members In Washington

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Eastern Milk Producers' members and staff stormed the capital this week in an effort to communicate dairymen's needs to Congress. With the 1995 Farm Bill looming in the not-too-distant future, EMP members were sure to make their message known to legislators while making rounds with the Northeast Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC).

"Even though you as members are quite small, your value to the community is quite high," said Bob Gray, executive director of NCFC, in an address to the Eastern delegation. "These legislative visits give farmers a personal contact here that they can connect with about issues that are important to the Northeast dairy industry."

Some issues of great importance to the cooperative are the preservation of Federal Milk Marketing Orders, control of assessments, and funding for environmental mandates.

These issues, and more, were also addressed during discussions with Representative Steve Gunderson, Wisconsin, chairman of the House agriculture subcommittee on dairy and livestock. He highlighted two issues of vital importance in the upcoming bill.

"The purchase program is wide open for discussion," he noted. "We realize there needs to be a mechanism for transition to a free market. We need to research it, but I think we are just dumb if we don't figure out how to have support to take advantage of exports."

"Secondly, the reality is that if we don't solve the Federal Milk Marketing Order dispute across the country, there will be no FMMO system. We're going to articulate a lot of questions and you need to discuss this with other regions of the country. "I've got to plead with you that our door is open. Talk to us."

And talking is just what the cooperative did. Several of Eastern's cooperative officers, directors, staff, and Young Cooperators voiced their opinions on dairy issues to their Senators and Representatives. YCs gave some insight into the challenges meeting beginning farmers in the current dairy climate, as well as learned about the legislative process and their role in it. They stressed the importance that a personal contact with legislators plays in their future.

"I am one dairy farmer who will go home from here with a new understanding of the process," said Jackie Root, a Young Cooperator from Lawrenceville. "I will write letters and call my Congressman about issues that are important to me because I feel that real people will listen to me." Gray agreed.

"It's important to touch base with your legislators," he stressed. "Not only do you make that contact for yourself and your business, but you also give them a resource to call on if they have a question about your industry."

technician in the Warren County area in August, there came the opportunity for Sue to work full time. Her circuit of 12 herds quickly grew to 26 herds.

When talking to Sue about her job responsibilities as a technician, it doesn't take long to realize that she truly loves her job.

When Sue was asked what she likes most about working as a Pa.DHIA technician, she quickly said that she enjoys the realtionships that have been developed through working with dairymen; the idea of being associated with the dairy industry; and just being able to wave to her dairymen as she passes them on the road.

She said the knowledge and experience gained through working as a technician is unmeasurable.

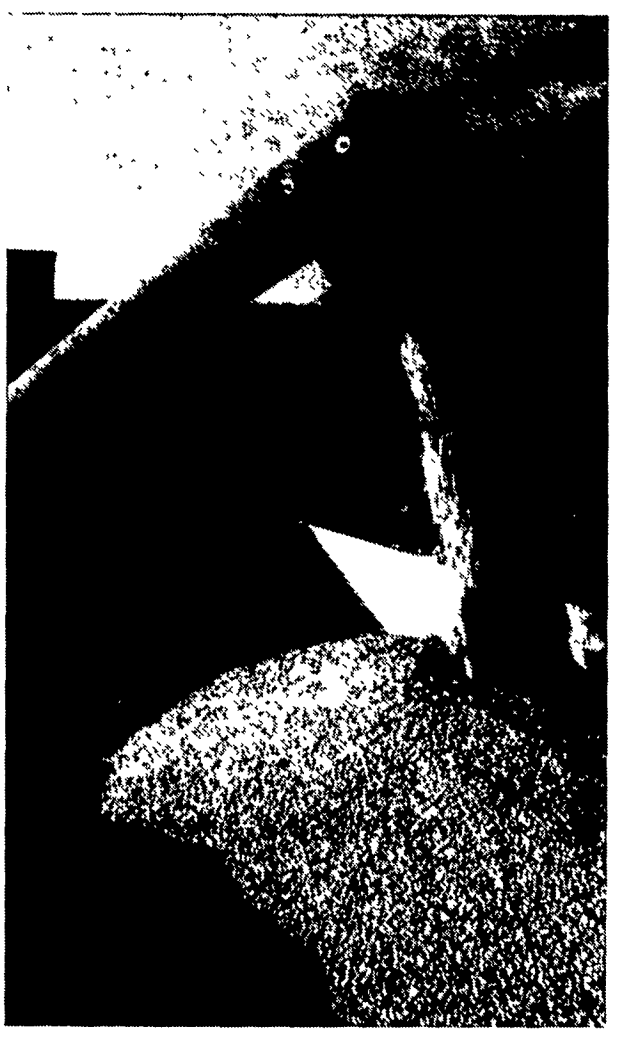
Workshop Set For Lancaster

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A March 3 workshop to be held at the Lancaster County Extension Office is to focus on how to use Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association reports to help make smart decision for improving herd profits.

The workshop, "How To Use Pa.DHIA Reports," is open to all dairymen, and is to be presented by Glen Shirk, Lancaster County Extension dairy agent.

The workshop is to start at 12:30 p.m. and end about 2:30 p.m. No reservations are necessary.

Glen is to go over the Pa.DHIA herd management reports. He is to provide clues on how to make smart decisions and use the reports for early detection of potential problems.



There's something extra in a starter fertilizer program.

Starter fertilizers unlock benefits for corn farmers. They stimulate seedling growth, hasten crop maturity, improve crop tolerance to some insects, increase crop competition with weeds and frequently increase yields, particularly in production fields featuring conservation tillage and irrigation. Starter fertilizers make crop production more environmentally sound because they improve fertilizer uptake efficiency.

The agronomic benefits of starter fertilizers increase crop productivity and profits from corn production.

Agri-Education Seminar Teaches How To Take Farm To Higher Ground

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — About 375 persons attended the CoreStates Hamilton Bank Agri-Education Seminar to learn how to take their business and personal lives to higher ground.

The day-long seminar held Thursday at the Farm and Home Center offered perspectives on economics, working with people, political influences, future trends, and balancing work and family life.

It was the 14th year that Corestates has offered the educational seminar to its customers.

"It's our commitment to taking agricultural seriously," said Joseph Del Tito, executive vice president of the bank.

Professor David Kohl led off the day with a session on "Agriculture 2000 and Beyond: How Do We Get To Higher Ground?"

Kohl focused on strategic planning by predicting megatrends in agriculture.

"To be successful, you must intergrate family, business, and personal life," said Kohl. "If you work more than 3,000 hours on the farm or spend more than 500 hours off the farm in a year, your family life will suffer."

While encouraging farmers to be innovative in marketing their products while keeping abreast of changing trends, Kohl also warned of the need to keep overhead low.

Don't even bring your son into the farm business if you can't generate at least another $150,000 in net income, he said.

"And, don't hire people you can't fire — like your son-in-law," he said.

These two reasons have been the downfall of many successful farming operations, according to Kohl.

Kohl said farmers should make it a priority to obtain disability insurance because a farmer over 40 years of age has a one in five chance of being disabled from a few days to many months each year.

Dr. H. Louis Moore, professor of agriculture economics at Penn State, reviewed both positive and negative signs in the national economy. He believes that ag economy in general will be about the same, perhaps a bit more favorable, than last year.

Because agriculture will become a smaller part of the total economy, he said that farmers will need to keep up to date on markets, cut more deals in purchasing and marketing, become more specialized, seek more off-farm income, and have more pressure to become even more efficient.

While the 1995 Farm Bill will be lean with no parity, he forsees that lower prices for commodities will be offset by lower feed prices.

In an effort to include the younger generation entering agricultural fields, the bank invited local FFA students and had Marci Harnish, FFA state vice president and former alternate state dairy princess, tell how youth are being prepared for work in agriculture. She told about the many ways that FFA prepares its 428,000 members for success in leadership and agriculture careers.

Carl Clayton, marketing consultant, focused on the four personal behavioral styles and how people relate to each other. After reviewing the characteristics of each behavioral style, he gave guidelines to improve flexibility and how to better understand and cooperate with family members and coworkers.

"It's attitude not aptitude that dermines your altitude," Clayton said of the need for effective relationships to reach higher levels in business and personal life.

Since politics in Washington affects farming operations, John Blanchfield, associate director of American Bankers Association, told how ag policy is affected by the political events in Washington during the last 12 months.

Because every body in Washington wants to cut taxes, Blanchfield said the Farm Bill will be lean and light. He predicts since U.S. Sen. Bob Dole and two other of the most powerful men in the Farm Bill debate are from the wheat belt, that wheat farmers will receive more favorable policy than other types of farmers.

Blanchfield said farmers should do the following to help their business and their family life reach higher ground:

• Spend $50 to buy crop insurance by March 15.

• If debt is on a short-term note look into a fixed rate before the first half of this year.

• Prepare estate, retirement, and business succession plans.

• Increase your understanding of hedging future options.

• Prepare your own financial statements.

• Stay current on the Farm Bill debate and capital gains tax.

• Call a lender and invite him for lunch for no particular reason — things look more favorable on a full stomach.

• If you belong to a farm organization, pay your dues not. If you don't belong to one — join one.

• Plan a getaway weekend.

• Agree to see one movie before it comes out in video.

Iowa farmer Wayne Humphreys challenged the audience with a humorous talk on how to become the best.

Each seminar participant received a workbook, "Blueprint for Farm Financial Success," to help farmers understand the bankers' financial viewpoint and how agricultural producers should collect and organize their own financial data.

State Holstein Convention Sale Has $8,600 Top

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

West Middlesex (Mercer Co.) — A two-year-old Mascot daughter sold for $8,600 to top the Pennsylvania Holstein Convention sale held Thursday evening in the ballroom of the Radisson Inn.

Imperial-C Mascot Card-ET went under the gavel to buyer Dave Yutzy, Timberville, VA. Condinding bidder was Lyle Haven Farms, Montpelier, VT. The tall fancy heifer sired by Singing-Brood N-B Mascot-ET was consigned by Tom Wilson, Imperial C Breeders, Saegertown.

Card's dam is a VG Black Star. Her 2nd and 3rd dams were both Ex GM and her 4th dam was 3E-92. Fresh in September for the first time, she scored VG-8g. She carries a PTPI of plus 1181 and has already been flushed.

Second high in the sale at $7,100 was Keystone Dale Colleen, an Ex-90 4-year old consigned by the Donald Seipt families, Keystone Farm, Easton. The bidding for Colleen became spirited between state Holstein president Laszlo Moses and former state president Arthur Baxter. When the gavel cracked down the winner was Baxter and Steve Dillon, Stoneboro.

Colleen completed her 3-year lactation with over 24,000 pounds of milk and is projected to over 25,300 lbs. as a 4-year-old. Her dam is a 2E-90 Starwars daughter and her 3E-93 Valiant granddam are both GM. Her 3rd dam is Ex-91.

The third high in the sale of deep pedigrees and stylish offerings was a yearling heifer consigned by Junge Farms, New Tripoli. Junge Adan Cassidy sold for $4,500 to the OK Syndicate, Teutopolin, IL. She carries a PTPI of plus 1,321 and has a lineage of five generations of VG and EX dams.

A total of 65 head sold through the popular annual convention sale and averaged an unofficial average of $2,288.

About 375 people attended CoreStates Hamilton Agri-Education Seminar to learn how to take their farming businesses and their personal lives to higher ground.

Lancaster Sets Two Dairy Days

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — You are invited to attend the two Lancaster County dairy days Tuesday, Feb. 28 and Tuesday, March 7, at the Farm and Home Center. Starting time both days is 9 a.m. Lunch tickets may be purchased until 11 a.m.

The first day the theme is to improve herd profits through cow comfort, good udder health, and with well-designed, properly operated milking systems.

The second day offers information to prepare to meet the 21st century with emphasis on business management of the farm and profitable management of the herd. Glenn Shirk, dairy extension agent, said the program is different both days. It features a blend of successful producers who are preparing to meet the 21st century, plus veterinarians, ag leaders, and university personnel.

In addition to "managing dairy herds for profit," the program also addresses the business side of dairying and how producers can work to maintain a competitive edge in the years ahead. The morning program on March 7 provides an opportunity for those who attend the first presentation to earn some pesticide training credits.

The program for both days, along with the speakers' list follows:

Results From Scrapie Program Poll

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Voluntary Scrapie Flock Certification Program polled Pennsylvania sheep producers' perceptions of the Voluntary Scrapie Flock Certification Program.

The poll, one of the first of its kind in the nation, sought feedback from producers to enable the board to be more responsive in addressing the concerns of Pennsylvania shepherds. The board is made up of representatives from producer groups, allied industry, and state and federal regulatory personnel.

Questionnaires were sent to more than 1,300 sheep producers in the state of Pennsylvania last summer. Of the 12 percent responding, 48 percent of the active producers indicated willingness to participate in the program. Of the respondents, 68 percent reported having received information on the Voluntary Scrapie Flock Certification Program from the extension service. Sixty percent received information from magazines, 53 percent from private veterinarians, 39 percent from meetings, 25 percent from the mail, 22 percent from the state and nine percent from the federal government.

A full 82 percent of producers responding considered the scrapie program to be worthwhile, with 48 percent of producers willing to participate in the voluntary program. A little half of the producers (51 percent) thought problems existed in the program. However, 74 percent of this same group thought the program was worthy just the same. Addressing producer perceptions, roughly one third felt one problem area was regulatory involvement and almost half of the producers viewed funding for the program as a problem.

Half of the producers who perceived problems with the voluntary program viewed animal ID as a concern. Approximately one third of the sheep producers felt lack of adequate manpower to be a concern—this same number, about a third, felt oversight of the program to be a problem. Ten percent of the producers were concerned about program delivery.

The success of the Voluntary Scrapie Flock Certification Program is dependent on producer participation. Producers who see problems in the program are less likely to see the program as worthwhile. The results of the Pennsylvania poll showed no specific type of problem predominating. Since the extension service and magazines were cited most frequently as providing producers with information, these avenues should be utilized effectively for transfer of information to producers, rather than relying on state and federal agencies to disseminate information.

Reasons cited by producers for not participating in the program reflected lack of familiarity with the Voluntary Scrapie Flock Certification Program and lack of understanding of scrapie as a disease process itself. It is not a disease of "black-face sheep" anymore, but is found in white-face sheep as well. One area for the board to serve the state's producers would seem to be in the supplying of basic educational materials on the program and the disease itself. This information is currently available in the form of fact sheets, and is available, free of charge, by contacting Dr. Max Van Buskirk, Pa. Dept. of Agriculture, Harrisburg, (717) 783-5301.

Producers were helpful in supplying feedback to the board in terms of suggestions made. Among the suggestions, two general themes emerged: one, for a stronger leadership role for government (the government should make participation mandatory and government should pay for all costs to the producer participating in the program because documenting healthy sheep is not enough of an incentive). The second theme which evolved was the perceived need for more information on the program itself—what the protocols are for showing sheep, lost eartags, dead sheep, and more nuts-and-bolts information pertaining to the daily incidents that will occur while participating in the voluntary scrapie program.

The board members will spend the next few months designing strategies to best serve Pennsylvania shepherds, based on impressions and information gathered as a result of this survey.

For more information on the survey, or information on the Pennsylvania Voluntary Scrapie Flock Certification Program, contact Dr. van Buskirk at the Pa. Dept. of Agriculture in Harrisburg (717) 783-5301, or Dr. Ulysses J. Lance, VS, ASPHIS, USDA, Harrisburg, (717) 782-3442.

Adams Starts Membership Drive

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — A membership campaign kick-off meeting of the Adams County Farm Bureau was held recently at Hoss's Steak and Sea House in Gettysburg.

Louis Sallie, adminstrative secretary of the state Farm Bureau, was guest speaker. Sallie has served as secretary since 1992 and previously was with the American Farm Bureau as director of field service for the northeast region.

He said, "The importance of staying organized as a farm bureau and active in local legislation are two of the main functions of being members in the Adams County Farm Bureau.

"It is critical to maintain contact with our legislators, since less than 1.6 percent of the population is within the farming industry," he said. "We need to remain a strong voice to be heard."

Sallie, who holds a bachelor's degree in social science from West Virginia's Bluefield State College, began his career working with the New York Farm Bureau for 10 years before joining the national organization.

Joel Waybright, committee chairperson, said, "Membership is the lifeblood of the organization. the membership of the organization is responsible for the development of local policies which are presented as resolutions to the state association to be used for the lobbying effort on the state and national levels for the farming community's benefit."

The Adams Count Farm Bureau has a membership listing of 900 farm family members. While the local bureau began a membership drive in September with a mail campaign, it launched a farmer-to-farmer program with the goal of reaching each eligible person for membership.

Mifflin County Holstein Meeting Held

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

ALLENSVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — "I'm not here to speak as a national director," began Ron Wood of Mansfield. "I'm here as a fellow breeder and Holstein enthusiast."

A good turnout of Mifflin County Holstein Club members and friends met at the Allensville Country Village Restaurant to hear this world-renowned Holstein breeder. Wood dairy farms in partnership with his father and brother. He serves as a director to the National Holstein Club Association. After giving a brief history of his 3,000-acre farm operation, Wood talked about successful breeding practices they use on their dual herds that total 167 head.

Dave Spicher of Belleville received the distinguished service award from Mifflin County Holstein Club.

Wood listed three goals they strive for when breeding cows — breeding for cows that will last at least 10 years with 30,000 lb potential, breeding for cows to score very good at the least, and then breeding for a possible show cow.

"We breed cows to please ourselves. What works in your neighbors herd may not work in yours."

Wood said they breed to improve the mother. After several carvings, they can see if any pattern is developing regardless of the sire used. Wood said there are no bad bulls, just bad matings. He encouraged breeders to read and digest sale (dispersal) catalogs and to study pedigrees.

Wood called the pedigree the most important document an owner can own, seeing it as a documentation of parentage.

"The registration paper is only as good as the cow. There are a lot of great grade cows that need papers and a lot of merchandized registered bad cows. Merchandizing is easier and quicker with a pedigree."

In other general comments, Wood said to be careful of the financial risks of embryo transfer. He sees land as a most valuable asset, and practices a lot of pasturing after the first cutting. Wood describes breeding as an art and encouraged farmers to set goals and to never be satisfied. He reminded fellow breeders that we are all stewards of God's world.

In answering questions, Wood said that all of their heifers are bred to their own bulls. They market 125 to 150 animals per year because of limited space. Out of 300 heifers, 100 are bred all the time and 5 to 6 go to the beef pen. He concluded by saying that each farmer knows his cows best. He encouraged farmers to become involved in milk marketing and to sell a good product.

Earlier in the program, the Club awarded their Distinguished Service Award to Dave Spicher of Belleville. The award goes to someone who has given many years of unselfish service to the Holstein Club. Spicher has chaired both the show and sale committees and has received many breeding awards.

The highest BM award went to Vern-Lee Holsteins of McVeytown. Owned by Russell Kline, his herd average is 107.2.

Darv Yoder presented the Junior Membership report. Citing an active 4-H Holstein Club, Yoder thanked the Holstein Association for the Youth Fair premiums. He presented $433 in premiums to more than 20 youth. Yoder said he hopes to see another judging team this year led again by Sue Sellers of Belleville.

Paul Neer of Belleville reported for the show committee. This past year's dairy show during the MifFlin County Youth Fair saw 86 entries, 69 of which were youth. Neer said it was the biggest year for first year members (8). He encouraged more to show at the Youth Fair. Neer said Mifflin County is one of the few counties that hands out trophies and premiums.

Elected to serve on the board of directors are, from left, Robert Peachey, Loren K. Yoder, and Victor Yoder.

The Mifflin County Summer Classic Sale will be held August 17. Neer reported that proceeds will go to help the youth and to pave the alleyways at the Mifflin County Youth Park. Selection of animals for the sale has already started. He said they may include eight to ten good grade Holsteins this year.

Darren Peachey gave the Pennsylvania Holstein report. The State Convention will be held February 23-25. The Spring Showcase Sale will be at the Holstein Association farm in Middletown.

Mifflin County Extension Director Dave Filson presented the top DHIA Management award to Darren and Caryn Peachey of Belleville. The High Protein Award went to Rod Kauffman. He listed a series of meetings scheduled for February and March including Dairy MAP, dairy nutrition teleconferences, weed school, and pesticide tests. Filson introduced Dairy Extension Agent Dave Swarm who is stationed in Perry but who also services Juniata and Mifflin Counties.

Loren K. Yoder, Robert Peachey, and Victor Yoder were elected to the Mifflin County Holstein Club's board of directors.

Mifflin County Dairy Princess Erin Goss quizzed the crowd about cheese with a "Name the Cheese" handout. In her talk, Goss said that there are about 430 Department of Agriculture approved cheese factories in 30 states of the United States.

Dairy Breeds For Grazing

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Dairy farmers intent on making the conversion to an intensive grazing system on their farm is the focus of a series of workshops offered through Penn State Cooperative Extension in March. The Southeast Dairy Grazing School will be held March 9, 16, and 23, 1995, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Harvest Drive Restaurant, Intercourse, PA.

"We are interested in working with a small group of producers who want to take the time to think about how they will incorporate grazing on the farm, says Glenn Shirk, Extension Agent, Lancaster County. During the workshop, producers will redesign their farm using the soil survey maps. At the end of the workshop, producers will walk away with a plan. We also want them to have the support of their feed dealer and veterinarian. If producers want to develop additional on-farm support throughout the growing season, we intend to discuss that too."

The workshop is limited to 25 participants. The registration fee, due March 1, is $40.00 for all three meetings and includes the noon meal For more information, contact Glenn A. Shirk, Lancaster Cooperative Extension Office, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster, PA 17601-3149, phone.717-394-6851, FAX 717-394-3962.

Maryland DHIA Report For January

The January 1994 Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd. To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of 3.5 percent fat corrected milk per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test.

Also listed are the top 10 herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top eight herds for Ayrshires.

4-H and FFA shows and should be required to notify any open shows in which he plans to participate that he has been penalized in 4-H/FFA due to illegal activity. Each Livestock Show Committee should investigate all rumors of questionable actions and should try to keep abreast of any form of abuse.

I'd also like to make a few comments on 4-H and the show ring in general. First, I'd like to state my qualifications. My wife and I raised four children who entered 4-H as soon as they were old enough and continued in it to the maximum age limit. All four are now mature adults. My wife and I both were (and still are) 4-H leaders. Our family was extremely fortunate in winning the PA Farm Show steer show with champions, reserve champions, and the last year with champion and reserve from the family herd. Our two oldest children spent a lot of time in what you might call the lower end of the class standings. The younger children "hit the jackpot" with winnings. Why? Raising cattle was a trial and error, learning experience for our entire family. But once we got our act together, it clicked. We never purchased any high-priced breeding stock. We did buy good quality cows, but not at extremely high prices. We raised our own replacement heifers and our own herd sire and of course we showed the animals that we bred and raised. That's satisfaction and excitement.

We also fitted our own cattle. Some of our kids were good showmen and fitters and some were mediocre. But all four worked hard and were dedicated and did the best they could for their ability. We still show breeding cattle in the open shows and we have won our fair share of championships. In the 1995 PA State Farm Show, we had the Supreme Champion Bull over all breeds.

So what's the secret? 4-H is a 50/50 deal. 50% is the animal. 50% is the child. Neither can do it all. Of course, you do need a good animal to start with. So breed the best that you economically can. Don't pin your hopes on high-priced cattle. Start early with a calf. Feed it right. Groom it and train it the best that you can. If possible, make 4-H/FFA part of a family/parent/child relationship. Put your heart and soul into it and give it your best shot. A lot of people think you need an expensive calf. Play the lottery if you wish, but be aware of the odds of winning. And winning is not everything. You should not have that as your only goal. Go for it, but if you don't make it, don't be depressed. Many real winners have never gotten the purple ribbons or stood near the top of the show ring. But look at all the parent/child/family relationships, friends, maturity, and leadership that 4-H and FFA bring. Ribbons, trophies, and money can't buy that.

I have spent over 50 years around 4-H and the show ring. I've seen a lot. I still get tense and yes I do jump and holler if we win. That's excitement. But we also learn to lose. And I admit sometimes it hurts a little until I reflect on life and our family and all our blessings. That's what 4-H is all about.

Cattlemen's Workshop Set

The Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association presents a cattlemen's production workshop at noon Wednesday, March 1, 1995, at the Leesport Farmer's Market. Dr. John Comerford, Penn State extension beef specialist, will discuss the topic "How Much is a Bull Worth?" In addition, Dr. Lynn Sammons from the Willow Creek Animal Hospital will discuss current health topics for Pennsylvania cattlemen.

The program is sponsored by the membership of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association with cooperation from Penn State University and the Pennsylvania Livestock Marketing Association.

SRBC Ag Committee Supports Proposed Regulations

land's water registration program and talked about consumptive use in agriculture. In short, Maryland has instituted a purely informational program of registration and priority volunteer management, with respect to its water uses.

Over broader interest to all farmers was the presentation on regulations proposed by the SRBC.

The SRBC is an autonomous, federal-state compact with the responsibility and authority to regulate the flow of water within the entire basin of the Susquehanna River. That basin includes portions of New York state, Pennsylvania, and Maryland.

The commission members are the heads of the respective state environmental agencies and the United State secretary of the interior.

The agency formed in 1970 and since created a series of regulations that were not necessarily formed to interlock smoothly.

Last summer, the SRBC proposed a complete revision of all its regulations, in order to eliminate confusion, frustration, and wasted time.

The regulations should be consider to be two-parts.

One part deals with the function of commission, such as how it will hold meetings, how it administers its water-withdrawl approval process, and how it registers and tracks water use within the basin.

This is the part that is now under consideration.

The second part of the regulations — which are not now being considered for approval — deal with controlling the removal of water from the basin above natural losses due to water use.

This second portion of the regulations was the most contested last summer, especially by agricultural interests.

As it was proposed, a "make-up" requirement would have been charged to "consumptive" users of water, including agricultural uses.

Water is consumed within the basin when it is changed from its liquid state into a gaseous state. As an example, the steam clouds rising above the cooler tower at Three-Mile Island nuclear power facility are an example of taking river water and removing it from the basin.

It was reported that during a severe drought, as much as 40 percent of the river would be converted and diverted out of the river flows by such actions.

As a way of making up for these losses to the river's flow, the SRBC had proposed either arranging to stockpile water reserves to be used during drought, or paying a compensatory fee. With the funds raised, the SRBC would pay the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to release water from up-river reservoirs to augment the flows of the drought-stricken river.

The proposal had included fees for agriculture. The resulting debate largely resulted in an acknowledgement by the SRBC that traditional agricultural operations within the basin — those that maintain a large amount of land capable of accepting rainfall and recharging the groundwater — perhaps actually provide more benefit to the river.

At the same time, public water companies were proposed to also fall under the consumptive regulations, since they are controlling the sale of providing water in large quantities.

The water companies have balked, complaining that the water consumed by their customers is not under their control; that the companies are merely the providers of water and shouldn't be held responsible for the lack of water conservation.

All of these issues and more, which affect the consumption of water and its makeup (including how much credit agriculture gets for maintaining beneficial watershed and how it is determined), have been put on hold since the eight public hearing held last summer.

The regulations that are on the table now would require agricultural users of water which withdraw in excess of 10,000 gallons per day (on a 30-day use average) from either groundwater or surface water to register that use with the SRBC.

All agricultural organizations and supporters present at the meeting urged the support for this portion of the regulations.

The registration of water use by agriculture will protect those who may well likely find themselves in dispute with others attempting to take water from the same aquifer or surface water source.

According to David Heicher, representative of the SRBC, the SRBC prioritizes agricultural water use as a second level priority. Residential uses and non-emergency uses have less priority.

If a farmer's use of water is documented, the SRBC will have record of that and that record can be used in the future to protect the rights of the farmer to continue to use at least that much.

Though the future of regulations isn't known, with demand upon limited water supplies ever-increasing, increased controversey over proprietary uses can be expected.

The registration of water use would be simple, according to Leon Ressler, who also happens to sit on the SRBC agricultural advisory board. The SRBC would provide a simple, one-page form to complete.

Ressler said that while purposefully inflated reports of farm water uses (which some might consider possibly doing for the purpose of ensuring access to more than currently used water supplies) would not be allowed, farmers are encouraged to provide the peak amount of water used during a 30-day average, even if it doesn't break the 10,000 gpd threshhold.

Ressler said that, for example, a farmer used 30,000 gpd during 1991, then that should be the amount registered with the SRBC. He explained that registering that level of water use is what can protect the farm's use of water during future shortages, and potential water disputes.

Several present at the meeting reported already having had disputes with neighbors over water uses.

One man reported being sued by a residential neighbor who erroneously thought that the farmer, who was irrigating crops out of a surface pond, was causing the residential well to go dry.

Other, similar situations were reported.

Also, given the history of non-farming and farming community debates over nutrient management, and other environmental concerns, logic and science are not particularly the stronghold of the general public when it comes assigning responsibility for causing a problem — people will see one peice of irrigation equipment in a field along a road, but not the thousands of clothes and dish washers, garden hoses and watered lawns, or washed cars, etc.

In an SRBC news release that was created specifically for the agricultural community, the proposals have been concisely reported.

According to the release, the SRBC is to hold a public hearing to receive final comments on this first portion — the non-consumptive — of regulations starting 9 a.m., March 9, at the Radisson Penn Harris Hotel and Convention Center, in Camp Hill. The hearing is to be held in conjunction with the commission's regularly held meeting, which occur once every two months.

According to the news release, "Comments on the proposed regulation revisions will be accepted until the close of the hearing on March 9, when fianal action is expected to be taken.

"No application, registration, or water use fees of any kind are proposed for agricultural projects under the proposed revisions. The revisions will make the regulations easier to understand, and help to streamline the approval process."

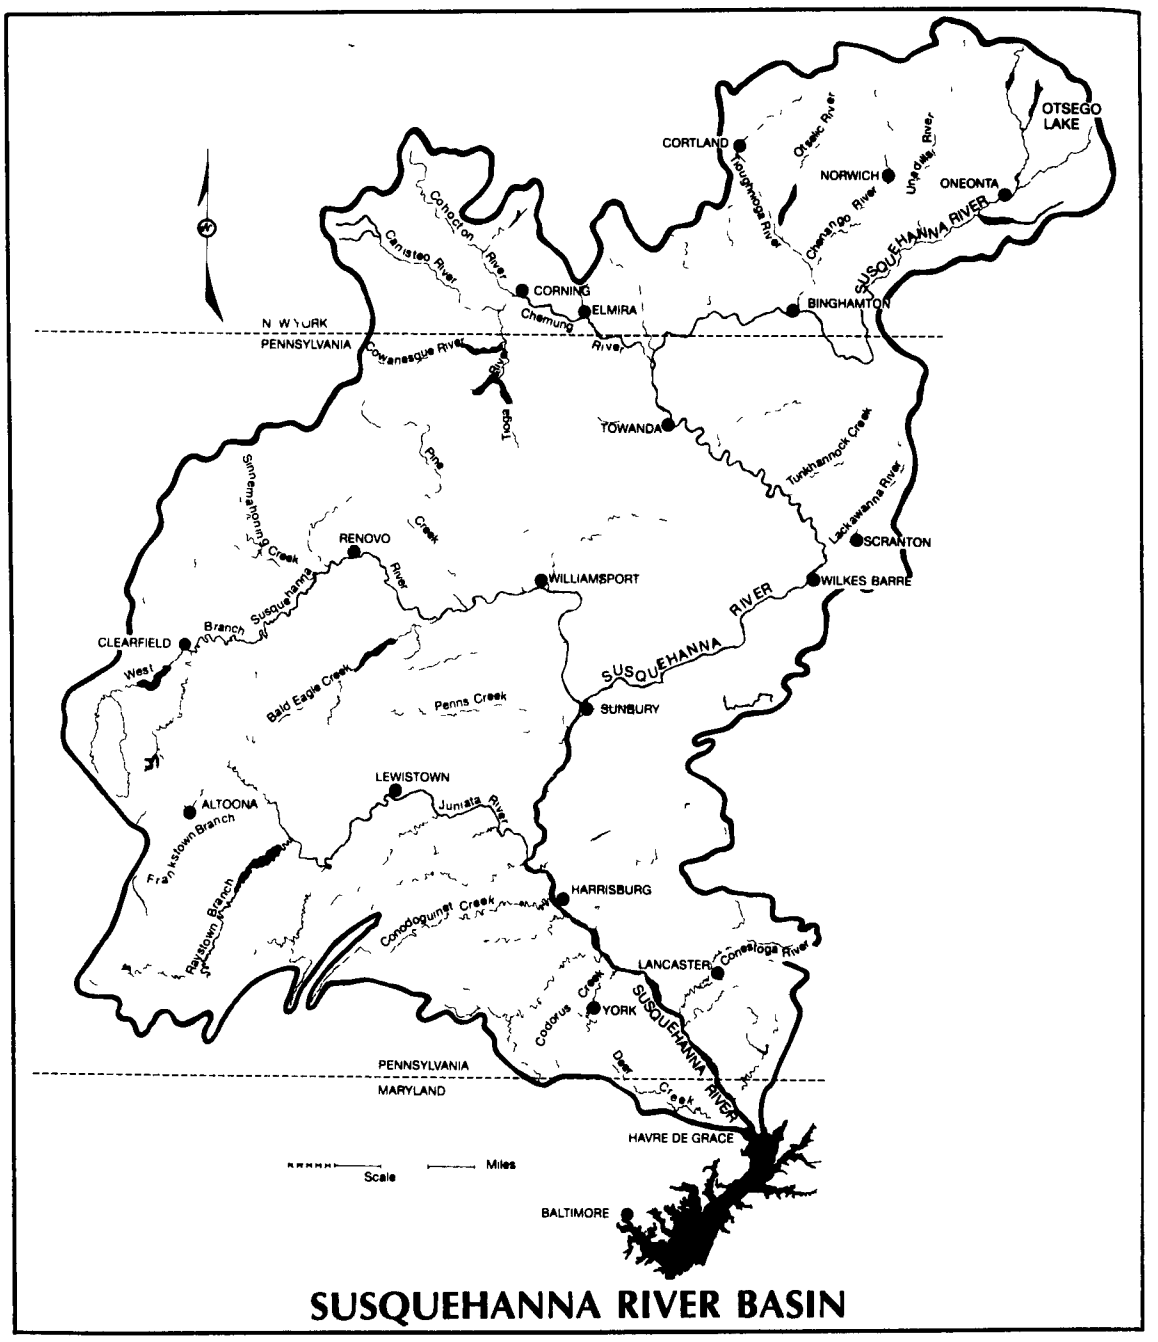
The release also further defined that those withdrawing more than 10,000 gpd will be required to register that use with the commission. (Special meters will not be necessary. Water uses can be calculated by a variety of methods, ranging from the amount of time a pump of a specific capacity was used to the type and number of livestock being watered.)

And it also reports that "Small farming operations with less than 10,000 gallons per day will not be required to register their water use, but are encouraged to do so in order for the commission to be able to provide more protection of their water needs. Typical projects using more than 10,000 gallons per day include:

- "dairy operation with more than 200 cows;
- "beef cow/calf operation with more than 250 cows;
- "swine farrow to finish operation with more than 250 sows;
- "swine feeder production operation with more than 900 sows;
- "poultry layer operation with more than 125,000 chickens (no evaporative cooling system);
- "poultry broiler or pullet operation with more than 250,000 chickens (no evaporative cooling system)."

"All new surface water withdrawals that are greater than 10,000 gallons per day will need to be approved by the commission."

For more information on the topic, contact a local farm organization representative, extension office, or the SRBC at (717) 238-0423.



SUSQUEHANNA RIVER BASIN

Farmers in the Susquehanna River Basin should consider the free registration of their water use as a means to protect their farm's interest in future water use, according to agricultural supporters.

Judging Contest At Beef Expo

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 1995 PA Beef Expo is adding a judging contest to its slate of activities. This first-ever expo judging contest, aimed at testing the skills of cattle enthusiasts of all ages, will held on Saturday, March 11, beginning with registration at 7 a.m. and competition at 8 a.m.

Advanced registration is not required, but a $2 individual entry fee will be charged to help defray contest expenses.

The contests will feature three age divisions based on the contestant's age on the day of the contest: Beginner (12 years and younger); Intermediate (age 13 through 20; and Adult (21 years and older).

Everyone will compete as an individual. Winners will be announced during the cattle sales on Saturday afternoon, and the top 10 individuals in each division will receive ribbons.

A minimum of six classes of beef cattle will be judged. Potential classes include both breeding classes with and without data and market classes, depending on the availability of cattle.

There will be two questions classes, with approximately 10 questions per class.

There will not be any oral reasons, nor will there be any team divisions or awards.

Junior contestants may want to use this competition as a practice for the Block and Bridle contest to be held on Saturday, March 18.

Keith Bryan, instructor and coach of the Penn State Livestock Judging Team is leading the efforts to establish and organize the contest, along with help from former members of Penn State judging teams who will help with scoring, official placings, and contest questions.

Contact Bryan at (814) 863-0569 for additional information.

Eastern Milk, MMI Sign Merger Agreement, Need Delegate

NEW YORK/OHIO — Eastern Milk Producers and Milk Marketing Inc. agreed to final consolidation terms Feb. 15 as their presidents, Lewis Gardner and Herman Brubaker, signed a merger agreement which would create the third largest milk marketing cooperative in the country.

"For the dairy farmers of MMI and Eastern, this is a momentous day," noted Brubaker. "As one group, we will be able to accomplish more together than we could alone."

The agreement, dependent on affirmative votes from both Eastern's and MMI's delegate bodies, was reached after months of negotiations.

"This will be a consolidation designed to enhance the two cooperatives by forming one new, strong organization," said Gardner. "It's an effort to give our members the ability to be a major force in shaping the future of their industry."

Together, Eastern and MMI would market nearly seven billion pounds of milk worth one billion dollars. The two cooperatives make a good fit, say officials, because of their similar marketing philosophies, compatible cooperative structures, and their policies of putting members first. Both Eastern and MMI are known as quality suppliers in their regions and will continue that commitment, both presidents said. The consolidated cooperative would market milk from Kentucky to Vermont and Michigan to Delaware, including the big dairy states of Pennsylvania and New York.

Eastern Milk Producers currently markets nearly two billion pounds of milk worth 275 million dollars for its 3,700 members in the Northeast. Over a third of that milk goes to its mozzarella plant in Waverly, NY, run by Leprino Foods. The Waverly plant is one of the largest mozzarella manufacturing facilities in the world. Other Eastern operations include its Laboratory Services subsidiary and Eastern Best, a food and product distribution subsidiary.

Milk Marketing Inc. markets and processes nearly five billion pounds of member milk worth 725 million dollars for its 5,700 producers. In addition to marketing milk, MMI owns Farmers Dairy Foods, a manufacturing subsidiary that processes many different dairy products. In addition to its own processing facilities, MMI maintains a business affiliation with DMV USA, a part of Campina Melkunie, the Dutch dairy cooperative, and with West Agro, makers of cleaners and sanitizers for farm and industrial plant use.

people of his greatness. He has always believed you should be straightforward and honest, do your best, work hard, and if you did and were successful, other people would notice and would agree.

One of the areas of service to fellow farmers for Brosius has been on the Agway board of directors. His district goes from the lower end of the Delmarva Peninsula up to the Blue Mountains in the Poconos. The area is rich in farmland and good farmers. But he noted that he is not the chairman of the board; he is the vice chairman.

"You see, I'm not the guy who gives the annual report," Brosius said. "I'm the guy behind him. Maybe you could call me a leader of the followers or the glue that helps keep the board members with diverse backgrounds together.

"I don't think I'm the world's best orator. I stumble and trip over my tongue and lose my way in conversations sometimes. But I have always tried to be straightforward with farmers and be honest with them even when I must tell them things they don't want to hear. I think I have some credibility in this, and maybe I can use that experience in the department of ag."

Brosius will need to be confirmed by the state senate, and he intends to meet with all 50 senators before the confirmation hearings.

MARLBORO MUSHROOMS

The Brosius family is best known for their Marlboro Mushrooms company that ships five tractor trailor loads of mushrooms to the Hunts Point Terminal Market in New York City each week. In addition, Marlboro mushrooms have been shipped up and down the East coast and as far west as Dallas.

Mushrooms are grown continuously in 115,000 square feet of growing facilities with annual production of over 2.5 million pounds. In addition, they broker and re-pack mushrooms from other growers and deliver daily to wholesale markets.

Present staff includes 39 full-time and 18 part-time employees. Hay, wheat, and soybeans are also grown on the 450-acre farm.

All three sons of Charles and Jane Brosius are graduates of Penn State and back home with specific sole responsibility areas in the business.

Mahlon (Mickey) and his wife Karen have two children, Amanda and Corey. Mickey is in charge of the packing and marketing operation.

> "You cannot keep the farm in the family if you can't keep the family on the farm."--Charles Brosius

> "You know government has no money to give back to you that it didn't take from you first."--Charles Brosius

Tom and his wife Tammy have two children: Victoria and Melissa. Tom is composting manager, plant engineer, and head mechanic.

And Harold and his wife Doris have one son, Kile. Harold is in charge of the growing operation and labor management.

The farming operation consists of several farms put together over the years. The house on the home farm was built in 1854 but is not old by local standards, as other houses in the community date back an additional 100 years. The Brosius grandchildren represent the seventh generation on the farm.

DAIRY FARMER

People focus on Brosius as the mushroom farmer from Chester County. But when he graduated from Penn State in 1952 with a bachelor's degree in dairy science, he came home to what was at the time a family dairy and general farm. In 1957 and 1958 the Brosius Guernsey herd was recoginzed at the top of the Chester County production list. They also had steers, pigs, and chickens, too.

The mushroom business was started by Grandfather Charles Brosius back about 1915 in the basement of the farm house. This was done for winter work for the family, much like tobacco is the winter work in Lancaster County. When they restored the house in the early '70s, the floor boards were warped from the steam created by the mushrooms in the basement. Shelves in odd configurations in the basement that are used to store canned fruits and vegetabes were originally the mushroom beds.

As time went by, all the buildings, the barn, chicken house, hog barn, and the silo were converted to grow mushrooms.

At the time, growing mushrooms was not the science it is today. The Italian immigrants that came to work the stone and marble quarries around Avondale brought the skill with them. That's why the mushroom business happened in southern Chester County.

When Brosius lost his wholesale market for mushrooms in the early '70's, he was forced into the retail market. Every day for one summer the family put mushrooms in little over-wrap packages and loaded them into the station wagon to sell store to store along Route 30 from Downingtown to York. This was hard work, and Brosius laughed when he said the mushrooms got very cheap by the time he got out past York. But in this experience was born a philosophy that continues to be part of the business. "The closer you get to the consumer the more of the consumer's dollor you get." Today Marlboro Mushrooms go directly to New York City wholesale accounts.

"Its not easy, but it can be done," Brosius said. "I am resistant to the attitude that farmers have that you can't go directly to the consumer with your products. Not everyone will succeed, but some will. It's like taking the farm market concept one step further.

"Gov. Ridge proposes marketing, not just promoting Pennsylvania products. This may include exports to China, Europe, or Mexico. But my concept also includes just exporting Pennsylvania products out of state. I don't have a fancy slogon for Pennsylvania products yet. Maybe we will develop one at PDA; I don't know. But Pennsylvania farmers have the best geographic location and climate. Pennsylvania farmers don't need to take a back seat to anyone. Did you realize we are within 24 hours by refrigerated trailer to half the people in the U.S.?

> "The closer you get to the consumer the more of the consumer's dollar you get."--Charles Brosius

"I am convinced that the old philosophy of farmers that we take great pride in our production but stop marketing at the end of the farm lane must change," Brosius said. "We fill the milk tank or the truck with grain and take a lot of pride in 230 bushels of corn per acre. But when it comes to selling, we say we don't know about that, and we take whatever price someone offers. We need to cooperate as groups of farmers to do together what we can't do alone.

"People ask us why we sell mushrooms in New York City," Brosius said. "But in New York City we have 15 million plus people. That's as many people as on the continent of Australia. And we have all the different ethnic groups of the world brought together to whom we can sell. Just think of the opportunity to market Pennsylvania products to a population as large as a continent.

"Marketing is a favorite subject. Maybe I can use my experience in the Department of Agriculture," Brosius said.

MARKETING AND REGULATING

As head of the state ag department, Brosius will inherit both marketing and regulatory responsibility of the food industry from pre-harvest to the grocery store and restaurants. New laws at the end of the last state legislative session placed responsibility for consolidating statutes related to the commercial feed act and the establishment of organic food and maple syrup certification programs. In addition, the restaurant inspection program was taken from DER to PDA.

It's this restaurant inspection program that is particularly challenging to the department and to the ag community at large. But Brosius believes this inspection program should be in the department of agriculture. He thinks it gives farmers the opportunity to help people understand what food safety is all about and provides a marketing tool to help encourage people to use fresh vegetables, meat, and other foods.

Brosius was elected to the the Board of Trustees of The Pennsylvania State University in 1989. This position has given him an excellent opportunity to learn about the internal operation of both the College of Agricultural Sciences and the University.

"You have a tendency to be an advocate of the ag sciences," Brosius said. "And we have some challenges. But I want to make the department of ag a cohesive unit, both with New Bolton Center and the College of Agricultural Sciences.

"We have so many opportunities to put together a successful organization that doesn't need to be competitive. We have limited resources. That's the key. You can go out with ambitious plans, but you know government has no money to give back to you that it didn't take from you first. If you don't stray too far from this concept, you realize you can't do anything for which you can't pay.

"That's the way we run our business at home. A lot of things we don't have. But what we have is paid for. I'm not critical of those who have everything new that comes down the road. But I like to watch that new thing a little while and say we don't need to be on the early bandwagon. But we do need to be careful we don't fail to accept proven practices.

"That's why I think the relationship with Penn State is so critical. Penn State provides practical application of the new technology. You need basic research and sometimes this is hard to sell to both the farmers and the politicians. But the part of the research dollars that move through the Department of Agriculture is geared for practical applications. Maybe you need to put out a fire or help in some way to keep farmers' heads above water or a step up on their competition."

The list of Brosius's goals for the department include a farmer friendly DER regulatory program for Pennsylvania agriculture and pesticide reform that brings policy in line with today's sophisticated scientific technology.

"Zero pesticide tolerance is a great goal, but we need to encourage realistic pesticide reform," Brosius said. "Very little water you have ever drunk would hit that zero tolerance. Testing equipment has become so sophisticated that you can't get zero tolerance.

"I don't promote stream pollution or poor conservation practices. I don't know any farmers who do. But in the past we have had the problem of inability to get DER to understand and be part of helping agriculture to succeed.

"The nutrient management laws are in place, and I don't think farmers disagree, but it may be hard to administer. It's not enought to say you can't spread manure. We need a plan that helps us do it in the right place and at the right time."

In 1978 Brosius was named a Pennsylvania Master Farmer. He is currently chairman of the Hershey Medical Center Advisory committee and member of The Penn State University presidential selection committee. In 1994 he was elected to the board of directors of The Pennsylvania Chamber of Business and Industry and he is a former director and secretary of the American Mushroom Institute and former chairman of the Chester County Agriculture Development Council.

"When farmers go to talk to legislators about the things they want, legislators frequently become confused because farmers don't agree on what it is they really want," Brosius said. "Then no one gets anything done.

"I have always thought that when I was most successful was when I have been part of a winning team. To me, a team player is more important than going out for a lot of personal credit for something you thought you accomplished yourself. I sincerely believe Pennsylvania agriculture can move ahead profitably into the next century. I am honored to have this opportunity to represent Pennsylvania farmers in Gov. Ridge's cabinet."

Market Stand 'Image' Helps Draw, Keep Customers

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Attempts to try to get potential customers "to stop at your place" through the use of attractive signs, frontage, lights, and displays can work big dividends for farm market operators, according to a Penn State marketing expert.

Larry Yager, marketing specialist with Penn State, provided tips on ways to increase the success of farm market stands to about 25 growers on Monday at the New Holland Vegetable Day at Summit Valley Elementary School.

Yager showed a series of slides that detail some of the more successful market stands throughout the state and country that use different techniques to promote products to customers.

"We shop with our eyes," said Yager. "We have to get their attention."

Growers should understand the importance of image to the consumer.

A farm stand does not have to be complicated and expensive, according to the Penn State marketing specialist. A simple tent set up in an area easily accessible to traffic may be all that's necessary.

Also, have the "power items," such as the sweet corn, tomatoes, and cantalope, when in season, placed in such a way that customers have to move through the store and beyond the other items offered for sale.

Yager provided the example of one grower who placed the sweet corn out front. People stopped and purchased only the corn. When the corn was moved to the back, inside the store, the sale of other items "quadrupled," according to Yager.

Also, proper display is important. He said producers have been very creative in their use of existing materials, such as bulk boxes (with raised, false bottoms) to provide a display. Also, use of wooden cable spoolers and tables have worked to promote products and increase the sale of items at a farm stand.

Lighting is also essential, according to Yager. The use of natural light is best, and when using artificial lighting, stand owners should beware that using fluorescent or incandescent lighting can make produce look different to the consumer.

In the past, the adage, "Pile it high and kiss it goodbye," made sense, and that was how produce was displayed. In the '90's, however, the consumer wants more value-added produce. Adding that special touch, including packaging fruit baskets or special holiday treats, or something as simple as tying a ribbon onto produce, can boost sales at a farm stand and keep customers coming back for more.

Providing free samples for customers has proven time and again to boost purchases of the product. Also, in displaying items, make sure the items are placed in such a way that is easily accessible — especially off the floor or ground. Yager showed slides of apples that literally gathered dust, even being on the floor in a bushel basket for a short time.

Provide sufficient width between the aisles. To place items for display, use the "ribbon effect" — alternate items such as red tomatoes and green peppers to provide an attractive contrast.

Yager said it is important to make sure the displays are full and well-dressed.

By allowing customers to pick up produce and smell it, people have the chance to experience the freshness that many stands guarantee. A big selling point is placing literature and other items nearby.

For more information, stand managers can consult two publications: Co-Op Bulletin #52, "A Guide To Planning The Farm Retail Market," published in 1994 by the University Of Delaware Cooperative Extension and Penn State's "Managing For Success: A Manual For Produce Markets," published in 1986, from Penn State.

Greenhouse Plant Injury

The most common reason for problems with greenhouse plant health stem from watering, whether it is too little, too much, or the composition of the water itself, according to Robert D. Berghage, assistant professor of horticulture, Penn State.

Berghage reviewed the following main causes of problems when diagnosing greenhouse plant injury:

• Over- or underwatering. Particularly overwatering, which can generate a variety of root and stem diseases.

• Fertilization. Without the proper balance of nutrients, too much nitrogen, phosphorous, potassium, or micronutrients can lead to an array of problems associated with salt toxicity.

• Insects and diseases. Proper biosecurity is important. Make sure weeds are removed from inside and outside the building. Weeds can carry thrips and other insects that can prove harmful to greenhouse plants.

• Chemicals from other sources. Spray drift from nearby operations can affect greenhouse plants.

• Temperature and lighting. Improper night and day temperatures can wreak havoc with greenhouse plants.

• Handling. Improper handling can bruise plants and make them susceptible to disease and insect damage.

Growers should observe the plant by picking it up and looking at the root system. By looking at the roots, you can learn a lot about what type of disease or problem the plant has. Waterlogged root systems can serve as a breeding ground for fungus gnats. Also, high salt concentrations from excess nitrogen fertilization can pose problems, and the type of fertilizer is critical, because ammonium nitrate at high levels can prove toxic to plants.

Late Blight

Alan MacNab, Penn State extension pathologist, spoke about the importance of crop rotations to stopping fungus problems.

The most common reason for problems with greenhouse plant health stem from watering, whether it is too little, too much, or the composition of the water itself, according to Robert D. Berghage, assistant professor of horticulture, Penn State. Here, Berghage holds up examples of diseased plants, caused by iron toxicity, high salts damage, overfertilization, temperatures, and other causes.

"Fungicides do a great job . . . but also, rotation is very important," he said.

MacNab said it is possible growers could experience problems with late blight with tomato and vine crops this year, if conditions are right.

MacNab urged the growers to communicate with each other to help identify and control the disease.

In all, about 200 growers attended other sessions at the Vegetable Day, focusing on fall root crop production, vine crop insects, sweet corn IPM, vegetable irrigation, pumpkin disease control, greenhouse design and ventilation, tree fruit insects, fumigation, and other sessions.

Dauphin County DHIA Recognizes Members

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Elwillo Farms, Hershey, was recently recognized for their outstanding production and management in 1994 by the Dauphin County DHIA membership. William Capp, Sr., and his son William Capp Jr., were recognized for top herd management, high milk production, and high protein production in Dauphin County. The 190-cow herd of the Capp's averaged 22,335 pounds of milk and 718 pounds of protein.

Restful Acres farm owned and managed by Frank Greybill, Hershey, averaged 832 pounds of butterfat to qualify as high herd in butterfat. Leroy Reihl, Lykens, and Catalpa Farm, managed by Dale and Ray Kennedy, Middletown, were recognized for having the lowest somatic cell counts.

The Dauphin County DHIA program was held in association with the Dauphin County Holstein Club annual meeting. This provides an opportunity for recognition by peers, socializing and merriment. DHIA President Leon Crissinger, Gratz and Holstein

BST No Challenge To U.S. Farm Economic Policy

ATLANTA, Ga. — The economic impact of treating cows with recombinant bovine somatotropin (rBST) to increase milk production is so similar to previous dairy industry innovations that few new federal policy approaches are needed to cope with the changes wrought by the new hormone technology.

So said Dr. M. C. Hallberg, Penn State professor of agricultural economics, and Dr. R. F. Fallert, former senior economist, livestock, dairy and poultry branch, Economic Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Fallert, who retired from USDA Jan. 1, presented the paper, "rBST, Federal Dairy Policy and the Future of the U.S. Dairy Industry" Feb. 18 at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting, held in Atlanta, Ga.

The two agricultural economists reviewed the most recent studies of the consequences of rBST use; applied the results to federal policy on dairy farm structure, price supports, consumer education and job training; and reached several conclusions.

In its effect on dairy farm structure, "rBST is just one more technology like many preceding it that continue to encourage the consolidation of small and medium-sized dairy farms into larger and larger units."

Larger farms could be a problem if one or a few significantly impact the market, they wrote. However, they added, "We do not see this as a problem currently anywhere in the country. Indeed, we do not see this as a remote possibility for the foreseeable future."

Hallberg and Fallert also said larger farms and herds "may lead to environmental conflicts of a local nature but we do not see this type of structural change leading to significant environmental problems nationally."

Boyd Cook Retires From Dairy Industry

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

HAGERSTOWN (Maryland) — After serving dairy farmers for 37 years, Mid-America Dairymen, Inc., cooperative division manager and industry leader Boyd M. Cook has retired.

He was feted at a "toast and roast" retirement dinner February 11 at the Hagerstown Ramada Inn, attended by more than 200 cooperative employees, directors, industry associates, family and friends.

Since 1988, Cook has Served as manager of the former Middle Atlantic Division of Dairymen, Inc. The division merged with Mid-America Dairymen in September, 1994.

Cook began his dairy cooperative leadership career in 1958, when he left management of the family dairy farm in Delaware to become a field representative for Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. In 1962 he was named head field representative; and in 1974, Cook became the Baltimore-based cooperative's assistant manager and secretary. Prior to his appointment as manager in 1988, the cooperative had merged with Dairymen, Inc., as its Middle Atlantic Division.

Born and raised on the family farm near Wilmington, Delaware, Cook graduated from Middletown High School in 1948. He enlisted in the Delaware Army National Guard and was called to active duty in 1950. Following his military service, he graduated in 1954 from the University of Delaware with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Agriculture, with Distinction honors.

Active in the various segments of the dairy industry, Cook is a past president of She National Mastitis Council and the Maryland/DC Dairy Technology Society. He was vice-president of the National Conference of Interstate Milk Shippers and served on the conference's Drug Residue Committee to develop a national drug reside control program for Grade A milk. Cook has also served on the National Milk Producers Federation's Interstate Milk Shippers Committee as a committee chair for the International Association of Milk, Food and Environmental Sanitarians, and been instrumental in development and direction of the Pennmarva Dairymen's Federation and Middle Atlantic Cooperative Milk Marketing Agency. He has been instrumental in working with dairy producers and the legislature toward the formation of a Maryland Milk Commission.

Throughout his dairy industry career, Cook also remained active in military service, graduating in 1984 from the U.S. Army War College and from the U.S. Command and General Staff College in 1986. In 1987, Major General Cook assumed command of the 29th Infantry Division (Light), until his retirement in December 1993. The Major General Boyd M. Cook Armory at Fort Ritchie was recently dedicated in his honor.

Cook is married to the former Patricia Chatty and the couple has five children and 11 grandchildren. He is a long-time lay leader and has served in various capacities at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Hagerstown.

In honor of his years of service, Cook received numerous tributes and gifts from Mid-America Dairymen and the division's employees and board of directors, Pennmarva Dairymen's Federation, milk processor customers and a hand-made Amish quilt from members of the cooperative's District 2 of Lancaster and Chester counties.

BST No Challenge

pearance and consolidation of the small family farm, Hallberg and Fallert stated, "At no time in the past has our government attempted to prevent a technology from being adopted on the basis of social factors. We see little reason for doing so now."

They added, to maintain farming communities "we should be directing more of the public's funds to rural development efforts which provide part-time or full-time off-farm work for farm families, rather than to efforts designed to prevent output-increasing and cost-reducing technological developments in food production."

On the issue of price support policy, Hallberg and Fallert stated they, "see no reason to expect rBST use to lead to greater accumulations of surpluses of dairy products in the long run, if present policy is maintained. The present automatic adjustment of price supports in response to projected surpluses should be sufficient for the task."

For consumer education, Hallberg and Fallert suggested that some of the milk checkoff funds now used for dairy product promotion programs could be used to present rBST's known costs and benefits to the public.

Hallberg is editor of the book, "Bovine Somatotropin & Emerging Issues: An Assessment." Much of his past research has been concerned with national policy for the dairy industry. He has served on various national committees and Task Forces including the American Agricultural Economic Association Task Force on Dairy Marketing Orders.

Help! Down here. On the floor. Buried by this pile of paper that slid off my desk.

It was inevitable. The pile of unsolicited promotional, advertising, plain old general "junk" mail rolling in here has finally reached dangerous proportions. There's at least a whole tree's worth of paper strewn over top of me. Let's see what's here as we dig out!

Catalogs — they tend to turn a person black and blue from their size. Like the two — yes, two — fat catalogs from an ag supply firm halfway across the country, who apparently got our name the same place most of this other stuff originated from. Purchased mailing lists. This one offers everything from reflective tape to farm footwear to dust respirators.

Others market anything from diesel motor parts to CD's to underwear to computer softwear to van supplies. Van supplies? It came in my name and I don't own a van. Please send trial sample van — teal blue, preferably.

Alfalfa planting time is just weeks away. Even without a calendar, you could figure that out from the mailbox. Likewise for farm equipment sale time. If the numerous lists stuffing the mailbox here don't offer quite the exact piece you have in mind . . . well, you can FAX in for an even longer list.

For the dairy herd in the barn, we receive shipments regularly of what might best be considered computer dating lists. Otherwise known as bull proof sheets, sire summaries, daughter comparisons — all the up-to-date information one needs to match up the genes of the mother and father to get a perfect offspring. Which will probably turn out to be a set of twins, bull and heifer, in which case the heifer, 98 percent of the time, through Nature's weird practical jokes, will not reproduce.

Most fun of all junk mail, though, is the get-money, spend-money pieces. No less than five "pre-approved" credit card applications are here in this stack. Other credit card mailings promise frequent flier miles for using them, insurance against their theft; one even offers a generous loan to pay them off. At an interest rate of 18.99 percent, maximum allowable no doubt.

"Are you prepared to live 15 years or more without a paycheck?" queries one large, squarish, envelope from an insurance firm, junk mail worth a good laugh for farm wives used to working without a "paycheck."

"Free preview, free gift, free $50 cash," promises another, selling cookbooks. Check the fine print — the $50 offer is good only to the first 50 sendbacks received. Trust me, yours won't be one of them.

Really, really mouth-watering are the glossy pieces enticing us take a trip to someplace warm? "Sample Tahitian Treats!" . . . "Escape the Winter Chill on Florida's #1 Airline." And a personal invitation to join the "Voyage of the Glaciers." Glaciers? Try me about mid-July.

Most irritating personally of all the junk mail in the stack is one offering "protection" for the computer, and which comes in the form of a bill. One has to look very carefully to see that it says "application."

Since there seems to be little one can do to stop all this waste of trees to bury us under tons of unsolicited advertising junk, those of us who use newspaper and waste paper for bedding cattle can adopt that ever-popular "if you can't lick 'em, join 'em" approach.

Keep that junk mail coming. It soaks up lots of manure.

York Garden And Flower Show

YORK (York Co.) — The York Garden and Flower Show will be held Thursday, February 23 from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday, February 24 from noon to 9 p.m.; Saturday, February 25 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday, February 26 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Two buildings of flowers, plants, gardens, garden ideas, and 60 exhibitors will offer a variety of products and services related to garden and outdoor living areas.

About 8,000 square feet of space will be devoted to large display gardens, installed by landscape contractors and garden centers.

Seeds, spring bulbs, herbs, and perennial plants will be for sale. Experts will be on hand to discuss tree and lawn care, and professional landscape designers will be available for questioning.

Free professional seminars will be offered throughout the four days. Subjects range from herbal gardening to perennials, and from designing entryways to landscape lighting and aquatic gardens. Workshops will cover working with dried flower arrangements, introduction to bonsai, and designing decks.

Admission is $4 for adults and $1.50 for children ages 10 to 15. Parking is free. The York Fairgrounds is located on Carlisle Ave., Rt. 75, south of Rt. 30.

Lebanon Seeks Dairy Promotion Contestants

LEBANON (LEBANON CO.) — Contestants are needed for Lebanon County Dairy Promotion Positions for Dairy Princess, Little Miss, and Dairy Maid positions will need to be filled in June.

Prospective dairy princesses must be between the ages of 16 and 24, live in Lebanon County, and be the daughter of a dairy farmer, herdsman or manager or the daughter of a dairy industry employee. Dairy maids should be between 13 and 16 years of age. Little Miss contestants need to be between 4 to 6 years of age.

Time To Prepare Paczki For Ash Wednesday's Tradition

LORETTA GOLDEN
Cambria Co. Correspondent

PORTAGE (Cambria Co.) — In these parts, just mentioning the word "paczki" will probably put a smile on the faces of many people. There may be a wave of nostalgia or perhaps even a yearning for simpler times. What exactly does this word mean?

"Paczki" is a Polish word describing a doughnut-like fried pastry made from a rich bread dough. Originally, paczki was a quick treat made for the children from dough that was rolled out slightly and then cut into squares, circles, strips, and other shapes and deep-fried. Other ethnic groups have their own specific words for these little delicacies but they are all basically made the same way. They can be coated with sugar, cinnamon sugar, confectioners' sugar, or filled with jelly.

Roseann Barnas of R.D. Portage provided little background, recipe, and a "how-to" demonstration about paczki. Her two granddaughters, Deanna and Grace Troxel, ages 4 and 6, were there to lend a hand. Roseann grew up with one sister and two brothers and fondly remembers her mother making paczki for the children. She recalls that as kids, she and her siblings looked forward to mother's bread-making days. They knew that any leftover bread dough would be turned into treats for the children.

Roseann Barnas, with grandchildren, Grace and Deanna Troxel, ages 6 and 4, forming paczki.

In past years, people seemed to ascribe more to the "waste not, want not" way of life. Times were tough. Folks raised their own cows, pigs, and chickens and used almost every bit for something. Bones were saved for soup and lard was rendered from the animal fat. This was what was used for frying the paczki. Needless to say people didn't watch their diets or cholesterol intake as much as they do now.

Roseann recalls that some of the flour used years ago was surplus flour and at times not much good for baking. It was not thrown out but used for things like paczki or pancakes.

After Roseann married, she and her husband had eight children: John, Jr., Mary Lou, Veronica, Eileen, Rose, Linda, Georgiann, and Marsha. Mary Lou says that her mom made paczki for the family just as her grandmother had. The family now includes a daughter-in-law and sons-in-law, 17 grandchildren, and one great-grandson. Granddaughter Grace says that little Deanna is the paczki eater in their house but they also had a special order to fill for their mom Marsha who wanted paczki coated with cinnamon sugar.

Traditionally Fat Tuesday is Paczki Day. In the past, fasting regulations during Lent for various religious groups were more strict than they are today. Since paczki is a sweet treat, quite a few were eaten on the day before Ash Wednesday because these, along with other sweets, were "given up" for Lent. A local supermarket chain takes orders for paczki for Fat Tuesday.

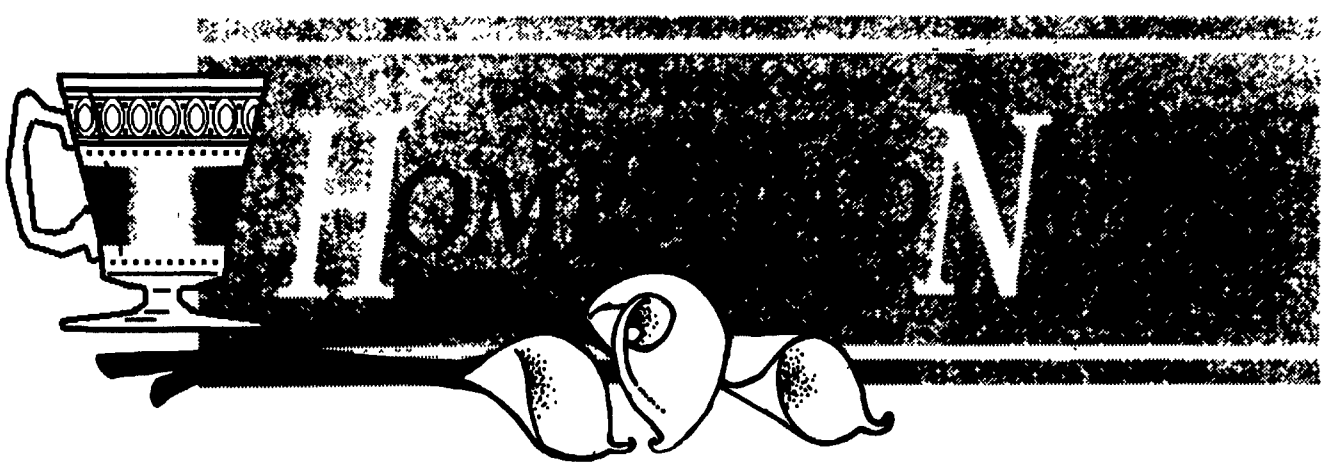
Grace, Deanna, and Doug reaping the fruits of their labor.

The busy lifestyles of today's families prevent many homemakers from making homemade bread. Quick paczki can be made with frozen bread dough or by deep frying refrigerator biscuits. The taste is similar. These are big sellers in the area during the church picnic season.

Roseann was gracious enough to share her recipe. It is one that she has used for many years and claims that there is nothing special about it other that its being a richer bread dough recipe. Her granddaughters helped with the "sugaring" but Grace reminded grandma that they were not allowed anywhere near the stove while grandma was doing the actual paczki-making.

When the paczki-making was finished, 17-year-old grandson, Doug came in to do his part — eating this special treat.



Rich White Bread

4½ -5 cups all purpose flour (do not use self-rising flour)
½ cup warm (not hot) water
2 packages active dry yeast
¾ cup lukewarm milk
¼ cup sugar

Consuming Thoughts

Almost every American household posseses at least one microwave oven and the popularity of microwave cooking continues to grow. Yet, concerns about the safety of cooking meat and poultry products in the microwave persist. Even the cookware and plastic wraps used in the ovens have come under question.

Plus, there are traits, unique to microwave cooking, that affect how completely food is cooked. "Cold spots" can occur because of the irregular way the microwaves enter the oven and are absorbed by the food.

Since we have traditionally relied on thorough cooking to kill bacteria that may be present in food, consumers should take simple, yet effective steps to ensure even cooking when using a microwave.

The USDA's Meat and Poultry Hotline offers these tips on how to microwave safely when defrosting or cooking:

Defrosting:

When using the microwave to defrost foods, plan to finish the cooking immediately. Some areas of larger food items may begin to cook during the defrost cycle, raising the temperature to a point where bacteria can flourish.

• Remove food from store wrap prior to thawing. Foam insulated trays and plastic wraps are not heat stable at high temperatures. They can melt or warp from the food's heat, possibly causing chemicals to migrate into the food.

• Don't defrost or hold food at room temperature for more than 2 hours. It is easy to forget all about a food item thawing in the microwave oven. Set a timer to sound an alert when the thawing time is up.

Cooking Tips:

• Debone large pieces of meat. Bone can shield the meat around it from thorough cooking.

• Arrange food items uniformly in a covered dish and add a little liquid. Under the cover, steam helps kill bacteria and ensures uniform heating. Either plastic wrap or a glass cover works well. Many recipes suggest venting a small area, allowing some steam to escape. Plastic wrap shouldn't touch the food.

• Cook large pieces of meat at 50 percent power for longer periods of time. This allows the heat to reach deeper portions without overcooking outer areas. Commercial oven cooking bags can also help even out cooking and provide a tender product.

• Move the food inside the dish several times during cooking. Stir soups or stews. If you don't have a turntable, turn the entire dish during cooking. This is especially important for food like casseroles that can't be stirred.

• Do not cook whole, stuffed poultry in the microwave. The bones and density of the bird do not allow even cooking. Microwaves may not thoroughly cook the moist stuffing deep inside the bird either.

• Never partially cook food. If planning to combine microwave cooking with conventional roasting, broiling or grilling, transfer the microwave foods to conventional heat immediately.

• Use a temperature probe or meat thermometer to verify the food has reached a safe temperature. Check the temperature in several places, avoiding fat and bone. it should reach 160°F for red meat; 180°F for poultry.

• Make allowances for oven wattage variations. Because ovens vary in power and operating efficiency, make sure food is done. Use a meat thermometer and visual signs to check doneness. Juices should run clear, and meat should not be pink.

• Observe the standing time in the recipe. It is necessary to complete the cooking process.

ed) with rotary beater until smooth.

Add remaining flour (not sifted). Mix until dough leaves sides of bowl. Turn out onto lightly floured board.

Knead until dough becomes smooth, elastic, and no longer sticky (5-10 minutes).

Place in lightly greased bowl. Grease top of dough. Cover with waxed paper.

Let rise in warm place (80-85) until doubled (1 to 1½ hours). Punch down.

Divide dough into a few parts. Slightly roll each piece and cut into desired shapes with a sharp knife.

Deep fry in vegetable oil until golden brown on all sides.

Drain on paper towels, sugar as desired, and enjoy!

"Poisons: Kids and You"

Spend a few hours, not even a day, following a young child on his investigations around your home. Accidental poisoning can happen in the early morning when the active toddler starts crawling out of the crib/bed before sleeping parents realize that the child is exploring.

National Poison Prevention Week is March 19-25. But you can make every week poison prevention week. Everyone should do their part to stop children being accidentally poisoned.

Each year, approximately one million children under the age of six accidentally poison themselves. About one-half of these are two and three-year-olds. Nearly 90% of these children "wolf" down poisons while under an adult's supervision. Young children find a poison usually during mealtime hours when they are hungry or tired. Small children will swallow almost anything they can get into their mouths. A child's curiosity is all it takes for a possible accident to happen.

When a young child is hungry or thirsty, anything within reach is appealing, even a red oil or colorful liquid that looks like something a child has had before. Little people can not read. Poisons act fast and so do children. More poisonings occur between 9-10 a.m. and 5-7 p.m.

What is poison? It is anything you touch, taste, smell, drink, spray or spill that can make you sick. It is a product that is not used as it is intended or designed. Poisons can come in attractive containers. They may be colorful. They can also smell sweet and appealing.

Poisons come in four forms — solid, liquid, spray and invisible. Solids can be held in your hand, like detergent, medications, plants, etc. Liquid types include polishes, deodorants, shampoos, cleaners, alcoholic beverages, rubbing alcohol, bleach, etc. They are quickly swallowed and easily absorbed.

Spray poisons are the aerosol and pump type like window cleaners, perfumes, hair sprays, even paints. A child will often mimic an adult using this item. A young child doesn't realize the danger of spraying this product into the face or eyes. The invisible poisons include fumes from vehicle exhausts, charcoal grills, and even cigarette smoke. The poisonous substances enter through the nose and lungs.

Read the label. Protect yourself and your children. A product's label has a lot of useful information. It includes instructions for use as well as possible precautions.

Many household cleaning products are not dangerous if used properly and stored out of reach of inquisitive hands. Precautionary statements are not needed if exposure to small amounts or swallowing small amount would not cause major harm. Some of these products include fabric softeners or handwashing detergents.

Words that alert you to the fact that a given product needs to be used in a certain way include the words: Caution/Warning as a mild warning. Danger indicates a greater precaution needs to be taken with this product. Poison is not classified as a signal word but it is the strongest indicator of a hazard. It is rarely used on household products but rather on items such as household lye, anti-freeze and insecticides.

Don't mix household chemicals. Keep products in original containers with product labels intact. Instructions, precautionary statements and first-aid instructions may vary according to product ingredients. Labels are for the consumer's benefit. Read and follow labels.

Medications - More than 40% reported poisoning exposures involve some form of medications.

Don't call medicine "candy." Aspirin is the most common type of accidental poison. It is found in every home — in the bedroom, the bathroom, the kitchen, and even the living room. Keep it out of sight even if it has a safety cap.

Check the label when giving medication and turn the light on at night. Store medicine separately from other products. Discard old medication by flushing down the toilet or drain. Rinse container and discard.

If A Poisoning Has Occurred: Do you have the number of your local Poison Control Center readily available? If not, look it up and place near your phone with your other emergency phone numbers.

Should a poison occur, remain calm. Have the following information when you call the poison information center, doctor, or 911 about the person and the poison: the person's age and weight, what poison was involved and if possible, the product label. How was the person poisoned? Swallowed, inhaled, splashed on the skin or in the eyes? Has the person vomited? Was first aid, if any, given?

Know about Syrup of Ipecac. This is a non-prescription medicine which induces vomiting when given by mouth. Keep this in your first aid kit for the home. Use it under the directions of a trained medical professional.

Poison-Proof Your Home. You need to educate yourself and your child about poison prevention. When it comes to poison prevention, you are your child's best teacher. Poison prevention is for everyone.

Hot Potato Recipes

Potatoes are a good buy. They cost just pennies per serving and provide good nutrition for the money.

Potatoes are one of our most economical sources of thiamin, vitamin C, iron, and a supplementary source of high quality vegetable protein.

Another great plus for the potato is its versatility. You can boil, bake, mash, roast, steam, French fry, microwave, and grill a potato. Eat them plain or douse them with anything from butter to brocolli and ground beef.

In the past, the potato has been criticized for being just a starch. There's a lot more to potatoes, but the carbohydrates potatoes provide are important to a good diet. Carbohydrates are the body's primary source of fuel for energy. The brain, for example, uses about 20 to 25 percent of the daily intake of fuel (measured in calories) and this fuel should be in the form of carbohydrates. Furthermore, carbohydrates are not especially fattening, as was commonly thought. A medium potato has only 110 calories and is virtually fat-free.

CHEESY POTATO SOUP

6 medium potatoes, peeled and quartered
3 medium onions, cleaned and cut in quarters
½ pound Velveeta cheese
Salt and pepper to taste

Cover potatoes and onions with water. Add salt and cook until soft. Put in blender with slices of cheese and process until creamy. Serve and enjoy.

POTATO SOUP

5 cups peeled, cubed potatoes
3 stalks celery, chopped small
1 medium onion, chopped small
3-3½ cups water
1 teaspoon salt

Cook ingredients until tender in large Dutch oven. Mash mixture with hand potato masher a few times, leaving some of the potatoes, celery, and onion chunky. Stir in:

3 tablespoons butter
¾ to 1 cup half and half milk
Pepper to taste

Simmer on low. Garnish with chopped chives or fresh green onion tops if desired.

IDAHO POTATO CAKE

1 cup butter, softened
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
1 cup cold mashed potatoes
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups all-purpose flour
¼ cup baking cocoa
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup milk
1 cup chopped nuts

In a mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Blend in potatoes and vanilla. Combine flour, cocoa, and baking soda; add alternately with milk, blending well after each addition. Stir in nuts. Pour into a greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes or until cake tests done. Cool on a wire rack.

Enthusiastic cooks from across the U.S. and Canada headed for their kitchens and let their creativity go wild — wild rice, that is. The recipes poured in for the International Wild Rice Cooking Contest. In the final tally, the winning recipes showed the current trends in cuisine — quick and healthy soups, salads, and fusion cooking.

Warm Wild Rice and Roasted Vegetable Salad brought home the grand prize for Priscilla Yee of Concord, California. She received more than $2,800 in cash and prizes.

Here is the winning recipe. To receive a free recipe brochure containing all seven of the winning recipes, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to International Wild Rice Association, Winning Recipes, 1306 W.Co. Rd. F, #109, St. Paul, MN 55112.

WARM WILD RICE & ROASTED VEGETABLE SALAD

Vinaigrette:
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup olive oil
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
2 teaspoons minced fresh rosemary
1 teaspoon ground cumin
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper

Salad:
4 firm plum tomatoes, quartered
2 small zucchini, sliced ¼-inch thick
2 medium red or yellow peppers, cut in 1-inch squares
1 teaspoon minced fresh rosemary
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 cups warm cooked wild rice
½ cup chopped prosciutto ham or other mild ham

Whisk together vinaigrette ingredients; set aside. Heat oven to 450 degrees. Spray a 15x10-inch jelly-roll pan with nonstick cooking spray. In large bowl, combine tomatoes, zucchini, bell pepper, and rosemary. Drizzle with olive oil; toss to coat. Spread in single layer in pan. Roast 15 to 20 minutes, or until crisp-tender and lightly browned.

In large bowl, toss roasted vegetables with wild rice, ham, and vinaigrette. Arrange on serving platter lined with lettuce. Garnish with rosemary sprigs, if desired. Makes 4 main dishes or 6 side dishes.

HEARTY POTATO SOUP

6 medium potatoes, peeled and sliced
2 carrots, diced
6 celery stalks, diced
2 quarts water
1 onion, chopped
6 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1½ cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste

In a large kettle, cook potatoes, carrots and celery in water until tender, about 20 minutes. Drain, reserving liquid and setting vegetables aside. In the same kettle, saute onion in butter until soft. Stir in flour, salt and pepper; gradually add milk, stirring constantly until thickened. Gently stir in cooked vegetables. Add 1 cup or more of reserved cooking liquid until soup is desired consistency. Yield: 8-10 servings (about 2½ quarts).

SCALLOPED POTATOES FOR A CROWD

2 pounds frozen diced hash brown potatoes
½ cup diced onions
½ cup diced green and red sweet pepper, fresh or frozen
1 10¾-ounce can cream of mushroom soup
1 soup can water
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup cheese cracker crumbs or croutons

Let hash browns thaw one hour. Combine all ingredients except cracker crumbs. Pour into buttered 13x9-inch casserole dish. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. At end, sprinkle crumbs on top and bake another 10 minutes. Serves 12 to 15.

AU GRATIN POTATOES

8 cups cubed, peeled potatoes
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk
1 pound real American cheese, cubed
Minced fresh parsley

In a large saucepan, cook potatoes in boiling water until done. Drain and place in a greased 2½-quart baking dish. In a saucepan, melt butter. Add the flour, salt, and pepper; stir to form a smooth paste. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly. Bring to a boil; boil and stir for one minute. Add cheese; stir just until melted. Pour over potatoes. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes or until bubbly. Sprinkle with parsley. Makes 12 servings.

JANSSEN'S TEMPTATION

¼ pound butter
2 tins flat anchovy fillets
4 yellow onions
8 large potatoes, cut as for French fries
1 quart half and half
Pepper to taste

Melt butter in 6-quart Dutch oven. Chop the anchovies and onions. Cook gently until onions are soft but not browned. Add potatoes and cover with half and half, sprinkle with ½ teaspoon pepper. (Add no salt, the anchovies are salty). Stir and cover and place in 350 degree oven. Stir and cover in 350 degree oven. Stir every half hour. After 1½ hours, remove lid and continue to cook one more hour until potatoes are soft and top is browned.

Excellent buffet dish to serve with ham.

Taking Time to Take Stock

When family crises occur, we often stop to reevaluate our lives and our priorities. We may discuss "what if's" that are otherwise unspoken. That's one good thing about crises. But wouldn't it be great to do some of that talking and decision-making without a family crisis?

For many families, February and March may be slower, quieter months when people are cooped up inside waiting for spring. We find ourselves laboring over tax files preparing for the April 17th deadline. This is a great time to take stock of our family situation particularly in the area of personal finances and provisions. When was the last time you reviewed and updated your "permanent" records? Permanent records include a letter of last instructions, copy of a will, living will, employment history, health record, estate plan, household inventory, tax information, and warranty files.

A person shows great care for his or her family by setting aside time to organize and document this kind of information on an annual basis. And if it's on a computer, a back-up disk copy and a hard copy are crucial.

Not only is it important to organize and keep permanent records current, it is also important to discuss the contents with family members. This is hard. Sometimes the subjects are not comfortable issues. This winter, after watching a TV special, my husband and I talked about our individual decisions about organ donation. Both of us had thought about the potential decision, but we hadn't ever talked about it together. Doing that was awkward, more awkward than I would have expected. You may experience similar feelings as you think about and discuss issues like living wills, life insurance policies, power of attorney provisions, and your family's overall financial status.

Although it's difficult, I encourage you to take the time to do it — to organize the papers, to make important decisions, and then to discuss them with your partner, children, or other close relatives or friends.

A summary of the information should be included in a "letter of last instructions." This letter or form should include:

- location of your will, birth certificate, marriage certificate, divorce decree, and military discharge papers.
- location of the safe deposit box and keys.
- location and number of all insurance policies. Check benefits that you may have through professional or personal interest organizations, national memberships. Location of related membership cards if the group provides death benefits.
- information about pension and social security benefits records.
- summary of assets and major real property owned.
- record of loans or other outstanding debts.
- list of important advisors and their phone numbers.
- instructions regarding personal business matters.
- preferences regarding your funeral service/final ceremony.
- your birth date, birth place, education level, social security number, military service number (if applicable), parents' full names.

When you consider the information outlined above, the task may seem overwhelming. It can be. But if it is broken down into smaller tasks and done one task at a time, it is do-able. Taking stock of your personal assets and future needs is important. Writing them down and discussing them with your closest family members is the best gift you can give them this year. This may, at some future time, help them to make wise, informed decisions when their emotions are in turmoil because of a family crisis.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Executive Board

The Berks County Farm Women Executive Board met January 17 at the Berks County Ag Center with 19 in attendance. President Wendy Lengle reported that Berks County youth made a good showing in the the state youth project sponsored by Farm Women. Winners are Cameron Gettle, a kindergartener who placed first in the first- and second-grade category; Ryan Krisch, first place, and Katrina Prutzman, second place, in the third and fourth grade category; Shawn Krisch, first place, Andrew Moyer, second place, and Kevin Frantz, third place in the fifth and sixth grade division.

Members were reminded that the Spring Rally marks the 30th state spring rally. A county convention committee was appointed and Dorothy Lutz will be chairwoman.

The next meeting of the executive board is March 6.

Lebanon Society 20

Lebanon County Farm Women Group 20 met at the home of Wendy Shower. The hostess had devotions followed by the Lord's prayer and the salute to the flag.

Fifteen members answered roll call to the question: What is your favorite game.

Pat reported that the board meeting had been cancelled due to bad weather.

Games were enjoyed by all.

The next meeting will be at the Lebanon Historical Society. Later, members will go to Kreider's Restaurant. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

QUESTION — Shirley Jean Ash, Bridgeport, W.V., would like to know if strawberries may be canned in a light syrup like other fruit.

QUESTION — Shirley Jean Ash, Bridgeport, W.V., would like recipes using 1½ pounds ground beef.

QUESTION — Karen Kinnane, Shartlesville, would like a recipe for cranberry candy, which is made with canned cranberry sauce, red Jell-O, and chopped nuts. It's poured into a pan to chill, cut into bars and rolled in granulated sugar. It's a very pretty, bright red with a sparkle from the sugar.

QUESTION — Carol Koser, Columbia, would like to know where to purchase buffalo meat in quantity to freeze. She also wants some recipes for cooking with it. Carol writes that she has eaten buffalo meat in several restaurants and feels better afterwards than when she eats beef.

QUESTION — An East Earl reader asks what she is doing wrong when she bakes a pumpkin custard pie. It separates and gets watery instead of staying creamy after baking. She mixes sugar, pumpkin, egg yolks, flour and spices and adds scalded milk while the mixture is still hot. Beaten egg whites are blended into the mixture before baking. She loves the taste of the pie but needs some tips.

QUESTION — Yvonne Musser, Lancaster, would like a recipe for buckwheat pancakes that cook high and light with a brown crusty edge.

QUESTION — Beth Ehrisman, Richfield, would like a recipe for Catalina sweet and sour red dressing.

QUESTION — Helen Spencer, Troy, would like recipes for spaghetti salad.

QUESTION — Mrs. Daniel Mosemann, Summit Hill, writes that her son and family live in Japan. They do not have a bake oven or microwave. She would appreciate recipes for cookies, cakes, desserts, and casseroles that do not require baking.

QUESTION — Mary E. Reed, Shoemakersville, would like a recipe for making cajun seasoning.

QUESTION — Lucy Lowe would like a recipe to make 5 to 10 pounds of a good-tasting pork sausage.

QUESTION — Dolly Getty, Oxford, would like recipes for muffin mix and quick bread mix in which the dry ingredients may be combined ahead of time and stored until ready to bake.

QUESTION — Evelyn Godshall, Huntingdon Valley, would like a recipe for chewy chocolate chip cookies.

QUESTION — Janet Rutz, Carlisle, would like recipes to use dried cranberry beans.

QUESTION — Carol Modesto, Smyrna, Del., would like the recipe for Dutch cake, a yeast-bread cake baked in a loaf pan. The bread-cake has raisins and dried baking fruits. Carole writes that her grandparents of German ancestry made it when she was a child, but no recipe exists in the family now.

QUESTION — Frank T. Cat of Millerstown, would like a recipe for English toffee cookies like those sold by Weis Markets. The cookies are great tasting and don't crumble for children.

QUESTION — Joanne Swords, Manheim, would like a recipe for Cottleston pie, a British recipe.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.Va., would like a recipe for pancake syrup that is light in calories.

QUESTION — Ruth Best, Newburg, wants recipes for diabetic jams and jellies of several different fruit flavors.

QUESTION — Andy Andrews, Brownstown, would like a recipe for pumpkin-flavored candy apples.

LO-CAL LEEK AND POTATO SOUP

2 tablespoons butter
2 or 3 leeks, washed and chopped
3 or 4 potatoes, diced
2 quarts chicken broth
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook leeks in butter until soft but not browned. Add potatoes, cover with broth and cook until soft (about 20 minutes). Remove from heat. Add more broth to cool. Whiz in blender in small batches. Return to pan. Salt and pepper to taste. Add broth until soup is desired consistency and reheat.

LEEK AND POTATO SOUP

¼ pound butter
2 or 3 leeks, washed and chopped
3 or 4 potatoes, diced
1 quart half and half
Salt and pepper to taste

Melt butter and cook leeks until soft but not browned. Add potatoes, cover with salted water and cook 20 minutes until potatoes are soft. Add half and half, then whiz in blender in small batches. Return to pan, add salt and pepper to taste. Reheat just to boiling point. Serve hot, lukewarm or cold.

This soup is better the second day. Hint: for any potato soup, add instant mashed potatoes if you want to make it thicker.

QUESTION — Sarah Clark, Breezewood, would like recipes for angel hair fudge and for white bark fudge.

QUESTION — Mrs. David Early, Annville, would like a recipe for crumb buns made with yeast.

QUESTION — Karen Kinnane, Shartlesville, would like a recipe for garlic ring bolonga; for clear cranberry jelly that can be molded in shapes; for a yeast bread shaped like a dragon, which is sold every year at an antique shop on Church Lane, N.J. Karen writes that she has never been able to even taste one because the baker only makes two and the "help" buy them before the sale opens. The dragon appears to have an egg wash which gives a shiny golden brown color and a raisin in the eye.

ANSWER — Cindy Guigley, Machado, wanted a recipe for old-fashioned fastnachts. Thanks to Mrs. Harry Rudisill, Dover, for sending a recipe.

Fastnachts

1 cup potatoes, mashed
3 tablespoons flour
2 yeast cakes, dissolved in small amounts of lukewarm water

Start "sotz" at suppertime. Before bedtime, mix together:

3 eggs
2 cups sugar
1 cup melted shortening
1 quart warm water
1 tablespoon salt
1 pint sotz
Enough flour to make a soft dough.

Place in large dishpan and cover to keep warm. Let raise overnight. In morning knead dough, roll out on lightly floured board. Shape with doughnut cutter or cut in triangular shape with kinife, cut slot in middle. Let raise again and fry in deep fat until browned.

ANSWER — Pam Zebley, Northeast, Md., wanted a recipe for potato doughnuts like those sold at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. Thanks to Miriam Hilsher who writes that she isn't sure if this is the same recipe but her friends say they taste the same.

Potato Doughnuts

1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 cups mashed potatoes
1 quart scalded milk
4 cups flour
3 packages yeast
1 cup warm water
1 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons salt
8 cups flour

Mix shortening, sugar, and potatoes. Add milk. Soak yeast in warm water with one teaspoon sugar. When yeast becomes active, add to potato mixture. Add 4 cups flour and salt. Add remaining flour. Knead until smooth. Grease top of dough and let rise until double. Roll out and cut. Let rise again. Fry in 365- to 370-degree oil. Dip immediately into glaze and drain. Yields about six dozen doughnuts.

Glaze:

2 pounds confectioners' sugar
2 teaspoons butter
1 cup milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
Mix all together.

ANSWER — Virgina Unger, Winchester, Va., wanted a recipe for souse. Thanks to Agnes Sandt, Winfield, for sending the following instructions.

Boil pigs' feet until meat falls off. Discard bones, gristle, and skin. Cut meat very fine. Bring broth to a full boil. Salt and pepper to taste, pour over meat. Stir well and cool. Souse will set up as it cools. Add vinegar if desired.

MASHED POTATO PUFFS

2 cups mashed potatoes
2 tablespoons melted butter
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs, separated
6 tablespoons cream
Bread crumbs
Butter

Mix potatoes, butter, salt and pepper to a fine, light, creamy condition; add eggs and cream. Beat together. Shape mixture into suitably-sized portions and roll in bread crumbs. Place in greased pan with butter over each puff. Brown in 400- to 450-degree oven, turn once.

TWICE-BAKED POTATOES COTTAGE STYLE

4 medium potatoes
1 cup low-fat cottage cheese
½ cup skim milk
1 tablespoon minced onion
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Paprika
Dried parsley flakes

Gently scrub potatoes under cold water. Pierce each potato in several places with tines of fork. Bake at 400 degrees for 45 minutes or until tender.

Cut hot potatoes in half lengthwise. Scoop out potato, leaving skins intact for re-stuffing. With wire whisk, beat potato with remaining ingredients except paprika and parsley flakes until fluffy.

Pile mixture back into skins. Sprinkle with paprika and parsley flakes. Bake 10 minutes more or until just golden. Makes 8 servings, about 75 calories each.

POTATO-BACON SOUP

4 cups peeled, diced potatoes
¾ cup sliced green onion
1 cup low-fat cottage cheese
2 cups skim milk
¾ cup chopped celery
1 10¾ ounce-can condensed chicken broth
6 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt
Green onion fans, if desired

Combine potatoes, onion, celery, and chicken broth in 3-quart saucepan; bring to a boil. Cover, simmer 15 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Remove 1 cup vegetable mixture; set aside. Place half of the remaining vegetable mixture and ½ cup cottage cheese in blender container; cover. Puree until smooth. Pour into a 3-quart saucepan. Repeat with remaining vegetable mixture and cottage cheese. Stir in milk, bacon, seasonings, and reserved vegetables. Heat through, but do not boil. Serve immediately, garnishing each serving with an onion fan. 140 calories per serving. Serves 8.

Rachel Tanis
Centre Co. Dairy Princess

SKINNY FRENCH FRIES

4 medium potatoes, peeled and cut in strips
2 tablespoons salad oil
Salt
Paprika

While cutting potatoes, keep strips in bowl of ice water to crisp. Drain and pat dry on paper towels.

Spread strips on one layer of jelly-roll pan. Sprinkle with oil. Shake pan to distribute oil evenly over potatoes.

Bake strips at 450 degrees until golden brown and tender, about 30 to 40 minutes, turning frequently. Sprinkle generously with salt and paprika. Makes 8 servings, about 100 calories each.

Ida's Notebook

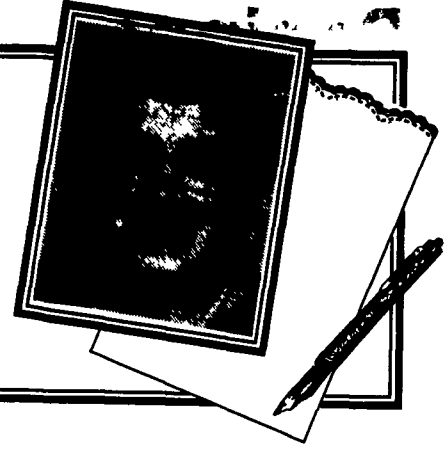
Ida Risser



When I get together with a group of ladies, it seems that the conversation often turns to food. Then they discuss all the new restaurants and where they have eaten recently. Some eat out every day while others only once a week.

Allen and I seldom eat away from home. That is until the last week when we ate five meals out of 21 meals away from our own table. Actually, I like to cook and an occasional meal away is a treat.

We attended a banquet in Lancaster and I won the centerpiece by answering a trivia question about Lancaster County. Then we also went to a large gathering of folks who had traveled together during the past year. Here again I was lucky as I won a door prize.

On Sunday night we had a different experience as we dined in an old house on East King Street in Lancaster. The deep windowsills and the hardware on the doors showed its true age. Here we had a typical British meal as the host and hostess had just returned from a stay in England.

Our wedding anniversary brought an invitation to have lunch with our son and his family on the farm. It is always nice to see the grandchildren as they grow up so quickly. One evening our church had their annual meeting that was preceded by a potluck meal. I took a dish of baked corn as I've had many compliments on it. I do believe that the one reason that mine is better than others is because I can use my own frozen tender corn. It simply does not get as good with canned kernels.

Now I hope we can stay home for a while so that I can try some of the recipes that I've been saving recently.

Barn Signs Promote Milk

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — "Drink Milk!" is the message thousands of consumers will see each day as they drive by Dairy of Distinction farms from Franklin County, PA to Warren County, NJ all the way up to St. Lawrence County, NY. The 150 colorful barn signs were created by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) to complement the picturesque appearance of dairy farms as well as to promote milk. The six-by 10-foot signs were delivered this past fall to Dairy of Distinction farms located on well-traveled roadways.

Part of the Brigham family now, 3-year-old Dimitry, wearing glasses, eagerly joins in the fun with his adoptive parents, Kathie and Chris, and his new sisters and brother. Dimitry, who had spent nearly all his life in a Russian orphanage, came to Brigham's suburban Washington, D.C., home four months ago.

Dimitry Finds A Home

By Joy Aschenbach
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Fourteen tiny beds in a Russian orphanage, toddlers tucked in for the night. Little voices calling, "Papa, Papa," as Chris Brigham walked into the room.

The sight and sound suddenly and forever gripped his heart.

Brigham had traveled all the way from Fairfax, VA., to Vyshniy Volochek, a city about 220 miles northwest of Moscow. He had come for blond, 3-year-old Dimitry.

Within a week, the frail, cross-eyed boy was headed for his new home in suburban Washington, D.C., with Brigham, 39, a manager in a real estate development company.

Dimitry was one of 8,195 children from about 80 countries who were granted adoption visas from the U.S. State Department in fiscal year 1994.

Reflecting the changing world political situation, more countries are now making children available for foreign adoption than in the past. They include Russia, China, Vietnam and several Eastern European nations.

"There were many anxious moments, many leaps of faith along the way," Brigham recalls. "It was a mind-boggling, exhausting experience, but I went there with no intention of backing out. You cannot enter this international adoption process without the willingness to accept whatever comes of it."

A few months later, in sweatshirt and blue jeans, bespectacled Dimitry is racing through the red brick house and climbing up on Kathie Brigham's lap.

"Mama, I want a Coke," he says. He now speaks only English. An operation has corrected his eye condition.

Both Brighams say that Dimitry, nicknamed "Dema," completes their dream of having four children. They also have an American-born adopted daughter and two biological children.

Welcoming Dimitry culminated a six-month adoption process through an agency in Potomac, Md. Along the way, there were heartaches.

The Brighams had become attached to a Ukrainian boy, Alex, through his photograph, and were looking forward to making him theirs.

But before they could, Ukraine shut down foreign adoptions last July as a step toward overhauling its system. Countries sometimes make such cutoffs with little warning.

Until they actually had their arms around Dimitry, Kathie Brigham says, "we were worried we'd lose both."

This January, President Boris Yeltsin vetoed legislation that would have halted foreign adoption of Russian children. Only children in Russian orphanages who officially have some type of health problem can be placed with foreign parents.

Adoptions to the United States account for about half of the world's international adoptions — far exceeding those made to Western Europe, Canada and Australia. But foreign children represent only about 15 percent of all U.S. adoptions.

Traditionally, the largest number come to the United States each year from South Korea. But children from Russia have become the second most popular, followed by China, Paraguay, Guatemala and India.

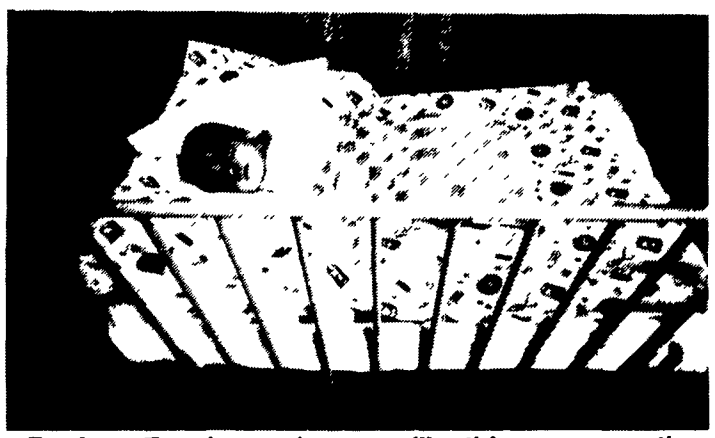
Since the 1991 collapse of the Soviet Union, more than 2,600 Russian children have found homes in the United States. Some 83,000 South Koreans have been adopted since the postwar period of the mid-1950s.

The number of overseas adoptions in the United States peaked in the mid-1980s at 9,000 to 10,000 a year. The decline since is primarily attributable to fewer adoptions from South Korea, whose government has been encouraged its own citizens to adopt.

Adoptions of Romanians reached a high of about 2,550 the year after the 1989 overthrow of the Romanian dictatorship. But Romania has virtually closed off foreign adoptions as part of a crackdown on corruption such as bribery and baby-selling.

Today, most adoptive children from abroad are under age 1; the rest, like Dimitry, usually are no older than 4.

The often tangled issues of termination of the rights of birth



Far from Russian orphanages like this one, more than 2,600 Russian children have found homes in the United States since the 1991 collapse of the Soviet Union. Only children in orphanages who officially have some type of health problems are placed with foreign parents. Americans adopt the largest number.

parents and determining who is a true orphan are critical for U.S entry, says Rita Arthur, a senior adjudication officer with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The Hague Convention, a new treaty on international adoptions, is "the first attempt to legitimize the whole process and provide safeguards," Susan Freivalds, executive director of Adoptive Families of America, a national support organization based in Minneapolis, tells National Geographic. But ratification is a few years away.

For decades, overseas adoptions have usually been made by older couples and others considered ineligible by agencies in the competition for sought-after American children.

"In international adoption, there are so many children needing families, waiting in orphanages, that the criteria are more flexible and the process moves more quickly," says Linda Perilstein, executive director of a Washington agency that has placed about 350 Russian childen.

But overseas adoption can be riskier. Generally these children have more health problems than American children, she says. Information about their medical and family history is sketchy. And language and cultural obstacles have to be overcome.

Yet when children come from abroad, new parents often feel more secure that they are theirs forever. "There is little worry," says Perilstein, "that a birth parent will knock on the door one day and want the child back."

Pennsylvania Honey Queen Jona Hoover

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HOLTWOOD (Lancaster Co.) — You don't need to raise bees to love honey. Nor do you need to raise bees to be an articulate spokesperson for the bee industry. Not if you're Jona Hoover, who recently assumed the role of Pennsylvania Honey Queen.

When Jona began to baby sit for the state chairperson of the Pennsylvania Honey Association, Becky Fisher Gerhart, she immediately became immersed in the honey industry. Becky immediately recognized Jona as having potential for being an excellent communicator and leader — exactly the qualifications needed to become a voice for the bee industry.

Becky, herself, was the state Honey Queen in 1980-81. And, she's been actively involved in promoting the industry ever since as chairperson for the organization.

Although Jona liked honey and was intrigued with the bee industry, she wasn't sure how she could fit the role as honey queen into an already busy schedule. In addition to school, job, community, and church activities, Jona is the state's Miss Job's Daughter, who represents the youth organization for the Girls' Masonic Community.

But planning is Jona's forte. She plotted the responsibilities and found that duties as Miss Job's Daughter are heaviest in the spring while bee promotion is scattered throughout the year with the most demanding responsibility in the fall.

Becky taught Jona what she knew about the industry, and Jona searched library books to expand her knowledge further.

The next step was filling out an application and writing a 300-word essay on honey. At the Beekeepers Meeting in November, Jona was interviewed by a panel of judges, and points were tallied for poise, personality, and knowledge. Jona came out the winner and was crowned at the November meeting but it was not until February 1, that Jona officially began her duties.

Although Jona doesn't come from a beekeeping family, it won't be long until that changes. Plans are made to set up some beehives on her grandparents' (Dick and Carol Hoover's) home this spring.

"I'm looking forward to first-hand experience in beekeeping," Jona said.

She's also learning all she can on combating mites, the biggest problem facing the industry.

"Mites don't affect honey but they weaken the hives so there is no honey," Jona said of the widespread problem.

Federal law requires that all hives be treated, but the mites are difficult to eradicate. Although bees generally return to the same hive, stray bees do enter other hives. Guard bees allow the stray bees to enter if they are carrying honey. If the bee is a carrier, the disease infects the hive.

Jona needs to answer questions pertaining to the industry whenever she appears at promotions. Answering unpredictable questions doesn't intimidate Jona.

Jona said that she fits the description of oldest children — doers, take charge, outgoing, and responsible.

"One needs to be a leader when you're one of six children," she said. "I think that has influenced my life more than anything else.

"Our family is very close," Jona said of her parents, R. Scott and Sandy Hoover and siblings, Jarred, 17; Judah, 15; Jason, 14; Jozlyn, 11; and Josiah, 9.

Honey promotion began in the Hoover home when Jona enticed her brothers to eat oatmeal by drizzling honey over the hot cereal. That sweet touch made all the difference in taste. Jona hopes that honey promotion is as convincing outside the home as it was with her family.

The Hoover family (mother and children) sing together for churches and organizations. Her father takes care of the technical sound. Jona said, "My mother always says she raised her own backup group."

Of her drive to achieve, Jona said, "I've always had high expectations for myself."

Last year, she graduated from Penn Manor High School where she was a member of student council, the volleyball team, National Honor Society, Spanish Honor Society, International Thespian Society, and a cast member of plays and musicals thoroughout high school.

So that Jona could devote more time to promotional duties, she postponed college education a year. In cooperation, Millersville University agreed to hold her scholarships until she begins studies in public relations communications in the fall.

Jona works for Gourmet Pretzel Gallery and is active in the Millersville Brethren In Christ Church. She is a member of Eastern Star and Amaranth, both Masonic-related organizations for women. She has been a member of Job's Daughters, a community service organization for girls, since she was 11 years old. She traveled to Seattle to compete for the international title of Miss Job's Daughter, where she placed third out of 31 contestants.

At the end of her reign as honey queen, Jona will again travel to the West Coast, this time to compete for the National Honey Queen title.

Jona said her favorite honey is the kind made from blueberry blossoms, but she enjoys many other varieties of honey.

While fulfilling duties at promotions across the state, Jona often spends the night at the promotional chairperson's home, Becky Fisher Gerhart.

Becky's husband said, "If we ever have a daughter, we hope she's just like Jona. "She's so reliable and responsible — just a really neat person."

The Gerharts' sons refer to Jona as "That Girl."

Now Jona good-naturedly refers to herself as "That girl who promotes honey."

In April, a brochure with Jona's favorite recipes using honey will be released. For a copy, send a self-addressed stamped business-sized envelope to Rebecca Fisher Gerhart, 66 S. Manor St., Mountville, PA 17554.

Pennsylvania Honey Queen Jona Hoover offers samples of honey to encourage consumers to use more honey.

Holstein Association Chooses Distinguished Winners

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Senior winners in the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's Distinguished Junior Member Contest are Jill Harnish of Christiana and Rachel Tanis of Centre Hall.

These two women will represent the state in the National Distinguished Junior Member Contest to be held in June at the National Holstein Convention in Pittsburgh.

To receive this award, contestants needed to write about their accomplishments in Holstein activities, school work, community involvement, leadership, and their ideas for the future in agriculture and the Holstein industry. Six finalists were chosen. The finalists were interviewed by a panel of judges, who then combined their scrapbook achievements and interview scores to select two winners.

Read about these two outstanding women in their own words.

Jill Harnish Says 'My Heart Is In Production'

The farm where I was born, raised and curently work is also the same farm where my father was born, raised, and works. My father milks registered Holstein cows, although that was not always the case. When my father was born my grandfather had a registered Ayrshire farm. In the early 1900s my great-grandfather was the first to bring registered Ayrshire cattle to Lancaster County. My father showed Ayrshires extensively as a teen-ager. In 1965 he married my mother and began to take over the farm. He gradually began to switch to Holsteins, and by 1970 my father's herd was 100 percent Holstein.

In the year 1970, my sister Jenny was born, joining my older brother Brian who was born in 1968. The year 1975 brought my arrival. At this time my parents' operation consisted of 40 registered and grade Holsteins. My father also cropped 90 acres of land.

My first recollections of my duties on the farm were holding the tails of cows for my father during milking and cleaning out water bowls, for which I got paid a penny a bowl. Later when I was too young to be in 4-H, but not too young to show, I had plans of showing one of my dad's calves which I had named Maple. Maple and I made our debut at the Solanco Fair. Everything was fine until show time approached, when I backed out and my sister showed Maple for me.

When I was 8 years old I began regular chores in the barn. After school I would sweep up in the barn and feed my pets. By this time I had overcome my setback of my first showing experience. That is when I decided I wanted a cute little Jersey calf. After three years of having Jerseys as my 4-H project, I guess you could say I wised up, or maybe my thrill of Jerseys just wore out.

In 1987 I won $300 toward the purchase of a registered heifer calf in the Youth Participation Contest at the Solanco Fair. In March of 1988 my father went to a herd dispersal and bought a December calf, Archview Marvel Marcie, for me to put my money toward. Marcie was the start of my Holstein herd. Because my parents believe you appreciate what you work for

Rachel Tanis Promotes Industry She Loves

Through the years that I have worked in the Holstein industry, I have found that it has given me many things. From meeting new friends to watching the Holstein breed develop into something greater from year to year has been rewarding.

HOME OPERATION: My experience with the Holstein breed began after my family moved from Mansfield, Missouri to Branchville, New Jersey in 1983 where we resided until 1988. We then moved on to Centre Hall, Pennsylvania because of developmental pressures on our farm. This was a learning experience for all of my family. I am the daughter of Jacob and Sally Tanis III and have two older brothers, Jacob IV, age 24, and Adam, age 23. We have all grown stronger as a family through these moves from state to state and are proud of the fact that we are a family run farm. Presently we have 97 cows on test with approximately 110 young stock. Our herds Breed Age Average is currently at 109.0 points. Aside from milking cows we also raise corn, alfalfa, and soybeans. With my brothers and father working in the fields during the harvesting season, it leaves my mother and me to do the milking.

At the present time, we have a 85-cow tie stall barn. We also have five separate pens for our breeding stock housing and one pen for raising bulls. Our calves are first housed in one of the 15 calf hutches we have and then are moved into a pen where they are gradually weaned off by the 12th week.

FEEDING PROGRAM: Since moving to Pennsylvania we have been using a Total Mixed Ration. Our herd average since then has increased almost 9,000 pounds. Our present herd average is 26,374 pounds of milk, 974 of fat, and 849 protein. Our TMR is presently based at 90 pounds of milk.

MILKING/HEALTH PROGRAM: Our herd is milked twice daily in a tie stall barn. We pre and post-dip and have been pleased with the results. We would like to see a lower somatic cell count yet, some of our best milkers are the cause for it to be where it is. We make sure that a cow with a high somatic cell count gets her machine sanitized before it goes on another cow. This has kept our cases of mastitis down considerably.

We use two vets for our herd health. One comes once a month to check for pregnancies. The other is a local vet, who is used for our monthly herd health checks. My father takes care of most of our veterinary work except for operations. He is also in charge of doing all of the artificial breeding of the cows. We strive to keep our calving interval at 12.3 months. We have been able to maintain this because of the clean up bulls that we have on our farm. These bulls are also used at the neighbors' farms throughout the years.

RECORD KEEPING: Record keeping is completed primarily by my father, mother and myself. My mother's primary concern is with the DHIA sheets since she is the primary milker. She also is in charge of the bill paying in the family. My father does all the breeding so he keeps track of all the latest heats. He is also in charge, along with my brother, of the field work and our feeding progarm. I am in charge of making sure that the calf registration and vaccination is completed on time. With school and Dairy Princess duty taking up most of my daytime, I find myself at times working late at night on some of the registrations to make sure they are sent out on time. I am also in charge of deciding when the calves are ready for vaccination and when they are ready to be weaned. We have found this system to work best for us so far because each of us has a certain interest in different areas.

RESPONSIBILITIES ON THE FARM: As stated before, our responsibilities are shared by family members. While serving as an Alternate Pennsylvanai Dairy Princess, Centre County Dairy Princess, and a student at Penn State, I have found myself away from the farm more than before. Yet I help every morning before class when the average 20 calves need fed milk. We also must clean up the feeding mangers in front of the cows, and their beds while they are at pasture. I work closely with my father with the breeding choices of my own cows. I usually follow his advice because I haven't found too many faults in his herd. He and I believe that one breeding choice could affect us in the future. I also feel that careful record keeping is essential in raising a successful herd. Our system so far has proven effective so I plan to follow it when I begin to raise my own herd.

BREEDING PROGRAM: Ideal Holsteins have been long known in Centre County for not using the index system. We have found that in our herd, breeding with the "High Number" bull, has not been profitable. We breed our cows to be long lasting and we found that using the index bulls did not give us this. We mainly use Semex bulls because of the strength of the offspring we get. We begin by looking at the maternal line to see how the dam classified and how much she milked. If the dam is not profitable, why invest in a bull out of her? Sometimes we touch base with whether or not the dam is positive on protein or milk for a final evaluation. We also look for improving our type in our herd. We believe that a good looking cow can last in the herd longer than one that is bred for index.

Granted we have not found any "sire proof guys" knocking at our door to buy our bulls but, we have found that many local farmers are interested in what we have. Another aspect that we find rewarding is when other farmers come and ask us what kind of bulls we are using. We see this as a compliment to our herd and our breeding program.

JUNIOR ACTIVITIES: Being involved in the Junior Holstein Association has proved to be rewarding to me. I have always believed that if you did not get involved in some activity you would be missing out on something. Since my first year in 4-H I have been involved on the Dairy Bowl team.. Being involved in Dairy Bowl has taught me more about the dairy industry and how the Holstein breed developed than anything else.

Presently I am serving as vice president of the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association. I am also serving as co-chair for the ad that Pennsylvania Juniors are putting in the program book along with being on the committee for finding calves to be sold in the Pennsylvania Spring Sale for a profit for the Juniors. Being involved in the executive committee for the past two years has been a great opportunity for me to meet Juniors from around the state and to hear their ideas.

Another aspect of being a Junior Member in the Holstein Association that I have found rewarding is being able to show cows. I find that being choosy about what to take to certain shows can in the end be worthwhile. My father grew up showing cows and the love of doing it has been passed on to me. Learning how to handle the animals has given me an understanding of what patience means. I have also developed a better eye for cows through this by attending shows and finding out what the judges are looking for.

FUTURE PLANS: Upon completion of Penn State I have all intention to get involved in the dairy industry. Having been behind the scenes the past few months as a Pennsylvania 1st Alernate Dairy Princess, I want to continue to help promote the dairy industry after graduation. Being a communications representative for the dairy industry group would be ideal. I would find this rewarding in the aspect that I would be giving back to the dairy industry all that it gave me.

I also plan to stay in the dairy business by maintaining my own small herd. I would find this satisfying because I would have the best of both worlds, raising Holsteins and promoting an industry I love. I believe my drive and tenacity would be proven worthy for farmers everywhere because I would not give up on them. We as farmers need to help each other in order to overcome all the walls we must face on a daily basis.

CLOSING: In closing, I believe the Junior Holstein Association has proven invaluable in my future. I have grown to love the Holstein breed and what it represents. Being close to the decisions on the family operation has given me the ability to mature into a breeder and appreciate fine Holstein cattle. And in the future I hope I can instill this admiration on to my children and generations to come.

Finally I will leave you with a quote written by my great-grandfather, Jacob Tanis Sr., a well known Guernsey breeder at the time. He wrote this in 1952 and I believe it has been passed on through the generations and instilled into me. He said, "It is my belief that a cow man is born and does not acquire this ability only from education through books. By continually working with and studying cows does he develop this ability. 'As the eye of the master fatteneth the cattle'; so, I believe, it is with the cow man." -Jacob Tanis Sr. 1952.

Government Publication On Cholesterol Available

WASHINGTON, D.C. — More than half of all Americans have dangerously high blood cholesterol levels. Many of these individuals are at great risk for coronary heart disease. Yet simple steps can be taken to lower your blood cholesterol level and reduce this risk to your heart.

Step By Step: Eating to Lower Your High Blood Cholesterol is a new U.S. Government publication that will help you learn how to identify and eat foods that are low in saturated fats and cholesterol. Key facts about high blood cholesterol and how it relates to your heart are discussed. General rules and guidance for diet, physical activity and weight loss are given. Practical tips about adopting healthy eating habits, buying and preparing foods, eating at restaurants and social events, and choosing a weight loss program are provided. Fourteen comprehensive tables list the saturated fat, cholesterol, and sodium content in foods. Colorful charts and graphs are used throughout to emphasize guidance and advice.

Produced by the National Institute of Health and endorsed by the American Heart Association, Step By Step: Eating to Lower Your High Blood Cholesterol is an easy to use guide to lowering your high blood cholesterol by taking control of what you eat.

AGCO ALLIS
5600 SERIES TRACTORS

UTILITY VERSATILITY

The AGCO Allis 5670 and 5680 utility tractors offer fuel efficiency, reliable drawbar and PTO power, and excellent maneuverability in the 63-72 PTO hp range. They're also backed by a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty

- Air- and oil-cooled diesel reliability. The 4-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engine delivers 63 PTO hp in the 5670 and 73 PTO hp in the 5680, both with a 22% torque rise. It also eliminates components that cause downtime in liquid-cooled engines. Plus, it is among the best in fuel consumption tests.
- Lots of speed choices. The synchropower transmission with synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting , hydraulically-actuated clutch. The optional transmissions include 16 forward and 16 reverse with creeper speeds and a dual-speed of 24 forward and 12 reverse speeds. Both tractor models are available as either 2WD or AWD.
- PTO power to do more. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/I 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers. Optional telescopic lower links are available.
- Quality features put you in control. The 5600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear* radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes, and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns.

and have not been ones to give me dairy animals this was a great opportunity for me to get my herd started with only a little of my own money invested. At this time, I continued to have regular chores in the barn and helped with the milking on Sunday and occasionally during the week.

I always loved the farm and the work, but it was not until I was in high school that I developed a real interest in good quality cows. In 1990 my brother went to Oklahoma to harvest wheat. During that summer my sister and I took my brother's full-time spot. This was a good experience for me, having been given more responsibility, I really began to love the work involved on a dairy.

In high school, I was enrolled in the ag program where I became friends with many other farm kids and became a member of FFA. FFA soon had me involved in many new activities. In 1991 I practiced with the FFA judging team. After a series of practices the top three individuals, of which I was one, comprised the team. Our team won the Penn State Spring Judging Contest and in June we went on to the FFA Week Contest where I placed sixth individually and our team won the contest. Winning this contest sent us on to Kansas City, Missouri in November. We did not fair nearly as well at the National Contest, but the experience was unforgettable. The two other team members and I became very close friends and continue to keep in contact. The closeness that we shared as a team meant a lot to all of us. I believe much of the reason we were successful was because we wanted to win for one another.

In 1992 I became more closely involved in our home operation. My brother who worked full time on the farm was becoming less and less interested in our dairy operation, and more interested in custom field work. His knees were bothering him and milking in a stall barn was uncomfortable. He told me that whenever I wanted to milk I was more than welcome to. My brother now operates a successful silo filing and combining operation.

In June I had started working as a cashier at a hardware store. By November I left that job to work at home with more frequency. I started doing the evening work with my dad at this time, and a neighbor helped in the mornings. I offered to help in the morning too, but my parents did not feel that was a good idea. They were right, because my mornings were spent doing homework. This was a very busy year for me, as I was a senior in high school, and also the reigning Lancaster County Dairy Princess.

Being dairy princess was a very valuable and worthwhile experience. I realize that one dairy princess' schedule is not like another's, but believe me I was busy. I had more than 120 presentations and traveled over 4,000 miles that year. Everything I did was enjoyable because it was all very different.

Although the position became very frustrating at times, I am very glad I was able to serve the dairy industry in this way. Being dairy princess taught me a lot of things. One of those was, that although promotion is just as important as production, my heart is still in the production end.

As 1993 rolled around that meant graduation time, which meant I needed to decide what I wanted to do with the rest of my life. Although I took academic courses in school, I was not interested in attending college. The idea of studying dairy science did not appeal to me because I felt I could learn just as much working on a dairy and at the same time be making money, rather than spending it.

I wanted to stay at my home farm full time, but I was not sure if my father could supply me with full time work. He did, and in June of 1993, I started full time as herdsperson. I thoroughly enjoy working for my dad. My responsibilities in addition to milking with my Dad, include calves from newborn until five months, breeding and mating decisions, semen purchasing, bag feed purchasing, and registry. I also help with other general farm work.

In December of 1993, I started working with Belmont Breeders doing relief artificial inseminating. Ron and Kay Hall, a couple from my church, are the owners of Belmont Breeders. Belmont Breeders are authorized independent distributors of Semex, Landmark, Tri-State, Network, NOBA, and Taurus. We also work at proving young sires. In August of 1994, they offered me a job as a subcontractor under their name. I became the third technician and I also worked in semen sales. For the other technicians and me, our direct herd customers were not getting the attention that they needed because of our busy breeding schedules. We decided to make some changes, and I now work with all of the direct herd customers and do relief breeding when needed. This is much more compatible with my schedule at home. The main thing I miss with working on my parents' farm is not getting out and talking with people. This is a big reason why I enjoy selling semen and breeding cows.

Dairying has changed greatly since 1975 and so has my parents' Spruce-Edge Farm. We have added 14 stalls and currently milk 54 cows. We have tried rubber mats in our stalls, but we have more recently installed mattresses in some of our stalls and bedding keepers in others. We built a loose housing dry cow barn with a manure pack and locking head gates. We have expanded our calf housing and switched from calf hutches to calf kennels. We have also built a gravity-flow manure pit and just finished a grain bin to store dry corn in.

Although we have a rather traditional feeding program, it too has changed. We used to feed a lot of corn silage and a little hay, now we feed a total mixed ration of corn silage, haylage, hay, and protein mix. New ideas in feeding have brought about the use of methionine hydroxyanalog, niacin, iso plus, and BST. Modern feeding practices have greatly reduced metabolic disorders like milk fever and acetonemia. Our heifer program has stayed the same. Although there are now products on the market such as Bovatec, we feel that many of the new philosophies about heifer raising have not been beneficial to the dairymen.

Our dry cow program is by far our greatest feeding change.

We have changed from the days where dry cows were kept with the milking cows or heifers, to understanding the importance of a sound dry cow program. We feed grass or timothy hay, a little corn silage, and about four pounds of grain specially formulated for dry cows.

The breeding philosophy we use on our farm is also rather traditional. Our goal is to breed good, old, long-lasting, profitable cows. We use 100 percent artificial insemination and stick to mainly proven sires. Breeding cows artificially is much easier now than in 1975 with new products like prostaglandin and GNRH. We have changed from breeding for fat, and being one of the top herds in the county, to a time where consumers do not want high fat milk. Breeding for high type cattle has remained one of our goals. In 1982, 21st Century Genetics purchased Spruce-Edge Majesty from Dad. In his time, Spruce has one of the highest type proofs in the breed at 3.28. Much of the information that we use for mating cows we obtain from the Red Book and from Bull Search. You will read more about our breeding program in My Personal Breeding Program. Our herd is classified and our present BAA is 102.9.

Like many farm wives, my mother is the main record keeper. She keeps the books in order and pays the bills. DHIA is something that continues making record keeping much easier. We continue to be on official test but we have changed from two times a day testing to testing once a day with an Am-PM timer. Our county has also changed from being with Pennsylvania DHIA, to now being our own association.

Everyone does their part in the farm management. My brother helps my dad with the 190 acres of ground that we crop. They work together at all of the many things that are involved with raising productive crops. Making top quality forages is very difficult, but they have been successful in doing so, which is extremely beneficial for our herd. I work with my dad taking care of the cattle and my mom takes care of the bookwork, lawn work, and housework.

Fortunately, along with all of these changes over the past 19 years our milk production has also changed. In 1977 my father had the high herd in the county with 17,000 pounds of milk and 715 pounds of fat. Our herd average has steadily risen to 20,461 pounds of milk, 773 pounds of fat, and 676 pounds of protein. With continued research and new ideas on feeding, breeding and management, I expect our milk production will continue to rise.

My involvement with the dairy industry and the Holstein Association is very exciting and yet still very uncertain. My immediate plans are to stay directly involved with the Association and continue to work for my parents, slowly building up my base herd. Hopefully someday I will become a dairy farmer's wife and raise my own children the way my parents raised me: with a clear understanding of hard work and responsibility and a deep love for the land, family, and the Lord.

FFA HAPPENINGS

Manor FFA's major fundraiser is the annual fruit sale, where the chapter sells a variety of fruit and fruit baskets. This year, the chapter sold about 1,500 cases of fruit and 150 fruit baskets. Some of the members who made the baskets include, from left, Stephanie Graham, Janee Reihl, Tina Henry, Jessica Althouse, and Melissa McCardell.

MILLERSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Manor FFA, of Penn Manor High School, recently participated in a variety of contests. Several members were recognized.

Manor FFA had two teams compete at Eastern States. The dairy products team, consisting of Jim Best, Joe Best,and Jason Reifsnyder, placed third. The ag mechanics team, which consists of Barry Graver, Dwane Graver, and Neil Ebersole, also placed high.

At this year's Farm show, Barry Graver, a senior at Penn Manor, received the Star Keystone in ag production and competed against other Star students at the state level. Matt Charles, also a senior, received the Star Keystone in sales and service and competed against other Star students at the state level.

The highest honor that an ag student can receive in Pennsylvania is the Keystone Degree. Keystone degree recipients were honored at the Farm Show. Recipients include Kyle P. Harnish, Stephanie Graham, David Parker, Jeremy Murry, Greg Hess, Matt Charles, Barry Graver, and Neil Ebersole.

Berks Co. Creed & Interview Contest

Eight members of the Twin Valley FFA Chapter recently traveled to Oley Valley High School for the Berks County FFA interview and creed speaking contest. Tulpehocken, Conrad-Weiser, and Oley Valley High schools also participated in the contest.

Creed speaking, which is a contest for first-year FFA members to recite the national FFA creed, had the largest group of Twin Valley members competing. The creed contest is judged on the student's ability to recite the national FFA creed as well as answer questions on the meaning of it.

The judges gave the students a score on knowledge and understanding of the creed as well as speaking ability and poise. Kristin Leisey and Erica Kenney will both move on to the regional contest with 5th and 6th place finishes, respectively. Amanda Freeman, Rebecca Gardner, Joel Stoltzfus, and Richard Glaser all did a commendable job.

The interview contest helps high school students to prepare for the world of work by participating in a mock interview. In addition to conducting a job interview, the student must submit a letter of application and a job application.

The students are asked questions about the job they have selected, such as experience and reasons why he/she is the best person for the job. Lynn Hepner and Matt Perini represented Twin Valley in this contest. Lynn finished first in the county contest and will move on to regional.

The regional contest will be held April 25 at Manheim.

Vegetarianism A Real Trend?

CHICAGO, Ill. — Recent reports have suggested that vegetarianism is a growing trend. Once again, the checkoff-funded Eating in America Today 11 (EAT II) dietary intake and attitude report conducted for the National Live Stock and Meat Board found that what we actually eat doesn't always match what we think we eat.

We're not all nuts. The EAT II study, comparing actual food intake to self-reported dietary preferences, found that most self-reported Meat Avoiders and Vegetarians do eat meat. In fact, their actual meat consumption is only about 1 ounce less than the self-reported Meat Eaters. On average, self-reported Avoiders and Vegetarians eat 2.3 ounces of beef, veal, pork, lamb and deli/prepared meats a day. Self-reported Meat Eaters consume 3.5 ounces of these meats a day.

Although meat's role in the diet has been changing, America is still a nation of meat-lovers. More than 99 percent of the population eat meat (this does not include poultry or fish), with less than 1 percent not consuming any meat during the 14-day recording period. However, about 5 percent classify themselves as Meat Avoiders (say they never eat meat) and 2 percent classify themselves as Vegetarians (always on a vegetarian diet). While Meat Eaters are split evenly by gender, self-reported Avoiders and Vegetarians are predominantly women and there is overlap between the latter two groups.

Similar Eating Patterns. Self-reported Meat Eaters, Avoiders and Vegetarians have the same pattern of caloric intake by food groups. All segments get the most calories from the Bread Group; followed by the Meat Group; Fats, Oils and Sweets; Milk Group; Vegetable Group and the Fruit Group. Self-reported Vegetarians eat more foods from the Bread Group, specifically pasta, and cereal.

Fat facts. The study found that all three segments consume more than the recommended 30 percent of calories from fat: Meat Eaters, 37 percent; Meat Avoiders, 34 percent, and Vegetarians at 35 percent.

The Meat Avoiders fat intake is lower than the other two segments because they consume the least amount of food from all food groups. While self-reported Vegetarians' Meat Group consumption is slightly less than Meat Eaters, they consume more foods from the Milk Group. Cheese is their greatest source of saturated fat.

Self-reported Vegetarians make great strides in reducing foods from the Fats, Oils and Sweets category, specifically, they consume fewer sweetened beverages. However, their fat intake from this category is virtually the same as Meat Eaters.

Perceptions about meat consumption. The clamor for change in the American diet has led to confusion about the role of meat. According to the Eat II report, while 52 percent of adults disagree with the statement, "Adults should eliminate meat from their diets," about 25 percent agreed with the statement and about 23 percent didn't know.

"Women and teens think they need to cut back on meat because they are concerned about fat. This isn't a wise strategy because lean meat provides many essential nutrients," said Mary Abbott Hess, L.H.D., M.S., R.D., nutrition consultant and former president of The American Dietetic Association. "Instead, they should cut down on fried foods, rich sauces and desserts which provide calories and fat without the nutritional benefits of meat."

How To Locate Missing Vital Records

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Where To Write For Vital Records is an important U.S. Government Publication that explains how and where to write for birth, death, marriage and divorce certificates.

Official certificates for birth, death, marriage and divorce events are on file in various state, city, county and other local government offices. This publication lists the appropriate agencies to contact in each state within the United States including the address and telephone number and the cost of a copy. Other useful information on the availability of records and how to obtain certified copies is also provided. Specific instructions on what to include in your request when writing for records are described. Information and instructions on how to obtain foreign records and certificates of citizenship are also covered.

Horticulture Volunteers Needed

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension is looking for volunteers to help in its horticulture program in Chester County. The volunteers will be involved in answering horticulture questions in the office, plant clinics, planning and maintaining a demonstration garden and open house, giving talks, and providing horticulture information to residents of Chester County. Training will be provided to help you with your project.

An orientation session will be held on both March 8 and March 9, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. You may attend either session to learn more about the program, fill out an application, and take a pre-test. Training classes will be held from 1 - 4 p.m. during the fall.

To register for the orientation session or to obtain further information, contact Lou Middleton, Horticulture Agent, Chester County Cooperative Extension, 610-696-3500.

AGRICULTURE'S LEADING EDGE FFA

1995 Dairy Of Distinction Farms Sought

Kingston (Luzerne Co.) — Do you take pride in maintaining your dairy farm? Does your dairy farm project an attractive, wholesome image to consumers? If so, the Dairy Of Distinction Program of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania will consider your farm for the program's annual recognition awards.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program was first started in 1983 to recognize the hard work and dedication of the farmers who maintain attractive farms. The purpose of the program is to instill a greater sense of confidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products, and increase their sales.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings, since this is what our dairy product consumers observe as they drive by. The cleanliness of the barnyard, feed areas and manure management are other aspects of the farm operation taken into consideration. Roadside judging is conducted during the month of May. Former winners of past years are also rejudged to ensure they continue to meet the standards of excellence.

To qualify for consideration, you must be actively dairy farming and shipping milk. Applications are available from your state secretary, Pennsylvania: Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., 239 Schuyler Avenue, Box 5 , Kingston, Pa. 18704, (717) 283-2204, New York: Carol Weddle, N.Y. Holstein Association, 957 Mitchell Street, Ithaca N.Y. 14851, (607) 273-7591, or New Jersey: August Knispel, R.D. 1, Box 325, Pittstown, New Jersey 08867, (201) 735-4989. All applications muse be completed and returned by April 15th, 1995.

The Dairy of Distinction program is financed in Pennsylvania by Dairy Farmers through the American Dairy Association Dairy Council and Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, plus Agribusiness organizations. The Pennsylvania Dairy Of Distinction Program is conducted with advice and help by Penn State cooperative extension.

HOW IS YOUR FARM SCORED?

Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc.

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance and other factors which can be controlled by the farmer. Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging. All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane). Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block.

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy products or dairy farming. Farmers who apply for awards agree that; if selected they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition.

HOW THE APPLICATION WORKS

The owner or operator of the dairy farm should sign the application and send it to NEDFBP secretary by April 15.

HOW THE JUDGING WORKS

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May. Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis. Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign. The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer. All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent on their Dairy of Distinction score card. Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality.

RULES FOR THE DAIRY OF DISTINCTION AWARD

1). The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Committee.
2). The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer. It is suggested that a wood post 4' x 4' x 12' or iron pipe 2' x 12' be used. Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground. Top of the bracket shou'd be lower than six inches from the top of the post.
3). Sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside. An attractive post and bracket, or other frame, shall be used to display the sign. No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign. Sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage.
4). Signs shall not be moved to other premises. New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign.
5). Replacement of damaged signs shall be the discretion of the committee.
6). No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expense.
7). Judges' decisions will be final.
8). Judging will take place between May 1st and May 31st.
9). Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1st and April 30th. If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1st and May 31st so they have the opportunity to keep the sign.
10). Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee.

Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support for the dairy industry. The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead.

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to make application for the award. Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 91 districts will receive an 18" x 24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm.

Cedar Crest FFA Participates In County Record Book Contest

On January 26, the Lebanon County FFA Record Book Contest was held at Cedar Crest High School. Many books from all over the county were entered. The judges scored the books on accuracy, completeness, neatness, and labor income. Here are the Cedar Crest results: dairy herd - 1. Jeff Zimmerman (Blue Ribbon, Gold Medal), 3. Stacy Krall (Blue Ribbon, Bronze Medal); sheep breeding - 1. Wendy Atkins (Blue Ribbon, Gold Medal); sheep finishing - 2. Jon Harnish (Red Ribbon, Silver Medal); beef breeding - 2. Jon Harnish (Red Ribbon, Silver Medal); goat finishing - 2. Jason Burke (Red Ribbon, Silver Medal); rabbits - 2. Joe Hershey (Blue Ribbon, Silver Medal); corn-grain - 1. Andy Martin (Blue Ribbon, Gold Medal); soybeans - 2. Jon Harnish (Red Ribbon, Silver Medal); floriculture - 1. Heather Orner (Blue Ribbon, Gold Medal); home improvement - 2. Mike Hostetter (Red Ribbon, Silver Medal); on-farm work experience 251-500 hrs. - 1. Wendy Atkins (Blue Ribbon, Gold Medal); on-farm work experience 501+ hrs. - 1. Keith Wartluft (Blue Ribbon, Gold Medal), 2. Jacob Frazier (Blue Ribbon, Silver Medal); off-farm work experience 500 hrs. - 1. Eugene Chadwick (Red Ribbon, Bronze Medal); skills and tasks less than 100 hrs. - 1. Andy Martin (Blue Ribbon, Gold Medal), 2. Ryan Gates (Red Ribbon, Silver Medal), 3. Shawn Weaver (Red Ribbon, Bronze Medal), 4. Tim Boyer (Red Ribbon); skills and tasks 100+ hrs. - 1. Chuck Aurentz (Blue Ribbon, Gold Medal), 2. Bill Smeltzer (Red Ribbon, Silver Medal).

4-H County Cooks Club

The County Cooks N.J. 4-H Club was very successful at 4-H Achievement night. Jessica Snyder of Flemington and Vicki Marcine of Whitehouse received two medals each. Jessica and Vicki both received an award for outstanding food members. Jessica received an award in crafts and frozen foods. Vicki received an award in foods and dairy.

Heather MacGillivary of Flemington, a new member, received a gold certificate. One club received two awards. This year's new officers are president, Vicki Marcine; vice president, Jessica Snyder, and secretary, Heather MacGillivray.

The club went to a ceramic store and learned how ceramics are molded and fired. The members brought things to make in the club.

The next meeting's topic is cooking - learning about low fat recipes.

FFA Horticultural Exposition

The New Jersey FFA Horticultural Exposition, scheduled at the Quaker Bridge Mall, Route 1, Lawrenceville, consists of two state FFA events.

The State FFA Floral Design Contest, sponsored by the New Jersey Florists' Association, will be held Friday, March 10. The State FFA Flower Show, with more than 700 plants and flower arrangements exhibited, will begin on Friday, March 10 and end on Sunday, March 12 at 6 p.m.

The floral design contest is open to all FFA members in New Jersey. Members, students enrolled in high school agricultural education, will design two arrangements. One design will be assigned by the judges and the other will be the choice of the student. Arrangements will be scored and winners will be announced later that day. The students' designs will be available for sale after all scoring takes place. All proceeds will go toward awards for the Flower Show.

Students competing in the Flower Show will be entering arrangements and plant material that they have designed or grown in school. More than 50 different theme classes are available for students to enter. Preparing an arrangements for a " Formal Dinner Party" is one example of a theme class. Arrangements may be entered in the "fresh" or "silk and dried" categories.

Ribbons will be awarded to the top five entries in each class, and a rosette will be awarded to the "Best of Division" entry. Plaques will be presented to first place entries.

Floriculture has become an important part of the agriculture industry in New Jersey. FFA members are learning the skills to become more successful in the floriculture industry by enrolling in high school agriculture classes.

The agricultural education classes help to prepare students for the world of work or for college. The FFA organization, which is part of instruction in over 39 New Jersey high schools and vocational schools, offers members opportunities to use classroom skills and to succeed in our nation's workforce.

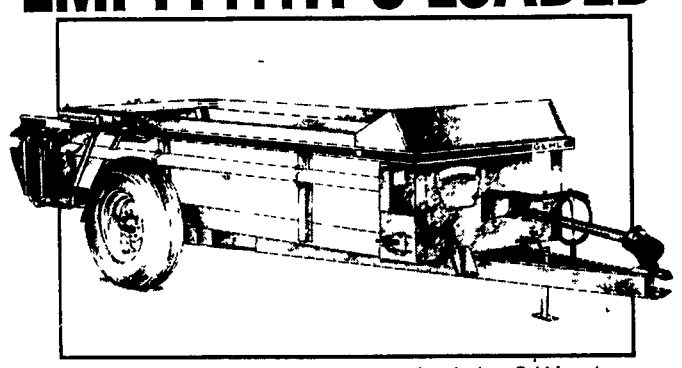
GEHL®

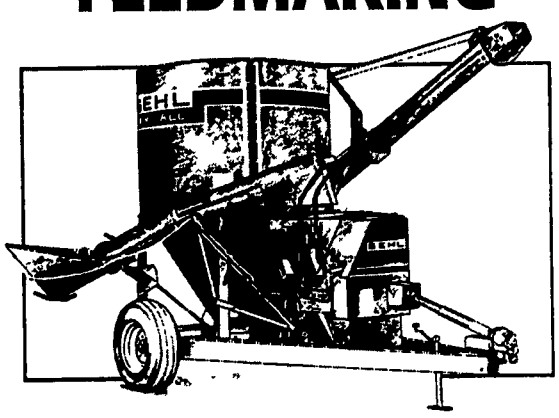
EVEN WHEN IT'S EMPTY...IT'S LOADED



When you're checking out box-type manure spreaders, look to Gehl for a better spreader! Gehl box spreaders are available in five sizes ranging from 135 to 425 bushel heaped capacities. Gehl box spreaders deliver these and many more advanced features.

- Gehl-Tuff flooring is slippery so manure slides out easily
- T-bar apron chains are extra-strong for durability.
- Galvanized steel sides are more corrosion resistant.
- Single or tandem axle models available.
- 10-year warranty on sides and floors.
- Hydraulic apron drive (optional) to match your specific application needs

THE #1 NAME IN FEEDMAKING



Gehl Mix-All® portable grinder-mixers have been leading the industry for over 30 years. Now the new Gehl Roller Mixer combines proven Mix-All features with a commercial-grade roller mill to produce the best possible feed for your livestock.

- Total hydraulic control – Self-contained hydraulic system allows infinite speeds to power the discharge conveyor, unloading auger and in-feed attachments.
- Remote controls – Operate the unloading conveyor from the tractor seat or from the rear of the machine.
- Electronic scales – For precise ration weighing.
- Customize your machine – With a wide variety of options and attachments.

Corn Fritters

16-ounce can whole kernel corn, drained, or 2 cups fresh corn
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
¼ cup milk

About 30 minutes before serving, heat ½ -inch salad oil in skillet. Stir 1 tablespoon salad oil into the corn, flour, baking powder, salt, eggs, and milk. Mix with fork until blended. Drop into hot oil and fry 3-5 minutes, turning once until brown. Drain on paper towels and sprinkle with powdered sugar or serve with syrup.

ANSWER — Karen Kinnane, Shartlesville, wanted a recipe for a cold, light as air lemon-flavored dessert served in tiny parfait glasses, which is called Lemon Melting Moments. Thanks to Louise Julius, Dover, for sending a recipe that she said is light, lemony, and delicious.

Lemon Melting Moments

1 cup lemon curd
1 to 2 cups whipped topping

Gently stir together ingredients. Spoon into parfait glasses or pastry shells. May be spread on crackers or plain cookies.

Louise purchased the lemon curd at a specialty shop, Marlborough Barn, Marlborough, CT The 7 1-ounce jar of lemon curd is sold under the name Crabtree and Evelyn, London. The ingredients listed are sugar, whole eggs, butter, lemon juice, lemon oil, and pectin.

ANSWER — Anne Wiegle, Pottstown, wanted a recipe for pickled herring. Thanks to Irwin Filler, Brookfield, Mass., for sending a recipe. He writes that there is also a terrific recipe in the book, The Sausage Maker, available at 29 Military Rd., Buffalo, N.Y. 14207-2875 (508) 867-8978.

Salt-Packed Fish

Cut off heads. Clean and scale fish. Split in half. Cover bottom of butter tub or stone jar to depth of 2 inches with common salt. Add a layer of fish, skins down. Cover with ½ -inch layer of salt until all fish are used. The top layer of salt should be 2 inches deep. Cover tub or jar and set in a cool place.

To prepare, remove desired number of fish from the brine that forms. Soak overnight in fresh water. Prepare in any manner desired.

ANSWER — Miriam Byler, Middlefield, Ohio, wanted a recipe for a cheese strudel made from scratch. Thanks to Sue Creveling, Bainbridge, for sending a recipe that she clipped from this column several years ago. She writes that it is marvelous, gets eaten fast, and is often requested so she doubles the batch

Cream Cheese Braid

1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter, melted
½ cup sugar
½ cup warm water
2 packages yeast
2 eggs
4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour

Filling
1 pound cream cheese
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon lemon
1 beaten egg

Glaze.
2 cups confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 tablespoons milk

Scald sour cream. Stir in sugar, salt, and butter. Cool to lukewarm. Measure warm water in large warm bowl. Sprinkle yeast on top and stir. Add lukewarm sour cream mixture, eggs, and flour. Mix until well blended. Do not knead. Do not add additional flour. Cover tightly and refrigerate overnight. Next day, divide dough into 4 pieces. Roll each piece into a rectangle 8x12 inches.

Filling: Mix ingredients until smooth. Spread each rectangle with filling. Keep filling away from edges. Roll up like jelly roll. Pinch ends together and fold under slightly. Lay roll on greased sheet. With scissors, cut each roll deeply, making cuts alternating from side to side. Allow to rise until double in bulk, 2 hours Bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes Spread glaze on top while hot Yields 4 braids.

January Thaw May Lead To Fewer Spring Flowers

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — You may have noticed flowering bulbs sending up shoots, and buds opening on shrubs and trees during January's warm spell. This may be bad news for some spring flowers, says J. Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Warm weather, thawed soil, and plenty of moisture can cause woody ornamentals and many spring flowering bulbs to break dormancy and begin growing," says Nuss. "With temperatures 60 degrees F and higher in January, the flower buds on many trees and shrubs have expanded and have even begun to show color.

"These buds are likely to be killed during the freezing weather that will certainly follow in the remaining months of winter," Nuss adds. Shrubs most likely to suffer from bud damage are those that flower early, including forsythia, flowering quince, jasmine, weigela, lilac, witch hazel and some kinds of viburnum and rhododendron.

"The extent of injury will depend on the amount of available moisture, how much the buds have opened, and how cold it gets during the remainder of winter," Nuss says. "Plants at higher elevations and in colder areas probably have remained dormant and won't be injured."

Is there anything gardeners can do to protect flowering shrubs from opening prematurely during a warm spell? "Not really," says Nuss. "Plants respond to a warming cycle as their cue to come out of dormancy. There's no way to stop the process."

However, the news is better for spring bulbs sending up premature shoots. "Foliage on these bulbs is quite hardy and probably will not be injured much, if at all, by falling temperatures," Nuss says.

Nuss cautions that the premature foliage will need some protection against nibbling rabbits. "A thin layer of straw or mulch over the leaves will conceal them from rabbits," he says. "This also helps keep the shoots from being crushed by ice and snow."

If you lose some flowers to the early thaw this year, take heart. It doesn't spell the end of the plant. "Most trees and shrubs are quite durable and can survive temperature fluctuations," Nuss says. "In any case, those buds that do survive the winter will be all the more welcome this spring."

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

QUESTION — A faithful reader would like to know where she could purchase some Alice and Jerry readers that were used in school many years ago. She especially would like a copy of "Singing Wheels" and others from that series.

QUESTION — Marian Mosemann, Summit Hill, is looking for a wire jig that can be used for making patterns in any shape and size by bending the wire.

QUESTION — Marian Mosemann, Summit Hill, would like to know where to purchase gift boxes for jellies and breads. Candy boxes are too small.

QUESTION — Marian Mosemann, Summit Hill, would like paper puzzles that were sometimes given away by the John Deere tractor franchises. The puzzles were made either out of thin cardboard or thick paper. The puzzle pieces were packaged inside a letter-sized envelope with instructions to solve the puzzle printed on the outside of the envelope.

QUESTION — Betty Staman, Danville, lost the dough hook for her Bosch mixer. She has written to the company address at Salt Lake City, Utah, but they have moved and the forwarding time has expired. The name of the company is Magic Mill Co.

QUESTION — Blanche Hertzler, Mt. Wolf, would like to purchase some old readers used in public school in the 1930s. She wants the third through sixth reader of the Baldwin and Bender series, copyrighted 1911 by American Book Company. She has the second reader. One of the readers have the poem "Taming the Colt," which she wants.

QUESTION — Karen Kinnane, Box 212, Shartlesville, P. 19554 (610) 488-7792, is searching for Christmas dinne ware picturing a winter outdoor scene, marked on the bac with Sango 3900 Silent Night, Korea, Joan Luntz.

QUESTION — Cindy Eshleman, Jonestown, would like to know where to locate a Cub Cadet tractor hat.

QUESTION — John T. Los, 2350 Croll School Rd., York, PA 17403, would like to talk with someone about the lithographs with the following informatioon on them: Artist signature — Fred S. Cozzens 1893. Armstrong & Co. Lith. Boston Copyright 1893 American Publishing Co — Hartford, Conn

QUESTION — A faithful New York reader would like a wholesale source for goose feathers to use to make old-fashioned feather Christmas trees.

QUESTION — Edgar Jackson, Ligonier, would like to know how to puff wheat, rice, and corn for making cereal.

QUESTION — Tom Hicswa, Hammonton, N.J., would like to purchase sheet metal parts for a Case tractor model 300B made about 1960. He wants a grille, gas tank cover, etc. Please send information to Hicswa at Box 2169 Elwood R1, Hammonton, N.J.

ANSWER — Martha Hertzler, West Salisbury, wanted an address to send for a gasket for a stainless steel Flex-Seal pressure cooker Model 908, which is made by Vischer Products Company, Chicago. Thanks to Elinor Klotz, Lehighton, who writes that she received a gasket from the following address: Vischer Products Co., Mfgs of Flex-Seal Cookers, 2815 W. Roscoe St., Chicago, IL 60618.

ANSWER — Evelyn Michaels, Beaver, was trying to locate Dr. Peter Farhney and Sons Company in New York City. Thanks to Marian Wile, Southampton, for writing that she ordered a shipment of products last year from Dr. Peter Fahrney & Sons Co. 103 Whittier Ave., High Point, N.C. 27260

ANSWER — Thanks to Mildred Hess, Myerstown, for sending another method for storing sweet potatoes requested by Nancy Cummings. Place ventilated crates or baskets of freshly dug sweet potatoes inside a building. Let the potatoes dry out or air 8 to 10 days. This helps heal cuts and bruises that may have occurred and toughens the skin for winter storage. After the potatoes are dried out, place them in a permanent storage area where the temperature is between 50 to 60 degrees. Layer sweet potatoes in a heavy cardboard box with newspaper placed between each layer. Store where temperatures do not fluctuate severely. Do not let a sudden drop in temperature chill the potatoes. Avoid unnecessary handling. Sweet potatoes should keep until next season's crop.

ANSWER — A reader said that she had heard there are many uses for white vinegar in addition to cooking and window cleaning. She asks if readers know of other uses for white vinegar. Thanks to many readers for sending uses.

Shirley Martin of Elliottsburg, writes that vinegar is the enemy of soft water. Use vinegar wherever there is a scale build-up on coffee makers, irons, faucets, shower heads, etc. Put white vinegar in a spray bottle and use it to remove lime build up on tile. Commodes can become non-functional from the buildup. To remove build-up inside commodes, turn off the water, flush the commode. Quickly dump a bucket of water into commode to cause a super flush. Pour vinegar into the tank and one to two quarts in the commode. Be sure holes around the rim are not clogged. If it is badly caked, spray the entire bowl and place vinegar-dampened paper towels on the area. Usually 30 minutes is long enough to remove the scale from tiles, faucets, screens and showerheads, but it may take overnight for commodes. It is possible to find large pieces similar to oyster shell in the morning. Vinegar also removes soap scum. Vinegar is good for pipes, porcelain, and not harmful to septic systems. Bleaches and many cleaners are toxic and ruin septic systems. Why have separate cleaners that smell and are expensive for commodes, coffee makers, tubs, and every other item? Vinegar is good to eat with, wash with, and clean with. Why make like hard and expensive?

Ruth Shirk of Lebanon writes that she uses white vinegar to press permanent creases into homemade garments such as dress pants. On double knit and Swedish knit fabrics, the creases will stay even when laundered. To make a permanent crease, wet a cloth with white vinegar, lay it on the garment to be creased and press with an iron set at the perma-press temperature. Avoid breathing the steam that rises from the pressing cloth as it has a strong irritating odor.

Brenda Breisch, Bloomsburg, writes that using vinegar, a natural cleaner instead of chemicals gives her greater peace of mind since she has a baby in the house. Since her husband is a mechanic who thinks his pants' legs are shop towels, she adds vinegar to the wash water to remove the grease. Add vinegar to water to clean garbage cans for a fresh smell. Add a few drops to detergent water to clean really dirty floors. Mix equal amounts of salt and flour with small amount of vinegar to polish brass, rubbing with soft cloth. Rinse and dry with soft cloth Mix equal parts of vinegar and mineral oil. Shake and use with soft cloth to polish wood Brenda uses it on kitchen cabinets and it cuts the grease like magic

Hot New Roses And The World's Best-Tasting Tomato

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) — Soft showers of blossoms from both past and present create nirvana and lead visitors through Moments in Time . . . a Galaxy of Gardens at the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's 1995 Philadelphia Flower Show, March 5 - 12 at the Philadelphia Civic Center.

Garden trends of tomorrow point to better tasting vegetables, terrific smelling roses and ingenious compositions of color and design. This year, exhibitors' landscaped works of art mingle fragrant old roses with captivating new hybrids; exotics snuggle alongside native species and the world's best tasting tomato, Brandywine, sits ripe for the picking in a 1940's Victory Garden.

Elsewhere in the six-acre exhibition hall, dozens of jewel-like gardens create pure delight. A splendid country estate holds a surprise at every turn. Landscapes are awash with new varieties of tulips, miniature and mammoth. And spring gardens give way to summer gardens to create extraordinary natural beauty in March.

The expertise and creativity that have become the hallmark of the Philadelphia Flower Show are most evident in the Show's 583 Competitive artistic and horticultural divisions. Seven hundred individuals will make more than 2,000 entries of plants and flower arrangements. Room settings, life-size and miniature, become vignettes inspired by a specific period in time. Garden clubs and local horticultural students create four period gardens that depict a benchmark in design, horticulture or cultivation technique. Experts coax floral designs, plant collections, flowering fruits and herbs, bulbs, plants in pots and hanging baskets to perfection and lift the amateur competition to the status of a horticultural Olympics.

For those seeking advice from the experts, a talented group of volunteers is ready to answer all of your gardening questions and disseminate Show information. The Horticultural Information Booth is located in the Competitive Class section of the Show.

Free lectures and demonstrations will be conducted by accomplished flower arrangers and gardening enthusiasts throughout Show week in Pennsylvania Hall, accessed through the Show's Marketplace. In the Marketplace, visitors can purchase garden supplies, handcrafted wares, plants, pots, seeds, cut flowers and satisfy all their gardening needs from more than 100 vendors.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's Philadelphia Flower Show will be held March 5 - 12; 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. on Sundays; 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Tickets are available at the door, $12.50 for adults; $6.25 for children under 12. Group tickets are available in advance by mail (minimum order: $117.50) from PHS, 325 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106 for $11.75. For addition group and Flower Show information, please call the 24-hour Flower Show InfoLine at (215) 625-8253. For travel and accommodations information, please call Accommodations Express 1-800-444-7666.

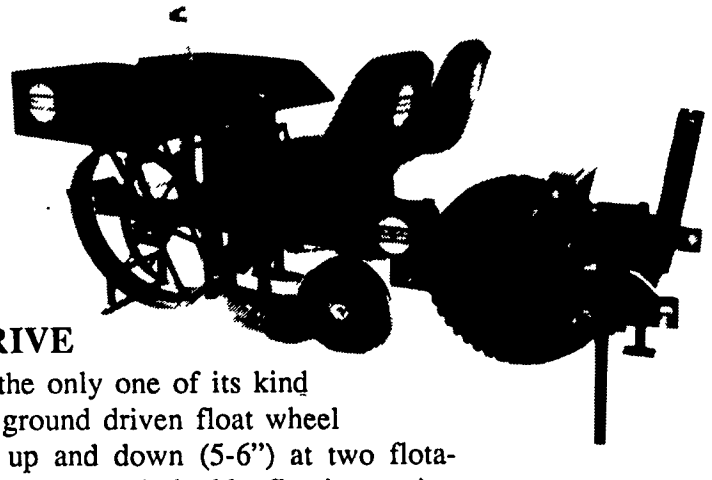
KASCO MANUFACTURING INC.

MECHANICAL TRANSPLANTER MODEL 1000

For The Grower That Demands The "VERY FINEST"

The High Performance Model 1000

has increased planting speeds 20 to 30%.



OUR PATENTED FLOAT WHEEL DIRECT DRIVE SYSTEM is the only one of its kind available. This ground driven float wheel moves straight up and down (5-6") at two flotation points. This patented double floating action maintains correct ground contact at all times for both the drive wheel and rear packing wheels letting the units float independently no matter how many rows. No weight of any hitch, toolbar, or water tank is resting on the drive wheel to compact the soil. The wheel just smooths, firms and ideally prepares the soil providing accurate plant placement, proper depth control, and positive spacings from 6" and up in all soil conditions.

Adams Beef Club Holds Appreciation Banquet

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Members and friends of the Adams County 4-H Beef Club were honored recently at the annual 4-H Beef Buyers' Appreciation Banquet.

Beef club members Wayne Flickinger, Karena Kaiser, Ben Stine, and Stan Reever each received cash recognition for their efforts at the banquet. Wayne received a $25 cash award as junior beef program winner. Karena, Ben, and Stan each received a $50 cash recognition as outgoing/retiring 4-H Beef Club members, as established by the Glenn Boyer 4-H Memorial.

Retiring members also received a 4-H pen set from the 4-H Beef Club for club participation.

Jake Bucher, Adams County Beef Producers Association president, was recognized for the beef producers' contribution of a sale barn at the South Mountain Fairgrounds. The sale barn was used extensively by the 4-H Beef Club for its annual 4-H Beef Steer Sale held October 27 of last year.

The Adams County 4-H Beef Club recognized first-year members at the banquet. Recognized were Kyle Grim, Katie Martin, Chris Seymore, and Jesse Rothenhoefer.

Egg-Laying Behavior Provides Clues To Control

NEWARK, Del. — The insect world is vastly different from the one perceived by humans. Insects smell hundreds of chemical signals from many sources in their environment that often trigger specific behaviors.

Identifying these chemicals and understanding the insect's behavioral responses to them is at the heart of chemical ecology — a relatively new focus in insect or entomological research.

Dr. Charles Mason, insect ecologist, and Dr. Sujaya Udayagiri, a post-doctorate researcher, both in the department of entomology and applied ecology at the University of Delaware, are working on a Delaware Research Partnership (DRP) grant with DuPont on corn plant chemicals that induce egg-laying behavior in the European corn borer moth. DRP grants are funded through a combination of state and private industry funds.

"Chemical ecology is about chemical interactions between various organisms," said Udayagiri. "We hope to exploit the chemical interaction between plants and insects to manipulate insect behavior for pest management purposes."

The European corn borer costs U.S. corn producers more than $1 billion annually in pesticides and crop losses. Early in the growing season, the corn borer larvae develop inside corn stalks and reduce its ability to produce a high yield by disrupting plant development. In sweet corn, the larvae often are found in the corn ear, making it unusable.

"The purpose of this project is to look for environmentally friendly control alternatives," Mason said. "We realize traditional chemicals have not always been environmentally friendly. As scientists in the College of Agricultural Sciences, we have a big responsibility to improve agricultural production and protect the environment."

Two DuPont scientists, Mark Schroeder and Steve Riley, act as consulting scientists. Schroeder, group supervisor in insect control at DuPont's Stine Haskell Laboratory, said, "The Environmental Protection Agency has set an objective to significantly reduce the amount of pesticide use on crops. We're looking for ways to meet that commitment and still control crop pests. There is a possibility that this kind of chemical ecology research can lead to a type of control with commercial value."

Mason said the first step in corn borer infestation begins when the female moth locates the plant by chemical odor. She is then induced by the odor of other plant chemicals to lay her eggs in a specific location. Plants produce hundreds of chemicals. Identifying the few chemicals that cause the female to choose an egg-laying site is the basis for the research project.

The majority of the laboratory work is conducted by Udayagiri. Her day may consist of grinding corn plants and then using solvents to extract chemicals that influence the female's egg-laying behavior. A gas chromatograph and mass spectrometer are used to identify individual chemicals in corn extracts that elicit egg-laying behavior.

To test the chemicals' attractiveness, Udayagiri places a two-part blotter in an egg-laying chamber with a pregnant corn borer moth. One half of the blotter is treated with the chemical derivative and the other half is blank. Through numerous repetitions and tedious counting of eggs laid on each blotter half, the researcher is finding that the moths do indeed seem to prefer laying eggs on the blotter marked with the corn chemical.

"If we can identify what attracts the pest, what stimulates the behavior, then we can use that information to manipulate the behavior," said Udayagiri. "Perhaps we could bait a trap for females to lay eggs, thus reducing the number of eggs laid on corn plants."

"This is exploratory research," Mason said. "Understanding the behavior and what triggers it is the first step to finding an application. This work is helping us understand some basic European corn borer behavior and how important chemicals are to that behavior. We can't expect to come up with an ultimate solution to European corn borer control, but we're happy to make a contribution that may be used in an overall pest management program."

4-H'ers Enjoy Busy Equestrian Schedule

NEWARK, Del. — No one knows if the horses will decide to stay up late, but if they do, you can't blame them. After all, it's probably the first slumber party to which they were ever invited.

A slumber party for horses? Yes, you read that right. The Delaware 4-H Horse Advisory Committee is sponsoring a "Horse Overnighter" to be held Friday, March 24, at the Delaware State Fair's Smith Building and Horse Arena. And while the horses may enjoy the change of scenery at the fairgrounds, the gathering is designed to benefit the horses' young owners and other young horse aficionados.

"The Horse Overnighter promises to be a fun kickoff to the season," said Joy Sparks, state 4-H program coordinator at the University of Delaware. "In addition, the many activities planned should lay the foundation for learning to take place."

The 18½ hour event will be a mix of both serious instruction and "serious fun." Friday evening's schedule includes horse judging videos and a showing of the movie "Black Beauty."

Saturday begins early. The kids and horses "wake up and feed up" at 7 a.m. A series of morning workshops will cover such topics as horsemanship and showmanship. After lunch and a closing session, the horses and their owners will depart for home at 2:30 p.m.

The Horse Overnighter is open to all youths aged 8 and older at a cost of $15 per person. The two-legged attendees will be bunking in a heated building and snacks, breakfast, and lunch will be provided.

And that's not all 4-H has planned for horse enthusiasts in the weeks ahead. On Saturday, March 4, youngsters can test their "horse sense" in the annual Horse Bowl Contest.

Held at Delaware State University, the bowl is open to any local youth club or organization that wants to enter teams comprised of three or four members. The teams are grouped by age: 8- to 10-year-olds, 11- to 13-year-olds, and 14- to 19-year-olds.

Organized in quiz show fashion, the bowl draws upon a variety of horse manuals and guidesheets for its questions.

"The Horse Bowl gets quite competitive and is fun to watch," said Sparks. "It attracts participants from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey as well as Delaware."

The entry fee is $10 per team. For entry forms or additional information about either event, call (302) 831-2509.

PSEUDORABIES HEADLINE UPDATE

WHAT ARE NEIGHBORING STATES DOING ABOUT PSEUDORABIES?

Dr. Arnold Taft
Swine Health Staff
Veterinary Services
USDA-Animal And Plant Health
Inspection Service

All states in the U.S. are involved in the national PRV eradication program. Most have moved from the preparation and control stages (stages I and II) to mandatory cleanup (III), surveillance (IV) or free (V).

Pennsylvania is in stage II. The states adjacent to Pennsylvania are making good progress toward PRV eradication.

What are your neighboring states doing about pseudorabies?

1) Delaware—Stage IV—No infected herds

2) Maryland—Stage III—No known infected herds

3) New Jersey—Stage III—Six infected feedlots all on herd plans. All should be cleaned up during 1995. — No infected breeding herds

4) New York—Stage V—Free

5) Ohio—Stage III—Three infected herds — All on cleanup plans with goals to be completed within 6 months

6) Virginia—Stage IV—No infected herds

7) West Virginia—Stage III—No infected herds — Plan to apply for Stage IV this year

As the status of neighboring states progresses, pressure increases on Pennsylvania to protect their markets for breeding stock, feeder pigs, and market hogs by demonstrated PRV progress.

Tomato Growers Catch On To Disease Forecasting

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Imagine for a moment that we could predict the attack of disease-causing pathogens, allowing us to take preventive medicine before we get sick, and then only when the risk is high.

Disease forecasting may be an inexact science in human health, but it is being used quite successfully by an increasing number of tomato growers.

Using a system developed by researchers in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, growers are reducing fungicide use by an average of 30 percent annually, while protecting their crops from potentially devastating disease outbreaks.

"The system uses electronic weather monitoring to tell growers when conditions are favorable for disease development," said Alan MacNab, professor of plant pathology. "When weather conditions do not favor disease, growers need not spray fungicides, potentially saving thousands of dollars each year and reducing the risk of pesticide residues on foods. On the other hand, when the system tells us conditions are conducive to disease, growers can spray in time to save their crop."

Tomato production is big business in Pennsylvania. In 1993, processors contracted with growers to produce nearly 21,000 tons of processing tomatoes worth $1.6 million. Production of fresh market tomatoes the same year was valued at more than $13.2 million.

The most serious threat to the state's tomatoes is early blight. Caused by the fungus Alternaria solani, the disease defoliates plants and thrives in warm, moust conditions. Left unchecked, it can reduce yields by an average of 30 percent and fruit size by 10 percent.

"In this highly competitive industry, growers can't afford this yield loss and reduced size, especially since price per pound for fresh market tomatoes is lower for smaller fruit than for larger fruit," MacNab said. Traditionally, growers have sprayed fungicide at regular seven- or 14-day intervals to prevent the disease.

Called FAST (Forecasting Alternaria Solani on Tomatoes), the Penn State system relies on a network of five weather monitoring stations around the state. Each day during the growing season, solar-powered field sensors record temperature, dew, rainfall and relative humidity, and transmit the data via radio signals to nearby computers.

Using a modem and telephone lines, a central computer at Penn State's University Park Campus automatically retrieves the data from the field computers. Researchers chart the information and immediately make it available to growers and Penn State Cooperative Extension offices statewide via FAX or computer electronic mail.

If conditions are favorable for disease development, growers will be advised to spray fungicide, unless they have sprayed in the most recent five- or seven-day period. If conditions are not conducive to disease, growers need not spray.

In field trials during a 12-year period, growers using FAST sprayed fungicides nearly three fewer times per season compared to those following a regular seven-day spray schedule. This 30 percent reduction was achieved with no loss of crop yield or quality.

Originally developed to forecast early blight, the system has been revised in recent years to include warnings for other diseases, such as fruit rot and late blight.

"Late blight is a particular concern due to the recent discovery of new and more aggressive strains," MacNab said of the fungus that caused the Irish potato famine of the 1840s. "But because of FAST, participating tomato growers so far have been able to minimize late blight damage."

MacNab credits the success of FAST to the joint participation of cooperative extension agents, growers and processors, all of whom have suggested ways to improve the system. The program has been funded by the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Furman Canning Company.

FAST also has caught on elsewhere. "Variations have been used successfully in Michigan, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, California, Ontario, New Zealand and Mexico," said MacNab. "FAST and the tomato disease systems it spawned are regarded as the most widely used disease models in the world."

Pasture Series Set

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. — The Maryland Cooperative Extension Service announces the upcoming 1995 "Pasture Management Program Series."

This three-part series will focus on all aspects of pasture establishment and management, including selecting grass and legume species, fertility, animal management and nutrition, fencing and water, and how to sustain pasture over the years. Each evening program will run from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and will be conducted at three locations in Maryland:

- Baltimore County — March 6, 13, 29 at the Oregon Ridge Lodge, contact (410) 666-1022;
- St. Mary's County — March 14, 21, 28 at the Izaak Walton League, contact (301) 475-4484;
- Frederick County — April 12, 19, 26 at the Frederick Co. Cooperative Extension office, contact (301) 694-1594.

Quality pasture is a very economical way to provide livestock with quality nutrition. Unfortunately, pasture resources are given a low priority on many farms. This program provides the information needed to plan and manage pasture for improved quality and quantity.

Registration is required. The cost of the program series is $15 per person. For a registration form and information, contact the office listed above for the session you wish to attend.

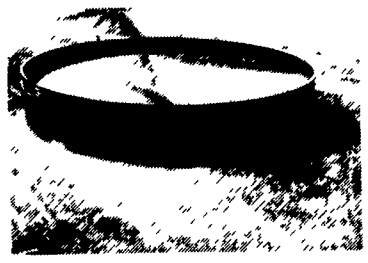
Slurrystore Celebrates 20th Anniversary

DEKALB, Ill. — As the Slurrystore® system of manure management celebrates its 20th anniversary, A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., announced the introduction of a new 120-foot diameter model. Available in five heights, the structure offers capacity ranges from 819,530 gallons up to 2,378,000 gallons.



The new sizes were created in response to the needs of larger dairy, beef, and hog operations who wanted a more environmentally sound animal waste containment system capable of handling up to six months of storage.

To create the new larger sizes, new features needed to be designed. One, a dual-agitation system, can efficiently agitate and blend a full 2.3 million gallon structure.

Also new is a stronger and heavier bottom row of glass-fused-to-steel sheets. This means all new 120-foot diameter models can be expanded to the full 28-foot height, even if first built at one of the lower heights of 10 feet, 14 feet, 19 feet, or 23 feet.

With the introduction of the five new sizes, there are now 21 Slurrystore structure sizes available.

Tractor Winners From Corn Days

YORK (York Co.) — York Farm Credit, ACA and Clugston Ag and Turf announce the winners of Franklin County's Extension Corn Clinic drawings.

Keith Grove of Greencastle, Paul A. Martin of Mercersburg, and J. Donald Miller of Greencastle were the big winners at the Franklin County Corn Clinic held at the Kauffman Community Center.

Keith Grove won one week's free use of a new John Deere tractor, Paul A. Martin won three days' free use of a new Bobcat Skid Steer Loader, and J. Donald Miller won one day's free use of a New Miller Pro 4100 16-foot Forage Box.

York Farm Credit and Clugston Ag and Turf sponsored all prizes. Dale Cook of Clugston's will coordinate with the winners to deliver the equipment for use on their farms.

"We like working with Clugston's to sponsor prizes which really help farms," said Richard Ringer of York Farm Credit, ACA. "The response to these drawings has been great and shows that York Farm Credit and Clugston Ag and Turf are dedicated to serving the needs of farmers."

High-Quality Hay Begins With Right Seed

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co) — Top quality hay requires good management and the right seed, but more than anything else, forage producers need good, solid performance data to make informed alfalfa variety choices.

Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc. strives to help forage producers make the most of their homegrown feed, which is reflected in the "Pioneer . . . The Quality Forage Source®" program.

"Identifying corn hybrids, alfalfa varieties and innoculants that can be used for quality forage production begins with research and breeding," said Matt Antos, Pioneer field agronomist in State College. Many years of research data collection is behind the company's commitment to help farmers make informed seed choices, he said.

"Pioneer® brand alfalfa varieties sold in Eastern states were developed locally," said Antos. "There are 39 Pioneer locations around the world where varieties can be tested. The Quarryville, Pennsylvania, station was established in 1986 to develop alfalfa varieties especially for this area. The eastern breeding effort started in 1979 on rented land."

Developing better varieties to help farmers grow quality forage is the heart of the alfalfa breeding program, said Dr. Tim Woodward, worldwide director of alfalfa breeding. The advantage of a local research station is that experimental varieties are tested for winter injury and screened for the most threatening diseases found in the region.

Pioneer® brand alfalfa variety 5454 placed first in two 1994 trials with the highest yield at 12 percent moisture. The first trial was conducted by Cornell University including data from Livingston, St. Lawrence and Tompkins counties on forage yields for Trial B seeded in 1992. The same variety placed first in the Pennsylvania State University Forage Yield Trial for varieties seeded in 1992 at the Landisville Research Station.

"We consider many other characteristics, but new varieties have to produce high yields," says Woodward. "To maximize returns per acre, farmers know that both quality and yield are important."

That's why one of the first steps in breeding a new variety is to take forage samples from parent plants for crude protein, energy content, neutral detergent fiber (NDF), and acid detergent fiber (ADF). About 2,660 forage samples have been analyzed this past year from the Quarryville selection process. Nearly 3,700 will be analyzed this year.

Bale Wagons Feature Power Steering

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Two new self-propelled New Holland automatic bale wagons feature automatic transmissions and power steering for effortless operation.

Six-cylinder, 7.5 liter Genesis™ engines provide high horsepower and fuel economy, according to Product Manager Jim Payton.

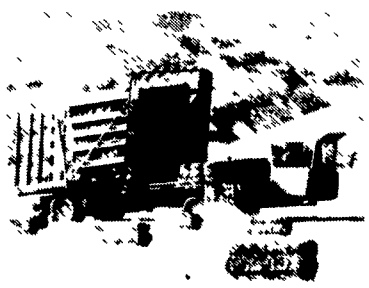
Turbochargers also reduce power loss at high altitudes. Both machines pick up, load, haul and stack bales automatically and are sized to meet the needs of large acreage hay growers and custom operators.

The Model 1095 automatic bale wagon has a long frame and load rack for 2- wide stacks of 1 6x18 two-tie high density bales and a variety of three-tie bales.

The Model 1089 handles 14x18 or 16x18 bales and is designed for 3-bale-wide stacking.

Dual hydraulic systems on the new automatic bale wagons provide ample hydraulic power. An open-center system handles power steering and the cross conveyor. A closed center system powers the bale tables, load rack and stacking. RapidRack™ control lets operators control the load rack, rolling rack and push-off feet for precise stacking with a single lever.

Stack Minder™ electronic control lets operators choose stacking patterns with a variety of pre-programmed tier formations.



Two new self-propelled New Holland automatic bale wagons are sized for large acreage hay growers and custom operators. Both feature automatic transmissions, power steering, and fuel-efficient six-cylinder turobcharged Genesis™ diesel engines. The Model 1089 handles 14x18 and 16x18 bales for 3-wide stacks. The Model 1095 picks up, loads, hauls and stacks 16x18 2-tie or a variety of 3-tie high density bales.

Changes Demand Producers Rethink Crop Insurance

RALEIGH, N.C. — A new law has made Federal crop insurance an integral part of USDA farm programs.

Producers must buy at least a catastrophic level of crop insurance coverage (CAT) to be eligible for many program benefits, including commodity price support and production adjustment programs, certain Farmers Home Administration loans, and the Conservation Reserve Program. Only new or amended CRP contracts and FmHA loans are subject to the new crop insurance linkage requirement.

Catastrophic Coverage

CAT coverage will compensate producers for crop losses in excess of 50 percent of their actual production history at 60 percent of the expected market price for that crop. The coverage is comparable to disaster program benefits provided in recent years. Producers can obtain this coverage for a nominal administrative fee of $50 per crop per county. The maximum cost of all insurable crops in a county is $200 per producer. The total cost for all CAT coverage is limited to $600 per producer for all counties in which a producer has insured crops.

CAT coverage for insurable crops is available until the sales closing date for each crop. Sales closing dates vary by crop and region. For Pennsylvania counties, the CAT sales closing date for apples, barley, forage, grapes, peaches, and wheat is March 15, 1995.

The 1995 spring-planted crops will not have additional time to sign up for insurance coverage. Producers must sign up by the announced sales closing date. Again, sales closing dates vary by crop and region so producers should consult a crop insurance agent or the local Farm Service Agency (ASCS) office to verify the sign up date.

The new law also provides increased premium subsidies that make "additional" coeverage more affordable. In fact, most policyholders will pay less than in past years for comparable levels of coverage. Producers thinking about insuring spring planted crops have until March 15, 1995 to sign up. There will not be an extended sign up for additional coverage. Purchasing additional coverage will also satisfy the linkage requirement for crop insurance to remain eligible for the USDA farm programs noted above.

Guarraia New CEO

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — American Soybean Association (ASA) President John McClendon has announced that on April 1, ASA will begin to benefit from the leadership abilities of Leonard Guarraia.

McClendon said he was delighted to have someone of Leonard's caliber and experience prepared to take the helm at ASA.

"This opportunity and this candidate are perhaps one of the best matches I have ever encountered," McClendon said of the CEO position and Guarraia's diverse background.

Guarraia has been responsible for developing and integrating scientific and commercial strategies that resulted in the commercialization of products worldwide.

Guarraia comes to ASA from the Monsanto Company, also of St. Louis, where he served on the management committee and as director, policy analysis since 1989. Guarraia is a member of the Trade and Environmental Policy Advisory Committee of the U.S. Trade Representative and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and he is chairman of the U.S. delegation to the International Bioindustry Forum.

Guarraia holds a doctorate in microbiology from Indiana University, a master's from The George Washington University, and an A.B. from the University of Virginia. He joined Monsanto in 1983 as director of scientific affairs in Washington, D.C. and later was director of science and technology policy. Prior to Monsanto, he was director for the American Industrial Health Council/Synthetic Organic Chemical Association; chief of the criteria branch, Office of Water and Waste Management for the EPA; and as an associate professor at the University of Georgia.

Addition Of Tractor Line Opens New Markets

ATLANTA, Ga. — AGCO Corporation announced that it has entered into an agreement with Landini S.p.A. Which appoints Agco as the exclusive distributor of Landini equipment in the United States, Canada, and Mexico.

Landini manufactures specialty tractors that are used in such applications as vineyards and orchards, as well as a full range of standard tractors between 40 and 130 horsepower which are used in agriculture.

Upon appointment as Landini's distributor, Agco will acquire Landini's portfolio of North American receivables with an estimated value of $5.3 million. Under the terms of the agreement, Agco will also acquire Landini's dealer network in North America, where sales of Landini equipment reached $26 million in 1994.

Landini products, which are manufactured in Italy, will be sold in North America through Agco's dealer network, which will be expanded to include Landini's existing network of North American dealers.

According to Robert J. Ratliff, chairman and chief executive officer of Agco Corporation, "Agco's agreement with Landini represents an additional platform to broaden our market and increase revenues in North America and Mexico. As an exclusive distributor of Landini products, Agco will offer a new profit opportunity to our dealers.

"Agco's strong North American distribution network of more than 2,600 dealers has the potential to significantly expand new sales of Landini equipment, in addition to the sales which are presently generated by existing Landini dealers in North America," Ratliff said.

Research Extends Veal's Reach

CHICAGO, Ill. — Great products have the most opportunities for success. Great products made better are even easier, as the veal industry is helping to demonstrate.

Although it is already convenient, versatile, tasty and nutritious, veal is becoming better through product development and meat science research. Through their checkoff funds, veal producers have invested more than $67,500 over the past four years in research projects that explore desirable veal qualities with the intention of enhancing them.

Five major projects have been conducted through National Live Stock and Meat Board-managed reserach projects since 1990. The projects have been able to use and build on information from an original project, which determined the primary differences between types of veal carcass (bob and special-fed) in terms of percentage of lean, fat and bone. Each of the projects was designed to increase veal profitability by finding ways of improving the product.

According to Wanda Cooper, chairman of the Meat Board Veal Committee and a veal producer from Michigan, the results of the project point to ways veal marketing by the Meat Board and other groups and companies can be targeted to the needs of end users, including both retail shoppers and restaurant patrons.

"Scientific research expands veal's ability to compete in the marketplace," Cooper said. "In that sense, it is one of the wisest possible uses of checkoff dollars. While we know we have an excellent product, investigations of special carcass qualities improve our ability to cater to consumer demand."

The recent veal checkoff-sponsored research has included:

- A comparison of carcass composition between bob and special fed veal.
- An exploration of the fats and related compounds found in different types of veal.
- A look at factors that may influence product color changes in ground veal, such as the possible presence of iron and zinc.
- A comparison of amino acid and collagen contents in different types of veal.
- An examination of methods to accurately predict veal carcass composition.

"The veal industry recognizes the importance of cultivating research that keeps us up-to-date for stabilizing and building consumer demand," Cooper said. "New research leads to the potential for value-added products as well as a better understanding of nutrition composition and other product benefits that are effective promotion and information tools."

LATE-PREGNANCY MARE NUTRITION

Mares have only a maintenance nutritional requirement during the first eight months of gestation. Specific nutrients increase in each of the last three months of pregnancy and during lactation.

Pregnant mares need to be in a desirable body condition prior to the last trimester. The second trimester is actually the best time to feed them to acquire proper body condition. Grain may be necessary even if a mare is on good quality pasture and her condition is less than desirable.

Mares may need 0.4 to 0.6 pounds of grain daily per 100 pounds of body weight. When pasture is poor, more grain may be needed in the ration along with hay.

The new emphasis on the second trimester of pregnancy does not diminish the nutritional importance of the last trimester, however. In the third trimester the mare has specific increases in energy, protein, calcium, phosphorus and vitamin A needs in the ninth, tenth and eleventh months of gestation.

But the greatest nutritional demands of the mare occur during early lactation. Mares produce about 3 percent of their body weight as milk during early lactation, or the first 90 days, and about 2 percent during late lactation. Milk production increases during the first 30 to 60 days then steadily declines.

Energy needs for lactation increase about 45 percent above that of late pregnancy while protein needs go up about 65 percent. Protein is often a more limiting factor on milk production than energy. That is because mares in proper body condition can mobilize body energy stores to produce milk. However, the mare has little stored body protein to use for milk protein. The need for increased levels of minerals and vitamin A are associated with milk production.

Mares should graze good quality pasture during lactation. Supplemental grain may be needed.

Free-Choice Feeding Hogs

Increased demand for "high lean gain genetics" and increased pressure to reduce nitrogen in manure due to overfeeding protein has renewed interest in free-choice feeding programs. Modern free-choice programs might be described more accurately as self-selection programs. In this program, two complete diets (one with a high and one with a low protein concentration) are offered to pigs simultaneously. Pigs are allowed to determine the protein concentration of their final diet by the amount of each diet they consume.

Self-selection programs are a relatively new concept in the U.S. Results of initial studies in the U.S. indicate pigs over consume protein with self-selection programs. This observation negates one of the important advantages of self-selection programs — reduction of nitrogen in swine manure. Additional research will determine if self-selection programs are practical for commercial pork production.

The free-choice system usually produces a slower rate of gain than a system using a completely mixed diet, especially with younger pigs to 100-pound body weight. If free-choice feeding is not properly monitored, poor feed efficiency easily can occur.

While free-choice feeding offers greater simplicity for pork producers, more supervision is usually required to ensure an adequate intake of all nutrients for optimal performance than with a complete mixed feed.

Complete mixed feeds or those with the proper balance of nutrients mixed and supplied in one batch are the most common methods of feeding pigs. Complete mixed swine feeds are generally more satisfactory for most operations.

Approximately 65 percent to 70 percent of the total cost of producing a market hog can be attributed to feed. As such, it is desirable for the pork producer to find the most economical feeding method to achieve the lowest cost per unit gain.

Creep Feeding Lambs

Creep feeding is a means of providing supplemental feed for lambs during the nursing period. The advantages of creep feeding are that (1) it increases gains, especially for lambs from multiple births; (2) the lambs use supplemental feed more efficiently at this time than after weaning; (3) lambs can be marketed at a younger age; (4) earlier marketing usually means higher prices for lambs born early in the lambing period; and (5) early lambs can be sold without being put on pasture, thus permitting more ewes to be carried on available pasture and reducing internal parasite problems.

Lambs will begin to nibble at grain and hay very early and at least by the time they are a week old. However, they will not eat much supplemental feed until they are about four weeks old. Some guidelines to consider in constructing your creep are given here:

- Set up the creep when your first lambs are 7 to 10 days old.
- Put the creep in a convenient location close to the brood flock.
- Have openings on at least two sides of the creep.
- Have several openings on a side.

Know Farm's 'Microenvironment,' Says Corn Grower President
ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff
MONTOURSVILLE (Lycoming Co.) — You have to know the microenvironment of every place you farm in order to be able to make an intelligent choice in seed corn selection said Curt Rakestraw newly elected president of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association Inc
During an interview early last month with Lancaster Farming Rakestraw toured several of the 31 different farm sites he rents in the farm valley north of Rakestraw farms about 1 100 acres of crops (700 acres in corn 150 acres in small grain and 150 acres in hay) with his brother Dave Curt said that a farmer must know the qualities of the soil and the environment as a whole
We have some clay and rock he said They say this is where the glaciers did their most damage The edge of the glacier was right here So we get a little bit of everything around here
Rakestraw said a lot of the land he rents to grow corn has a lot of different varieties of soil ranging from a Hager

For Snook, Standability's Most Important Factor
CAROLYN N MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent
JERSEY SHORE (Lycoming Co.) — Some people say it s the rich river bottom soils that allow Ed Snook to take home the first place ribbond in the Pennsylvania Corn Club s annual production contest But according to the long-time corn grower and hog farmer, there are many factors that contribute to bumper corn crops
In the Five Acre Corn Club I don t enter the same fields every year I ve had them in the Nippenose Valley on limestone ground and along the river It s always pushed up to me that I have pig manure and river field, but we ve had the Five Year Corn Club in seven or eight locations and we ve won awards on all of them,' he said
In this year's contest, Snook placed first in the three year average shelled grain class for the regular harvest size His yield in 1992 was 191 8 bushels per acre In 1993 he produced 201 6 bushels per acre and in 1994 he produced 194 1 bushels per acre for an average

Adams Extension Holds Annual Meeting

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Daniel L. Winters, Hanover, was honored recently with the Extension Leadership Recognition Award for 1994 at the annual meeting of the Adams County Cooperative Extension Association.

County Extension Director Thomas E. Piper lauded Winters, manager, fertilizer division of Ag Commodities, Inc, Gettysburg and a past president of the extension board, for his service to agriculture, youth, and the community.

Also recognized were the volunteers of the extension association. They are Vincent Lobaugh, Aspers; Mary Ann Oyler, Biglerville; Pam Ketterman, Gettysburg; Cindy Zepp, New Oxford; Fred Kammerer, Gettysburg; Janet Eastman, Biglerville; and Mary Kay Roche, New Oxford.

Fred Kammerer, Gettysburg, is retired as president of the board. Kammerer received a certificate in recognition of nine years of continuous service at the annual meeting.

New board of directors elected are Robert Clowney, Gettysburg; Pam Ketterman, Gettysburg; Raymond Gouker, Gettysburg; Audrey Wolf-Weiland, Gettysburg; Cindy Zepp, New Oxford; Mary Ann Oyler, Biglerville; and Samuel Dayhoff, Gettysburg.

Jacki Sterner, Adams County International 4-H Youth Exchangee (IFYE) to Sweden, who spoke at the annual meeting, was honored. Jacki presented a program on her six months in Sweden with host families.

A certificate of appreciation was presented to the IFYE host family, consisting of Emily, Sarah, Ben, Debbie, and Doug Pierson. They

Livestock Ledger

•Place a light over the creep area to help attract the lambs. Sunlight shining into a creep during the day will also attract lambs.

•Provide water in the creep or as close to it as possible. However, the water should be covered so the lambs cannot urinate or defecate in it. The water must be kept clean and fresh. The grain feeder should also be covered for the same reason.

Make maximum use of homegrown grains and roughage when formulating the creep ration. Corn and oats as well as leafy, high-quality legume hay make excellent feed for young lambs. Barley can also be used but may be quite as palatable as corn and oats for the first couple of weeks.

Until the lambs are six weeks old, the grain used in the creep ration should be cracked, crimped, and rolled, unless fed as a pelleted ration. After the lambs are six weeks old, whole grain can be used unless it is extremely hard, in which case the grain should continue to be cracked, crimped, or rolled for several more weeks. Many people are using complete pelleted rations for creep feeding.

Water Concerns For Beef Cattle

Water is an often overlooked, but important part of beef cattle nutrition. In fact, on a pound-for-pound basis, more water is consumed than any other feedstuff. The daily water requirement for a cow is influenced by several factors including the rate and composition of weight gain, pregnancy, lactation, activity, the forage/grain ratio of the diet, outdoor temperature, and salt intake.

The following table shows the tremendous differences that can occur in the requirement for water. During mid-winter the need for water is lower because of several factors: the cows are not in lactation, there may be more total feed consumption, and there is less loss from evaporation and sweat. That result is reversed in mid-summer, particularly for cows in lactation and for finishing steers.

Estimated Daily Intake Of Water (gallons per day)

	Lactating Cows	Growing Steers	Finishing Steers
January	11.0	6.0	7.0
February	11.5	6.5	7.5
May	17.0	9.5	11.0
August	16.5	14.0	17.0
September	17.5	10.0	12.0
December	11.0	6.0	7.0

In addition to the obvious need for more water with higher salt intake, other feedstuffs can contribute to changes in the need for water. Some types of protein can act as a diuretic (less water is reabsorbed in the kidneys and more is excreted in the urine). When diets are high in protein and fed at high levels of consumption, more water may be required.

The quality of the water must also be considered, according to Dr. John Comerford, Penn State extension beef specialist. In many areas there may be a concern about the salinity of the water. In these cases cows could refuse to drink to point of dehydration. However, most cattle have a wide adaptability to salinity in water. If the change to salty water is not abrupt, they can adapt to most concentrations found in Pennsylvania.

Are You A Hobby Farm?

Section 183 of the Internal Revenue Code provides in general that a taxpayer cannot deduct expenses of an activity which are greater than income from that activity if the activity is "not engaged in for profit." In other words, losses from an activity which is "not engaged in for profit" — a hobby — cannot be deducted against income from other sources. On the other hand, if an activity is engaged in for profit (a business rather than a hobby), losses are fully deductible against other income.

In determining whether an activity is engaged in for profit, all facts and circumstances with respect to the activity are taken into account. Although a reasonable expectation of profit is not required, the facts and circumstances must indicate that the taxpayer entered into the activity or continued the activity with the objective of making a profit. If the taxpayer has two profit years out of seven, the taxpayer will be presumed to have a profit motive.

"THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING FEED STORAGE"

"The Big Jim is doing a fine job bringing the feed down. We really believe the drive-thru, Big Jim System is worth anyone's consideration. It is costing more every year to grow forages and we feel our minimal quality and quantity losses are easily paying for the additional initial cost of this investment compared to that of a bunker. We are throwing no feed away and the cows are milking the best they ever have." (over 90 lbs. per cow.)

SUPREME CALF HUTCH

J&D MOLDED HIGH DENSITY-POLYETHYLENE CALF HUTCH

J&D Calf Hutches will keep calves drier in the winter, they will stay warmer and start eating at an earlier age. During the warm summer months you can use the standard, adjustable air vent to control the climate in the Calf Hutch. Your calves will be healthier and will grow faster. You may add an out door fence area to the hut.

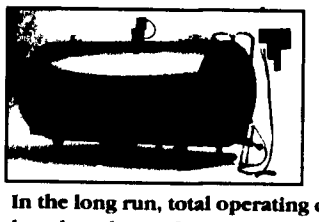
MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Offer

Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk.

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

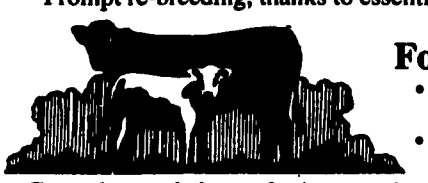
INTRODUCING...
SWEETCAKE 16NU
FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY
• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages
• Aids in making the best use of your available forage
• Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
• Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
• Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
• Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy
• Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
• Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
• Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
• Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients



For Beef
• Stronger, healthier calves at birth
• Heavier Calves at weaning
• Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
• Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

CANADIAN BISON BULLS

Take another look! Those big, heavily haired, extremely healthy, vigorous animals grew up in our harsh winters and contrasting seasons.

Canada was home for the great Northern Herd, 200 years ago. Today it is the home for some of the WORLD'S FINEST.

WHY NOT PUT A BIT OF CANADA IN YOUR HERD!

PENNSYLVANIA'S 22ND PERFORMANCE TESTED BULL SALE

FRIDAY, MARCH 31, 1995
AT NOON
AT PENN STATE'S AG ARENA

Only the top bulls from the respective herds were put on test. They are fully evaluated for ADG on test, lifetime WDA, adjusted 205- and 365-day weights. The bulls are ultrasonically scanned for backfat thickness and loin-eye area and are given a complete breeding soundness and semen exam. The bulls will have health papers to go anywhere. After the evaluation, the top two-thirds of the bulls will be offered. In the past, these bulls have been real herd-improving bargains. Current EPD's will be available.

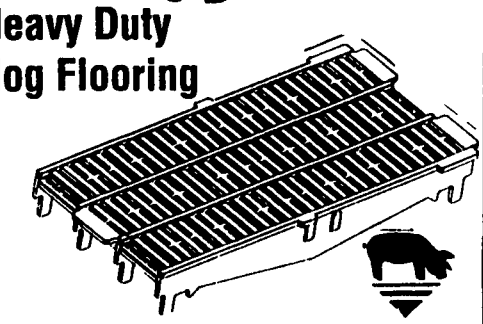
REPLACING HOG FLOORING? CONSIDERING NEW CONSTRUCTION? CHECK OUT Polygrate™

Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Farocx has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

- ◆ POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?

- ◆ More piglets survive until weaning
- ◆ Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- ◆ Heavier piglets at weaning
- ◆ Better conditioned sows at weaning

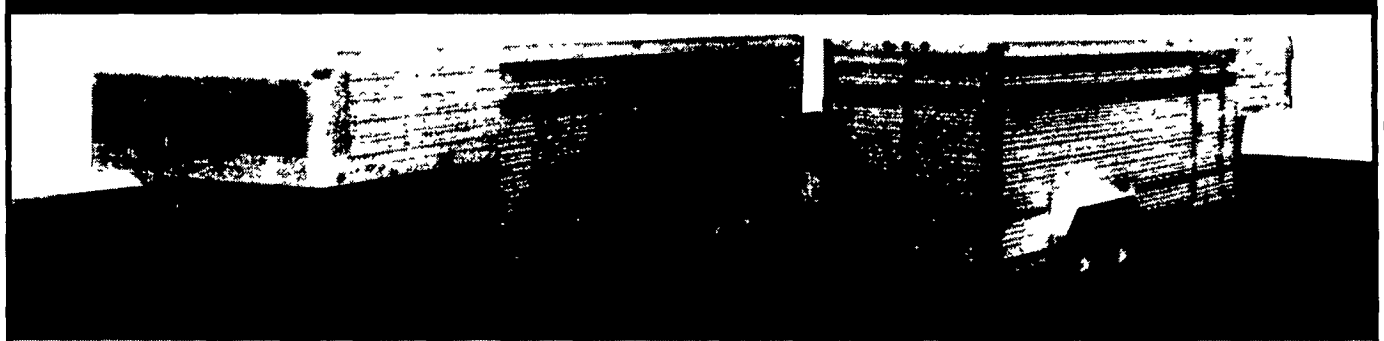
Anything Less Isn't Good Enough



If livestock is your business, Eby Gooseneck Trailers include these features to protect the livestock you transport:

- Durable all-aluminum construction with less weight for more payload
- Axies, wheels, tires and brakes that are designed to carry the weight the trailer will hold
- Gates and doors designed for easy loading/unloading
- Proven post and slat design to control airflow and easily close up for winter conditions
- Aerodynamic design to improve fuel economy

Eby Gooseneck Trailers are available in lengths from 12 to 32 feet with a choice of widths and inside heights. We offer every custom option, including stainless steel front end for great looks.

Whatever kind of livestock you transport, you can rely on EBY products to do the job right.

Eby custom-builds bodies and trailers for all types of livestock, grain and farm commodities.

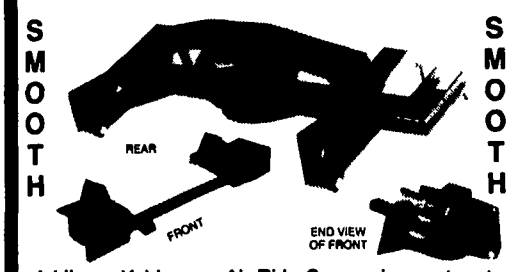
KELDERMAN AIR RIDE



Adding a Kelderman Air Ride Conversion system to your present suspension will result in a two stage suspension system. This is not to be confused with adding an Air bag mounted above the axle. Allows adding extra spring leafs to increase load rating and still maintain Air-Ride comfort.

The bolt on basic package utilizes an air stem mounted in a convenient location to add or remove air from the system.

Optional 12 volt compressor allows changing air pressure setting on the go.

Currently available for front and rear suspension in Dodge Series 250 & 350 trucks. Available soon for Dodge Dakota models.

Also available for some Ford, Chevy, and GMC truck models. Special orders available for most motor homes. This option will smooth out the ride on those rough-road fishing/camping trips.

Farmers Seek Greener Future At PASA Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Despite dire predictions of snow, more than 450 farmers and supporters seeking more practical, profitable, and environmentally friendly methods of growing crops and raising livestock attended the fourth annual "Farming for a Greener Future" conference held recently in State College.

Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) sponsored the event, which drew a diverse crowd. Attendees ranged from organic farmers to conventional farmers, from vegetable and fruit growers to dairy farmers and livestock producers, as well as consumers and educators.

A highlight of the meeting was an inspiring keynote address by Tom Frantzen of Practical Farmers of Iowa. Frantzen converted his 320-acre farm from a confinement hog operation to a diversified operation that includes grazing hogs, a multiple grain rotation, and agroforestry. To do so, he used a decision-making model for total farm planning called "holistic resource management."

"Farmers and the whole world have problems, but we have to start to look at the world holistically," Frantzen said. "We can't reduce complex problems to one cause and look for one quick-fix solution. We need to seek to cooperate not compete with ourselves. We all need to be figuring out how to squeeze the next farmer in, not out." Frantzen challenged those in attendance to work with the non-farm community and to see them as allies. "Do we need to educate them about our issues? Sure! But we need to listen to them, too; they are part of the equation."

Other sessions addressed grass-based farming and rotational grazing for dairy and other livestock, improving soil health, early and late season vegetable production, reducing sprays in fruit, innovative marketing techniques, several sessions on composting, and sustainable ag education. The meetings emphasized ways farmers can produce and market high-quality food and at the same time minimize chemical inputs and agriculture's impact on the environment while maintaining profitability.

In several session New Zealand dairy grazier Doug Parker and Wisconsin dairyman Joe Meudt told how after years of using confinement feeding, many dairy operators are looking differently at their pasture resources. Nearly 100 farmers participated in a farmer-to-farmer discussion on how rotational, or intensive, grazing can provide an excellent feed source while reducing costs, soil erosion and other inputs associated with harvested feeds. The group also pointed out that grass-based farming doesn't require as much machinery investment as conventional methods, so young people can get into farming with less debt.

Those interested in improving soil health discussed composting and using soil amendments, matching cover crops to cropping systems, and the connection between healthy soils and healthy animals. Will Brinton of Woods End Research Lab presented intriguing discussions on the production of compost, using compost to suppress disease, and the economics of composting. Marianne Sarrantonio of Slippery Rock University captivated a large audience on the art and science of incorporating cover crops into the rotation. Organic grain producers discussed how they derive nitrogen for their grain from legumes.

Others at the meeting explored marketing opportunities with grocery chains and restaurants, and ways to start community farmers' markets. Community-supported agriculture, where customer-members buy farm shares, was discussed as a way to help re-establish relationships between farmers and consumers. Consumers learned about what it takes to produce food while getting high-quality, locally-grown fruits and vegetables.

Farmers also learned about growing vegetable transplants in no-till conditions with a new transplanter developed at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. This transplanter, already tested successfully in tomatoes in Lackawanna County, will be tried in several Pennsylvania locations this season.

PASA Elects New Officers

Also during the conference, PASA members held their annual meeting, electing a new member to the board of directors and continuing the terms of four current directors.

Elected to her first term was Jonda Crosby, of Berks County, project associate for the Regional Infrastructure for Sustaining Agriculture (RISA) program. Crosby was raised on and is still involved in her family's Western New York dairy operation.

Re-elected were Phil Rzewnicki, Blair Cooperative Extension; Bob Junk, Pennsylvania Farmers Union; Bud Glendening, organic vegetable producer, Armstrong County; and Tom Stickle, grain and venison producer, Westmoreland County.

Sustainable Agriculture Leadership Award

Also during the conference, PASA presented its third Pennsylvania Sustainable Agriculture Leadership Award, which is presented annually to an individual or organization in Pennsylvania that exemplifies outstanding leadership and innovation in furthering sustainable agriculture in the state and beyond.

Joining previous years' winners, Robert Rodale and Paul Keene, was this year's choice: Herb Cole, Jr., professor of plant pathology at Penn State, Co-Director of SANRUE, and longtime friend of Pennsylvania.

Citing a long list of deeds supporting Pennsylvania farmers and sustainable agriculture, PASA presented Cole with a large plaque honoring him as "an advocate for changes in agriculture that will sustain farmers now and in the future."

Future Harvest Festival Set

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Maryland Organic Food and Farming Association, Inc. (MOFFA) in conjunction with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service is pleased to announce the Future Harvest Festival to be held on Saturday and Sunday, October 14 and 15, here at the Carroll County Agricultural Center.

The Festival, modeled after county fairs of yesteryear, will blend family-oriented activities, agriculture exhibits, and farm and homeowner demonstrations. Workshops will be held throughout the festival for homeowners, gardeners, and farmers.

Farmer-to-farmer workshops will focus on sustainable agricultural practices and techniques. Homeowner workshops will address organic lawn care, low-impact household cleaning products, composting, and pest-control with low-impact products. Gardener workshops will concentrate on organic gardening practices and edible landscaping. A demonstration kitchen will operate throughout the festival, featuring healthier food preparation and food preservation techniques. Other demonstrations will include working draft horses, a quilting "bee," Shiitake mushroom culture, basket making, beekeeping, and more.

Food vendors will offer organically produced fare and a farmers' market will feature a wide range of regionally grown produce. Activities for children, and the young at heart include pumpkin painting, scarecrow building, storytelling, a "chicken scratch," a petting zoo, and more.

MOFFA is producing the festival as part of the Future Harvest Project with funding from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. Other collaborators include University of Maryland and Delaware State Extension Services, the Accokeek Foundation, the American Farmland Trust, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, the Maryland/Delaware Sustainable Agriculture Association, and the Chesapeake Wildlife Heritage Foundation. The Future Harvest Festival will help to provide a strong connection and dialog between the regional farm community and the consumer community they strive to feed.

MOFFA seeks volunteers to help with the Festival as well as exhibitors, demonstrators, and vendors. Call Marty Rice, festival coordinator at (301) 371-4814, for more information.

TRANSPORT WIDTH On Wing Units Up To 24'2" Working Width Is A SAFE 12'4" Transport.

3 YEAR WARRANTY On Triple Lip Sealed Trunnion Mounted, Regreasable BEARINGS

HEAVIEST AXLE SHAFTS In The Industry - 1¾ " Dia. Gangs Are Hydraulically Torqued To 1400 Lbs. & Spring-Loaded To Eliminate Loosening, Wear And Breakage.

WING GAUGE WHEELS Eliminate Gouging

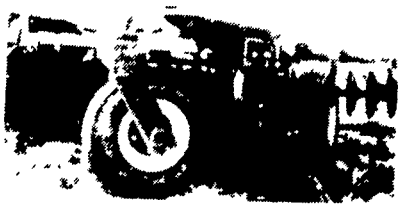
BLADES: ¼ "x22" or ¼ "x24" On 8.5" Spacing 3 Sided Blade Prevents Erosion By Eliminating A Continuous Furrow

DOUBLE OFFSET DESIGN Provides Maximum Leveling Without A Middle Buster Or Center Tooth

Your Choice Of RIGID or C-FLEX BEARING STANDARDS.

SELF-LEVELING HITCH Maintains Level Setting Regardless Of Desired Depth Or Tillage Application

The Secret To A Level Field Is The Sunflower GAUGE WHEELS



A trademark on all FLEXIBLE Sunflower Discs is Front-Mounted Gauge Wheels. This Important Feature Prevents the Front Gangs Of The Wing Frame From Gouging, Buckling or Cutting Deeper Than The Other Gangs, Promoting A Level Ridge Or Furrow-Free Field. The Heavy Duty Gauge Wheel Features A 5-Bolt Hub And 8.00x10 Ply Tire & Tube.

DOUBLE OFFSET DESIGN

Eliminates center ridging while cutting the entire width at an even depth. Self-leveling hitch provides fore & aft leveling at any working depth.

NEW HOLLAND SPREADERS 12-YEAR PROTECTION PLAN

Most guarantees last only as long as the original owner. But New Holland Bonded Protection means our entire line of box spreaders is guaranteed not just to the first owner, but to all future owners.

Bonded Protection covers every box spreader's floor and sides for twelve years. If a floorboard fails for any reason during normal use, or the sides rust through, we'll replace them free.

Choose from seven models, with 161- to 440-cubic-foot (heaped, double-beater) capacities.

Bonded Protection...only on New Holland box spreaders.

Mon. Thru Fri. 8:00 AM to 5:00 PM; Sat. 8:00-12:00 Evening by Appt.

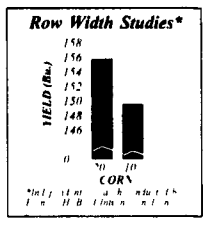
6600 RIGID FRAME

Adapt to any planting practice...no-till, mulch-till or ridge-till...15", 20", 30" or 40" rows.

Yield-enhancing planting practices like 20" rows and others are on the horizon. That's why the 6600 Planter features the two-bar design. With it you'll have the flexibility for changing planting practices...now and in the future.



The 6600 enables you to plant 20" rows . even in no-till Or you can go from planting 30" corn in the morning to 15" soybeans the same afternoon simply by lowering the interplant units

Equally at home in plowed fields as it is in no-till fields, it adapts to changing tillage practices, too. In soft conditions, the wide 9.5-15 tires keep the planter from sinking. In no-till, the two-bar design provides two 5" x 7" toolbars for adding an extra set of coulters and other attachments (There's also an optional 3" diamond bar for hanging fertilizer openers) It has the strength and weight to penetrate the tough stuff Optional weight brackets give you even more security

Even routine maintenance is simple with the unique White seed meter. There are only two parts.. brushes .to check and replace periodically.

Rigid Pull-Type Planters

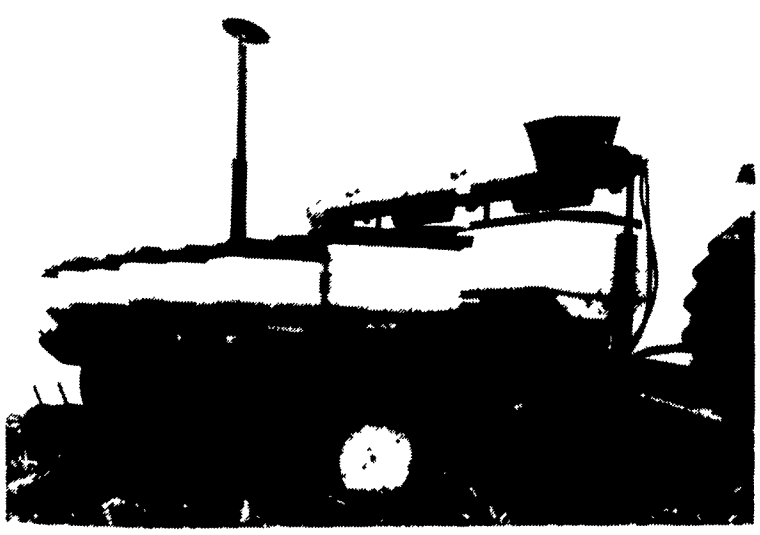
WHITE AGCO

6100 VERTICAL FOLD & RIGID FRAME

Reduce fieldwork and feed costs while maximizing yield with no-till.



If animal health takes first priority around your place, you can't afford to spend hours and hours making planter adjustments and checking population rates. You need a planter that's simple to set up and operate.

Machine investments have to provide a good rate of return for farmers and contractors Over the years, the CLAAS JAGUAR self propelled forage harvesters have established a unique reputation for outstanding output, reliability and versatility along with unbeatable forage quality. These factors, combined with ease of service have made them the favourite investment in this machine category.
With the JAGUAR 880 and 860, plus the new 840 and 820 models, CLAAS provides you with a complete new generation of machines. They incorporate the latest in technology for unrivalled forage harvest performance. Extremely high powered Mercedes engines provide power for toughest operating conditions. A new cab design makes for an ideal working environment. Changeover times are quicker than ever to maximize your productive time.
Automatic greasing cuts downtime considerably.
All in all it adds up to the highest performance available, with a throughput of the JAGUAR 880 or around 170 t/h in corn, more comfort and of course a better return on your invested capital

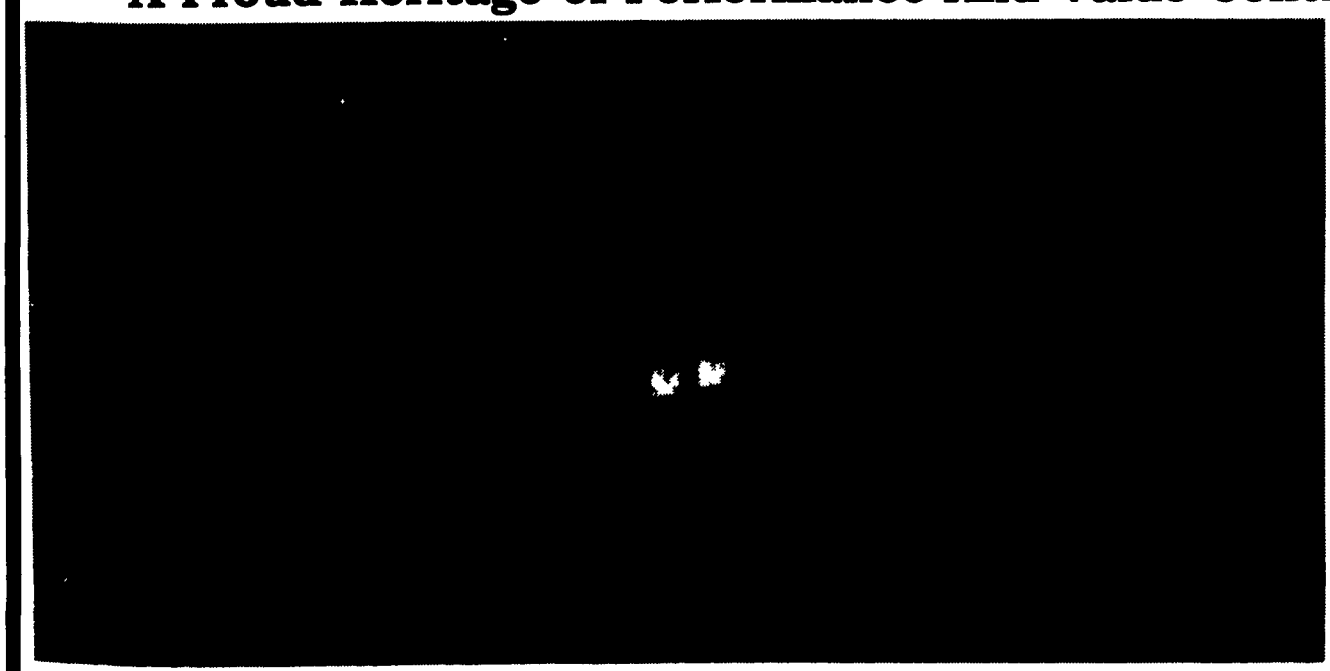
A Proud Heritage of Performance And Value Continues. MF 200 Series



For serious loader jobs, you can't beat an MF 253 with the speed of an optional synchro shuttle transmission and the traction of 4-wheel drive. New for '93!

The newest MF 200 Series tractors carry forward the traditions set forth by Harry Ferguson when he invented the first modern tractor over 75 years ago.

Ferguson, a successful tractor dealer and talented mechanic in Ireland, observed that simply relying on the weight of the tractor for traction was inefficient. In addition, simply hitching a plow to the drawbar frequently caused tractors to rear over backward when the plow struck an obstruction. Late in 1917, Ferguson applied for the first of a long series of patents that defined what came to be known as the "Ferguson System"

HOULE AGI-POMPE®

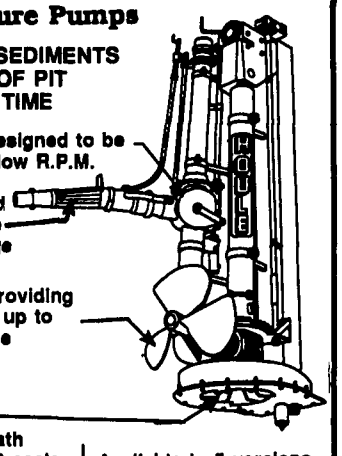
AGITATES BOTTOM SEDIMENTS AND SURFACE OF PIT AT THE SAME TIME



Rotative directional valve designed to be operated while P.T.O. is at low R.P.M.

Powerful nozzle to slice and agigate the crust of manure covering the surface of large holding area.

Bottom gear box with oil bath protected by a greaseable 3 seals mechanism on each shaft.

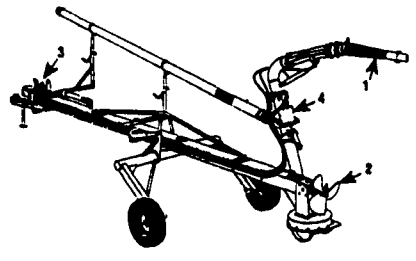
HOULE TRAIL AGI-POMPE®
32' AND 42' FOR LAGOONS



Gear box oil bath protected by a greaseable 3 seals mechanism on each shaft.

AVAILABLE WITH MULTIPURPOSE OPTION TO ALSO CLIMB INTO CONCRETE PITS UP TO 14' DEEP

GREAT PERFORMANCE IN HOG OR DAIRY MANURE

1-Highly articulated nozzle designed to slice and break the top crust from above the manure level as the propeller homogenises the liquid with the remaining floating chunks.
2-24" dia. mixing propeller providing full time agitation up to 21,500 US G.P.M. even when loading a spreader.
3-Hydraulic controls can be operated from tractor seat.
4-Rotative directional valve designed to be operated at low R.P.M. without stopping the P.T.O.
